Hundreds Injured While Property Damage Is Very Heavy.

GERMAN BOAT SINKS WITH 31 LIVES LOST

THREE ARE VICTIMS OF VIENNA HURRICANE

Vessels Scurry to Aid Two Steamers Off Shore of England.

Brussels, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—While flood waters in part of the Belgian lowlands were receding tonight, the region between Antwerp and Termonde continued in the grip of one of the worst floods in years.

Great masses of water continued to pour into the low-lying country in the Termonde region despite the desperate efforts of soldiers and civilians to fill the gaps in the river dykes with sandbags.

At Antwerp the Kiel Hospital was evacuated today with ambulances proceeding through two feet of water surrounding the building. The evacuation was accomplished without mishap, although many of the patients became greatly excited. The rising waters seriously threatened the city's supply of electricity

Damage Reaches Millions.

In addition to the extensive damage done to the homes and properties of peasants, the destruction of harbor works and property along the River Scheldt will run into millions of francs.

In the central and southern part of the affected area, however, the swollen waters were receding and the water was gradually draining off the land.

London, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—A gale still howled across Europe tonight and driving rains pelted a region already stricken by floods and hurricanes which had taken at least 36 lives, injured hundreds, made thousands homeless and wrought enormous property damage.

30 Lost as Steamer Sinks.

Thirty-one men were lost when the steamer Louise Leonhardt went down in the Elbe Estuary in Germany. Three were killed as a hurricane swept through Vienna. At least one person drowned as the rivers of France poured over the countryside.

DO-X Is Held Back.

In England—or off its coast—vessels scurried to the assistance of two Greek steamers driven in shore by the gale, but both ships, the Triton and the Taxiarchis, worked themselves out of danger under their own power.

At Liverpool the river Mersey was lashed to fury and ferryboats were tossed about. Houses near the docks were flooded and women were blown off their feet on the way to New Brighton Pier.

A seaman was blown off the deck of a ship at Penmaenmawr, Wales, and drowned. At Wrexham, Wales, a motorcar was stalled by the storm and one of its occupants stepped out. Immediately he went under, since it was 8 feet of water in a ditch, instead of a road that he stepped into and when he bobbed up was pulled out by the hair. Scores of small boats were blown up on the beach at Boulogne-Sumer, France.

In Spain the storm was less severe, but bad weather held the German seaplane, DO-X, at anchor, preventing a flight to Lisbon.

Railroads were halted in Bavaria and many other regions because trees and telephone poles were flung across the tracks. Telegraph wires were down in several places. Crops were ruined and cattle and horses drowned by hundreds.

Homeless Are Hard Hit.

The 90-mile gale was bitter cold and the homeless suffered also from lack of food. The Red Cross was in the field early starting its relief campaign.

Paris put its emergency pumps to work early as the Seine crept closer to the tops of the flood walls, which run the length of the city. Tugboats and barges in the Seine piled one upon another as the torrent swept under and past them.

The gale swept through the Loire

HYDE'S RELIEF PLAN GIVEN TO SENATORS

Norris Views Proposed Cut in Wheat Area as Calamity in Event of Short Crop.

CHAIRMAN LEGGE HEARD

(Associated Press.)

A 20 per cent reduction in wheat acreage and more "elastic" control by the Government over grain exchange rules were held up to the Senate agriculture committee yesterday as additional tonics for the farmers' ills.

Chairman Legge, of the Federal Farm Board, proposed the acreage curtailment in the belief it would give the wheat farmer the benefit of the 42 cents a bushel tariff, but Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, a member of the committee, said such a plan would amount to a "national calamity" in event of a crop shortage.

Secretary Hyde discussed recommendations for more definite Federal control over exchanges, but no conclusions were reached by the committee.

Chairman McNary said after an all-day sitting with the Government officials and farm organization chiefs that he believed his committee unanimously favored the entering of the wheat market by the Farm Board and was inclined to give future support to

Burke's Wrecked Plane Discovered

Craft, Lost Since October, Located in Yukon Territory.

Juneau, Alaska, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Reports here tonight from White Horse, Yukon, said Pilot E. L. Wasson had discovered the wrecked plane of Capt. E. J. A. Burke and two companions, missing since October 11, in the headwaters of the Liard River in Yukon Territory.

The reports, which arrived via Skagway, Alaska, said Wasson returned to White Horse, his headquarters, without further investigation because of gasoline shortage. He reported the wreckage indicated Burke and his companions were forced down.

Wasson said he would return as soon as possible to within about 15 miles of the wreckage and make his way to the plane by foot. Roughness of the country would prevent his landing near the plane, he said.

THIN EVIDENCE MAY FREE PAIR IN NURMI CASE

Prosecutor - Elect Points to Suicide Indications, Added To by Clerk.

WOMAN SAYS VICTIM BROODED ON MISERY

McGuire Joins O'Brien in Liberty on Bond; Hearing Saturday.

STATE AND DEFENSE PLAN PISTOL TESTS

Examination Aim to Solve Absence of Powder Burns, Stressed by Coroner.

Miss Ruth E. Adams, of Clarendon, Va., a clerk in the distribution division of the Census Bureau, yesterday told a Washington Post reporter that she had been a coworker of Aarvi Nurmi, 24-year-old bureau employe, who was found dead outside his home in Takoma Park, Md., last Wednesday night, and that she had often heard him say that he intended committing suicide.

"He was a very quiet and moody young man," Miss Adams declared, "and any number of times I have heard him say that he wished he were dead. He said life held nothing in store for him, and that some day he would kill himself."

"I am not the only one to whom he spoke of his suicidal intentions," Miss Adams continued. "He was continually talking about it, and every employe in our division expected that some day he would kill himself. When we heard of his death," she concluded, "we naturally thought he had carried out his threats."

Mays Drop Charges.

Nurmi, according to his fellow workers at the Census Bureau, appeared to be ill most of the time. He did his work with an effort, and even when walking about the building seemed to be in great pain, they said.

Announcement was made yesterday by the State's attorney-elect in Montgomery County that the weakness of his case against the pair charged with manslaughter in the slaying of Nurmi might lead him to nolle prosse the charges.

The declaration of Stedman Prescott, elected to the State's attorneyship early this month, to take office the first of the year, came coincident with announcement of the present officeholder, Robert B. Peter, jr., that a preliminary hearing will be held at 10 o'clock Saturday morning for the two men charged with manslaughter following an inquest Saturday at Rockville, which found that Nurmi met death at the hands of persons unknown.

Both Out on Bond.

They are Henry W. McGuire, 29 years old, fellow employe of Nurmi in the construction section of the Census Bureau, of Columbia road near Fourteenth street northwest, and John J. O'Brien, 26 years old, unemployed, of Chapin street near Fifteenth street northwest. O'Brien was released on bond Saturday after the inquest and McGuire was released from the Rockville Jail early last night on $1,000 bond posted by Elmer Pumphrey, of Suitland, Md.

"From the evidence that has been presented so far I consider the State's case against McGuire and O'Brien very weak," declared the incoming State's attorney, who pointed out that he had attended the inquest and had kept the case under close observation in the knowledge that the

Calvin Coolidge Says:

The national and State governments are nearly a unit in their expressed desire to promote a revival of business. Probably as soon as legislatures meet they will propose remedies for much business with which they are not now connected. Before taking jurisdiction over other economic activities, it might be well to put those already under Government control in a profitable and prosperous condition. When that is done people would feel more confidence in surrendering more of their business to local and Federal supervision.

Federal farm marketing is in the experimental stage and clearly entitled to a chance to demonstrate its value. But for many years the States and Nation have had very complete regulation of railroads. Transportation is a key industry. If it can be revived almost all business will improve. The railroads have been asked to spend money and have responded. They can not expend money they do not have. Undoubtedly, the railroad presidents could tell how they can get more money and be relieved of some restrictions with little burden to the public. Here is an opportunity for the governmental commissions to take the lead in reviving business and increasing employment by giving the railroads a chance.

GERMANY VIOLATING TREATY, FRENCH SAY

Disarmament Body Classes Civilian Aircraft as War Equipment.

U. S. OPPOSES RULING

Geneva, Nov. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Germany was accused today by Rene Mesaigli, French delegate to the preparatory disarmament commission, of flagrantly violating the Versailles Treaty by constructing huge civilian aircraft, such as the G-38, which could be transformed into formidable aggressive weapons in war time.

The heated discussion culminated in the commission's voting to class civil airplanes, dirigibles and merchant ships, with decks strengthened to bear cannon, as "potential" armaments to which the fullest publicity should be given.

The decision was carried over the determined opposition of the American, British and Italian delegations. France, heretofore the leading opponent of any kind of publicity upon stocks of war materials, either for military or naval uses, led the demand to turn the spotlight upon all kinds of civilian aircraft.

After reading a newspaper clipping which quoted the pilot of the German G-38 as saying that his plane, carrying machine guns and cannon, could load with bombs at Zaragossa, in mid-Spain, and fly to Paris and London and return, M. Massigli said:

"It is unnecessary to comment further, but the fact that an airplane of such characteristics can be constructed in a country where, in accordance with the law passed in 1926, it is prohibited to construct any aircraft which can be armed as described, is very significant."

Resenting the French delegate's insinuations, Bernstorff, of Germany, charged his colleague with taking seriously the propaganda of aircraft builders or enthusiastic pilots.

Then he retaliated by quoting from the official records of the French Chamber of Deputies, where M. Brocard, chairman of the committee on aviation, said transfer of civil aircraft into fighting ships is virtually impossible from every point of view.

Bernstorff pointed out that Bro-

SMITH CASE JURY STILL SHORT THREE

Trio of Women Are Excused to Be at Home Over Thanksgiving.

A jury was selected at 3:15 o'clock yesterday in the F. H. Smith Co. trial in District Supreme Court, only to be disrupted when three women members were excused after Justice William Hitz, presiding, announced that they would be locked up for the duration of the trial.

They were Mrs. John T. Campbell, 1720 Thirty-fourth street northwest; Mrs. Dorothy B. Dudley, 5335 Nevada avenue northwest, and Mrs. E. H. Emerson, 415 Aspen street northwest. Another woman, Mrs. Cordelia Cogswell, 2018 Thirty-fifth street northwest, and a man, Theodore Levy, auto parts dealer, 116 Four-and-a-half street southwest, asked to be excused, but were retained.

All three women excused were released because of children who needed their care. Mrs. Dudley explained that she had a little girl who had recently undergone a serious operation and needly nightly massages, which Mrs. Dudley gave her. Mrs. Campbell explained that she had three children, "and I think I'd better get on home." Mrs. Emerson said she has a 14-year-old son at home.

All three, as well as Mrs. Cogswell, pleaded that they would be seriously inconvenienced by being locked up over the Thanksgiving holidays.

Provision for such a contingency had already been made by U. S. Marshal Edgar B. Snyder, who appointed Mrs. Maude E. Parris, a switchboard operator in the courthouse, a special deputy marshal to care for women members of the jury in case it was locked up. She was sworn in by Deputy Clerk of Court Charles Coffin.

Attorneys examined 56 prospective jurors before adjournment last night, placing eleven in the box who had been tentatively agreed upon. A twelfth had been called, but examination had not begun when Judge Hitz adjourned court.

Of those disqualified, 29 were dismissed because of opinions which would not permit them to give un-

PAIR ARRESTED ON CHARGES OF MAKING THREAT

POLICE COURT TRIAL AVERTED BY ACTION

DISTRICT ATTORNEY ISSUES WARRANTS

Men Said to Have Demanded Money and Frightened Patrons Away.

Two men were under arrest charged with threats, and the cases of three others were presented to the grand jury yesterday as the result of United States Attorney Leo A. Rover's action toward breaking up "racketeering" in the Capital.

Detective D. J. Stewart, of the Fifth Precinct, last night arrested Harry Murdock and Thomas A. Able on warrants issued by Mr. Rover charging threats. They are held on complaint of Pasquale Errico, operator of a poolroom at 539 Eighth street southeast.

Errico appeared before Mr. Rover yesterday morning to make formal complaint against the two men, charging that they were persecuting him, demanding money, and driving patrons from his place of business.

Three Cases to Grand Jury.

The cases presented to the grand jury were those of three men charged with violating the pharmacy law by throwing disinfectants on milk a week ago Sunday. They are Harry Maynard Rothgeb, dairy deliveryman and recording secretary of the Milk Drivers and Dairy Employes Local Union No. 246; Elmer Carr Rayford, business agent for the Taxicab Drivers Union, and Richard Conte, a taxicab driver.

Action of Mr. Rover in placing the cases of Rothgeb, Rayford and Conte before the grand jury has halted efforts to try the trio in Police Court for violation of the pharmacy law. The grand jury heard all evidence in the case yesterday and is expected to make a report today. In the event an indictment is returned, Mr. Rover has announced that an immediate trial will be asked of the court.

Grand Jury Witnesses.

Witnesses who appeared before the grand jury included Herman A. Schultels, manager of the Chetenut Farms Dairy; G. A. Weimer, Randolph Whitt, R. E. Woltz, Albin Alsop and Frank Ziegler, of that dairy; A. Lee Thompson, manager, and John Croson, driver of Thompson's Dairy; Edwin R. Donaldson, a chemist; Capt. Edward J. Kelly and Detective Sergt. Thomas Nally, of the Police Department.

In signed statements made to police the men are said to have stated they poured the disinfectant on the milk in order to embarrass the two drivers, who had refused to join a milk drivers' union.

U. S. Will Investigate Robinson Detention

Mexico City, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—On instructions of the State Department, the embassy has requested the United States consul at Nogales to make a full investigation and report on the detention at the border of Theodore Douglas Robinson, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy, on a charge of attempting to smuggle gold from Mexico.

The embassy has undertaken a study of Mexican laws regarding the exportation of gold.

WAR AND NAVY BUILDING SITE TO BE CHOSEN

Hearing Will Be Held at Capitol on Saturday.

ANNOUNCEMENT MADE BY SENATOR SMOOT

AREA OF TRIANGLE ALREADY TAKEN UP.

Three Other Proposed U. S. Constructions Approved by Commission.

By EWARD T. FOLLIARD.

A hearing to determine the location of the proposed War and Navy Building, the greatest of all the projects in the Federal building program here, will be held at the Capitol Saturday, Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, announced late yesterday.

Senator Smoot, who is chairman of the Public Buildings Commission, made the announcement at the White House, after he had discussed the proposed War and Navy Building with President Hoover and Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon. Smoot and Mellon met at the White House by a coincidence.

Earlier in the day, the Public Buildings Commission approved of three other Federal building projects—a Coast Guard building, costing about $3,000,000; an extension of the Department of Agriculture Building, cost $12,800,000, and a central heating plant in the Pennsylvania avenue-Mall triangle, costing about $4,500,000.

Building of Tremendous Size.

Some idea of the size of the projected War and Navy Building may be gained from the fact that it will have 2,000,000 square feet of floor space. This would make it nearly twice as large as the Commerce Department Building, so far the largest Federal building of the lot.

Following the hearing Saturday, the Public Buildings Commission not only will decide on a location for the War and Navy Building, but will direct the Treasury Department, which is in charge of the Federal building program, to ask Congress to authorize the project and to appropriate the money necessary for its construction.

In the case of the War and Navy Building, the commission is confronted with a real problem, and that is: Where shall the building be erected?

Sites So Far Suggested.

The fact that this question should constitute such a problem shows how far the Federal program has progressed here. To begin with, Uncle Sam selected one large area for his buildings—the so-called Pennsylvania avenue-Mall triangle. This triangle is bounded on the north by Pennsylvania avenue and on the south by the Mall, and stretches from Fifteenth street to a point near the Capitol.

Now this triangle has been exhausted, either by Federal buildings already under way or Federal buildings on paper.

Three sites have been suggested for the War and Navy Building, as follows:

A site on the north side of Pennsylvania avenue near the group of municipal buildings that the District of Columbia is going to erect. The municipal center will extend from Third street to Sixth street, and from Pennnsylvania avenue to Judiciary Square.

LITVINOFF CONFERS WITH GRANDI IN ITALY

MUTUAL INTEREST SEEN

Milan, Italy, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Maxim Litvinoff, foreign minister of Soviet Russia, and Dino Grandi, youthful Italian foreign minister, met today in a conference which was interpreted by observers as placing an official seal on the series of acts of rapprochement between Fascist Italy and Soviet Russia in the last year.

Official sources said that the conversation between Litvinoff, who had left the sitting of the League of Nations' preparatory disarmament commission at Geneva, and Grandi concerned "their ideas regarding political and economical questions interesting to the two countries and development of relations between their countries."

But to unofficial political commentators, this coming together of Fascists, who organized mainly to combat communism in their own country, and the Soviets, whose agents almost won over the Italian Peninsula to communism ten years ago, is based on the economic necessities of both parties.

Italy still needs, and will continue to need for some years, Russia's grain surplus and many kinds of raw materials. At the same time she is seeking an outlet for her manufactured products, notably her infant industry of farm implements and tractors, in order to keep her industrial population in the north from undue unemployment.

Moreover, in the past year Russia has been patronizing Italian shipyards for construction of a number of merchant craft, and only last week a Soviet admiral inspected a number of such important undertakings.

Besides this, there is understood to be an urge on the part of both to get together on their Near Eastern policies. It is felt that Grandi, armed with what he has learned from Litvinoff, will be in a much better position to discuss matters with Tewfik Rushdi Bey when the Turkish foreign minister comes to Rome, probably Wednesday.

Rival Forces on Dry Law To Face Election Inquiry

Nye Committee Opens Investigation Next Week of Expenditures by Antisaloon League and Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

(Associated Press.)

Expenditures of the Antisaloon League and the association against the prohibition amendment in the Senate campaigns this year will come under the scrutiny of the Senate campaign funds investigating committee next week.

The committee decided yesterday to hear officers of the Antisaloon League here next Tuesday and those of the association against the prohibition amendment in New York a week from Thursday.

Meanwhile, the committee is preparing a preliminary report to submit to the Senate next week detailing expenditures of Senators who will take office immediately. Chairman Nye announced that no protest against seating of the six new senators who take oath next week would be made. No other contests are in prospect.

The new senators include: Davis of Pennsylvania; Morrow, of New Jersey; and Carey, of Wyoming, Republicans; and Buckley, of Ohio; Williamson, of Kentucky and McGill, of Kansas, Democrats.

The committee decided to make further inquiry into expenditures for Dwight W. Morrow in New Jersey and will call witnesses at its New York meeting December 4.

Senator Nye said his investigators reported expenditures of about $50,000 in behalf of the senator-elect in addition to the $50,000 reported by Morrow for his primary expenditures. He said he saw no violation in this.

The inquiry into the wet and dry organizations will be limited to their

Treasury Bans Influx Of Prison-Made Goods

(Associated Press.)

The Treasury promulgated regulations against the importation of convict-made goods yesterday while a witness was telling the House Communist investigating committee how prisoners fare in Soviet camps.

The regulations require importers and shippers to show that importations from all countries are not produced by convict labor.

Russian goods have figured in several recent hearings at which the Treasury was asked to bar certain products, but in announcing the regulations yesterday Assistant Secretary Lowman said they were "not directed against Russia, but against everybody." They were issued under a law which requires importers to post bond and submit a certificate of origin showing unpaid convicts did not manufacture the articles.

Speaking in broken English, Alexander Grube, who served two years in a Soviet prison camp and escaped nine months ago, said 20,000 political prisoners perished in penal colonies during his incarceration. Overwork, insufficient food, and ill treatment were blamed by him for the heavy death toll.

From long before dawn until hours after night had fallen, he said, the convicts worked without compensation, in the hope of cutting 3 cubic meters of lumber so they might receive an extra half loaf of black bread. Those who refused to work, he said, were executed.

Grube, who has taken out American citizenship papers, was followed by Prof. Thomas S. McWilliams, of Western Reserve University.

Prof. McWilliams said the Red army of 735,000 men was the finest trained in Europe, and that it was being increased as fast as revenues would permit.

On his recent tour of Russia, the professor said he frequently was asked when "the revolution would break out in America."

Representatives of the Baltimore and Philadelphia police are among the witnesses slated for today's hearings.

Film Concerns Held Guilty Of Breaking Antitrust Law

Ten Distributors and 32 Movie Boards of Trade Agreed Unlawfully to Deal Jointly With Exhibitors, McReynolds Rules in Supreme Court.

(Associated Press.)

Ten of the largest motion picture distributors and 32 film boards of trade which distribute 88 per cent of the country's motion picture films were held by the Supreme Court yesterday guilty of violation of the Sherman antitrust law.

In two cases attacking the uniform contract and credit system enforced by them, the court, in opinions by Justice McReynolds, to which no dissent was announced, said corporations which normally should be competitors had entered into unlawful agreement to act jointly in dealing with exhibitors.

The Federal District Court at New York had held the uniform contract, which all exhibitors were required to sign to obtain films, was in violation of the Sherman antitrust law, but found that the credit agreement enforced by the distributors and the film boards of trade was a valid exercise of precaution necessary to break up a practice, which the distributors asserted existed among the exhibitors, to break contracts by changes of ownership of theaters.

The distributors and film boards of trade insisted it was necessary to compel exhibitors to sign contracts binding them to a year's supply of film and agreeing to submit all differences to arbitration.

They also declared that the practice of breaking leased contracts by sales of motion picture theaters required the credit agreement under which the new owners were required to take

Buildings Commission will hear testimony favoring these and other sites, and then will weigh one against the other and make a selection.

Employes Widely Scattered.

Once the building has been constructed, it will be possible to bring the officials and the employes of the War and Navy Departments under one roof for the first time in many years. At present they are widely scattered, not only in Government buildings, but in buildings which the Government is renting.

Secretary of War Hurley has his office in the State, War and Navy Building, and so have some of the officers of the general staff. On the other hand, other officers of the general staff are located outside of the State, War and Navy Building, at least one of them in a rented building. A large part of the War Department force is located in the Munitions Building, along with the Navy and Marine Corp forces.

What is to be done with the space that is given up once the War Department has moved from the State, War and Navy Building has not been fully determined as yet.

It has been suggested the White House executive offices might take over a part of it, or that it be used for White House ceremonials.

At the last session, Congress authorized $3,000,000 for the remodeling of the State, War and Navy Building, and the work is scheduled to start in the spring. The pillars and ginger-bread effects will be removed, to the end that the building will more closely resemble the Treasury Department Building.

The projects approved by the commission were:

A new building, at the apex of the triangle lying between Sixth and Seventh streets and B street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, the cost of which was estimated at $3,000,000. This building would house the Coast Guard or some other Federal agency.

Extension of the Department of Agriculture Building program and increase the limit of cost from $5,750,000 to $12,600,000 for the entire Agriculture Department structure.

Heating Plant to Be Built.

Construction of a central heating plant for new buildings to be built in the Mall triangle development. It was estimated this would cost $4,500,000. It would be built on the square between C and D, Twelfth and Thirteenth streets northwest. It would be used to heat buildings already connected by tunnel or which could be connected with the plant without great additional cost. It may be that further study will show the economy of extending the plant beyond its present contemplated service and an increased amount then will be asked for it, it was said.

Approval of the new projects, involving $14,500,000, was asked in a letter written by Ferry K. Heath, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. It was desired, Mr. Heath said, to include the projects in the next group submitted to Congress.

COURT HOLDS TEN FILM FIRMS GUILTY

over the unexpired contracts made by their predecessors.

"The Sherman act seeks to protect the public against evil commonly incident to the unreasonable destruction of competition," Justice McReynolds declared, "and no length of discussions or experimentation amongst parties to a combination which produces the inhibited result can give validity to their action. Congress has so legislated 'as to prevent resort to practices which unduly restrain competition or unduly obstruct the free flow of such commerce, and private choice of means must yield to the national authority thus asserted.'

"It may be that arbitration is well adapted to the needs of the motion picture industry; but when, under the guise of arbitration, parties enter into unusual agreements which unreasonably suppress normal competition, their action becomes illegal.

"In order to establish violation of the Sherman act it is not necessary to show that the challenged agreement suppresses all competition between the parties or that the parties themselves are discontented with the agreement. The interest of the public in the preservation of competition is a primary consideration. The prohibitions of the statute can not be evaded by good motives. The law is its own measure of right and wrong, of what it permits or forbids, and the judgment of the court can not be set up against it in a supposed accommodation of its policy with the good intention of parties and it may be of some good result.'"

Referring to the credit system, the court said "the obvious purpose of the agreement is to restrict the liberty of those who have representatives on the film board and secure their concerted action for the purpose of coercing certain purchasers of theaters."

Compulsory Arbitration Abandoned, Film Men Say

New York, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Officials of Motion Picture Producers & Distributors of America, Inc., said tonight they would make no comment on today's United States Supreme Court decision until the opinion had been studied in detail.

A statement by the organization said, however, that compulsory arbitration practice objected to by the Supreme Court had been abandoned since October, 1929, prior to which time it had been in general use by the industry.

At recent conferences between distributors and exhibitors, it was stated, a new standard licensing agreement for a system of voluntary arbitration had been approved.

Will H. Hays is head of the producers and distributors organization, which has opposed the Federal Government's action against the arbitration system and the credit system rules throughout the litigation which ended today.

Norfolk Woman Dies Near Charlottesville

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 24.—Mrs. Eva C. Taylor, wife of Richard W. Taylor, of Norfolk, Va., died yesterday at the Blue Ridge Sanatorium, near this city, where she had been a patient since November 8. She was, before marriage, Miss Eva C. Buskey, daughter of C. W. 15 DECISIONS MADE BY SUPREME COURT Body Will Review Ruling Giving Citizenship to Two Refusing to Bear Arms.

I. C. C. ORDER IS UPHELD

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court met yesterday for the first time in three weeks and proceeded to disclose how that time had been spent. It handed down decisions in fifteen cases, consented to review three and refused to review five of its own previous decisions, granted ten and refused nine petitions for review, dismissed one appeal for want of jurisdiction and found that two other appeals presented questions it must consider.

In deciding four cases on community property from the States of Arizona, Louisiana, Texas and Washington, it held the laws of those States gave wives vested interest on income from community property and permitted them to make separate Federal income tax returns.

Two cases brought by Southwestern railroads resulted in an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, dividing freight rates between them and Western trunk lines, being sustained.

The court refused to review its decision holding the Associated Bill Posters of the United States and others guilty of violating the Sherman antitrust law, and again refused to review a decision of the lower courts holding H. Ely Holdsmith, of New York City, guilty of defrauding the Government by forging documents under which an alien entered this country.

At the request of Texas, the court agreed to decide whether Federal taxes can be levied on income from oil leases granted by the State to an oil corporation.

At the request of the Government, the court agreed to review two cases in which the lower courts held that the Rev. Douglas C. MacIntosh, a Yale professor, and Marie, Averil Bland, a nurse, both Canadians, were entitled to citizenship although unwilling to swear to defend the country by bearing arms.

An attempt to test the right of the Democratic organization in Arkansas to bar Negroes from Democratic primaries failed when a case brought by J. M. Robinson and others was dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

Plans Are Ready For Nurses' Home

Cheaper Construction at Gallinger Proposed to Permit Project.

Plans for the new $325,000 nurses' home at Gallinger Municipal Hospital are to be submitted to the District Commissioners today preparatory to advertising for bids on the work.

Bids were requested last year, but none of the competing contractors quoted a figure low enough to be within the $325,000 appropriation provided by Congress. It was necessary therefore for the District engineers to revise their plans for the structure to permit cheaper construction.

The building will be the third unit of the Gallinger group, and will be erected at a point betwen the new main building and the psychopathic group. In design it is to harmonize with the present buildings, and will be built of red brick. Quarters are to be provided for 400 nurses, the full quota of the hospital. At present about 140 nurses are living in the few old hospital buildings which are habitable. In line with the Commissioners' policy to speed production for the relief of unemployment, it is planned to advertise for bids immediately.

Police, summoned by screaming neighbors, found Filosa standing in the front room with a razor in his hands and a dazed expression on his face. In one bedroom they found Salvatore de Hall, 16, dead, and in another his mother, Mrs. Anna de Hall, 49, and his sister, Catherine, 14, suffering from numerous wounds about the face and body.

RECKLESS DRIVING JURY TRIAL UPHELD

COUNT CALLED SERIOUS

The United States Supreme Court yesterday upheld the decision of the District Court of Appeals, that William H. Colts was entitled to a jury trial.

Colts was arrested, charged with driving recklessly at a speed of more than 22 miles an hour, "so as to endanger property and individuals." Called to trial in Police Court, he demanded a jury trial. This was denied him. He was tried by a judge and convicted. He appealed to the Court of Appeals and that court said the Police Court had erred in denying him the jury trial. The District appealed to the United States Supreme Court and that court yesterday upheld the District Court of Appeals.

The exact effect of the Supreme Court decision yesterday was the subject of considerable discussion, and was considered at a conference between William W. Bride, corporation counsel, and his assistants. What will be done next in the Colts case has not been decided, and probably will not be decided for several days, Mr. Bride said.

Asked to comment on the effect the decision will have on similar cases in the future, Corporation Counsel William W. Bride said last night:

"The Supreme Court has said all there is to say. We will have to accept its decision. Beyond that there is no comment I can make."

The language of the Supreme Court decision apparently permits trial of persons for reckless driving before a judge, but guarantees the right of a defendant to a jury trial when the charge of reckless driving includes complaint of driving so as to endanger property or individuals.

The decision pointed out that persons prosecuted in Police Court may have a jury trial under such circumstances as would justify a jury trial under the Constitution. After reciting the provisions of the traffic law covering speeding and reckless driving, the decision continued:

"It will be seen that the respondent is not charged merely with the comparatively slight offense of exceeding the 22-mile limit of speed subdivision (a), or merely with driving recklessly, subdivision (b) (1); but with the grave offense of having driven at the forbidden rate of speed and recklessly 'so as to endanger property and individuals.'"

Constitution Held Test.

The Constitution must be made the test to determine whether an accused person is entitled to trial by jury, the decision said, declaring that the clause "' the trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury,' is to be interpreted in the light of common law, according to which petty offenses might be proceeded against summarily before a magistrate sitting without a jury. * * * That there may be many offenses called 'petty offenses' which do not rise to the degree of crimes within the meaning of Article III and in respect of which Congress may dispense with a jury trial is settled."

Whether a given offense is a crime or a petty offense depends primarily on the nature of the offense, the tribunal said, and pointed out that driving to endanger life and property was an indictable offense before the days of automobiles.

"An automobile is, potentially, a dangerous instrumentality, as the appalling number of fatalities brought about every day by its operation bear distressing witness," the decision continued. "To drive such an instrumentality through the public streets of a city so recklessly 'as to endanger property and individuals' is an act of such obvious depravity that to characterize it as a petty offense would be to shock the general moral sense.

Little Change Foreseen.

"If the act of the respondent described in the information had culminated in the death of a human being, respondent would have been subject to indictment for some degreeof felonious homicide. Such an act properly can not be described otherwise than as a grave offense—a crime within the meaning of the third article of the Constitution—and as such within the constitutional guarantee of trial by jury."

Presiding Judge Gus A. Schuldt declined to make any official comment on the Supreme Court's action until after he had read the decision. He stated, however, that he doubted that it would materially affect Police Court procedure, stating that since the Court of Appeals had reversed the Police Court in the Colts case the latter tribunal had been granting jury trials in reckless driving cases where demanded.

Judge Schuldt expressed a doubt that the decision would have any effect on other cases which come up before the Police Court and in which jury trials are now denied.

SMITH CASE JURY STILL LACKS THREE

biased consideration to the evidence, 6 were challenged peremptorily by the Government and 7 were challenged by the defense. The three women excused after a jury had been agreed upon brought the total disqualified to 45.

Upon arraignment, the three defendants, G. Bryan Pitts, C. Elbert Anadale and John H. Edwards, jr., pleaded "not guilty." They are charged with conspiracy to embezzle approximately $5,000,000 of the Smith Co.'s funds and with concealment of documents. Pitts was formerly chairman of the board of directors of the company, Anadale was secretary and Edwards was a vice president.

The three defendants arrived yesterday morning from Florida and entered the courtroom with their attorneys after posing for news photographers. They are represented by Wilton J. Lambert, Frank G. Raichle, Edmund Toland and Dozier A. DeVane, the latter replacing Rudolph Yeatman, who has been ill.

The case is being prosecuted for the Government by Nugent Dodd, acting Assistant Attorney General, and Neil Burkinshaw, Assistant District Attorney.

Pitts Wears Florida Tan.

During yesterday's proceedings, Pitts, tanned by the Florida sun, sat among his attorneys and frequently held earnest conferences with them. Anadale and Edwards listened intently to the questioning of prospective jurors, but took little active part.

With Dodd and Burkinshaw were Louis Loebl, Aaron W. Jacobson, Charles Malone and E. L. Armbruster, Department of Justice agents, who played a large part in developing the Government's case.

The prosecution announced that it would offer more than 100 witnesses, while the defense intimated that its witnesses would number approximately 50.

Case Is Outlined.

After the pleas of not guilty had been entered by the defendants, Dodd reviewed the case for the benefit of the jury panel. He explained the circumstances under which the indictments were brought, and detailed the organization of the Smith company. He also read a lengthy list of witnesses whom the prosecution expected to call during the course of the trial.

Immediately before adjournment, Judge Hitz stated that between 30 and 40 prospective jurors are available in the courthouse for today, but that he would call a special panel of 200 if attorneys thought it necessary.

Wife and Brother Held In Slaying of Husband

Philadelphia, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—At a hearing that lasted only two minutes, Mrs. Clara Grace Prophet, 32, and her brother, Harold F. Williams, 25, were held without bail today for the action of the coroner, charged with the murder of the woman's husband, William F. Prophet, 49.

Prophet was shot to death last Saturday morning. His wife told police he had been attacked by an intruder, apparently a burglar. Saturday night she and her brother confessed that they had plotted to kill the husband and that Williams entered the house before dawn, attacked and shot the husband. Hatred for her husband and a desire to obtain insurance money was the motive, the police said.

Officers Now Believe Teacher Was Kidnaped

Fort Morgan, Colo., Nov. 24 (A.P.).—A kidnaping theory, first advanced in connection with the strange disappearance a week ago of Miss Enid Marriott, 28-year-old Wiggins, Colo., school teacher, today appeared to authorities as the most likely explanation of the case after investigation proved other clews false.

Check of other clews has led back to the Wiggins railroad station, where Miss Marriott was last seen November 16, and strengthened the belief the girl was abducted in a sedan parked near the depot by a man seen near the automobile.

DEMOCRACY IS SEEN ON TRIAL BY SHOUSE

Verdict of 1932 Will Depend on Party's Performance, Leader Asserts.

SPEAKS IN NEW JERSEY

Newark, N. J., Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Looking toward the 1932 presidential election, Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, asserted tonight that the "goal and watchword" of the Democrats for the next two years would be public service.

Addressing the Democratic Women's Luncheon Club of New Jersey, Shouse said, "Just as the election of 1930 was the judgment of the country on the failure of the Hoover administration to rise to its opportunity, so must the election of 1932 be the verdict of the Nation on the performance of the Democrats chosen in the present year."

"We are not going to be given an extension of power," he added, "unless we show ourselves more competent to be of service to the people than were the Republicans. * * * We are on trial from this time forward and on how we conduct ourselves in the period of our probation depends whether the Democratic victory just won shall be merely a flash in the pan or the beginning of a long era of Democratic rule."

Referring to the recent statement by seven Democratic leaders pledging cooperation with the administration in constructive measures, Shouse said it did not mean that "Democratic principles would be sacrificed or that the organization would become a party of yes-men for the President."

"The Democrats were pledged to public service in its broadest sense," he explained, "not only because such a course was the righteous one, and the only one by which the country could be rescued from its present plight, but because the Democrats realized that only by public service could they hope to retain the Nation's confidence.

"Our legislators will retain and reserve to themselves the decision on the validity of administration prdjects and their title to be deemed for the public good. Unfit officials will not be confirmed merely because the President sends their names to the Senate. The Democrats in Congress will not accept such measures as the Grundy tariff or assent to such subterfuges as the Hoover farm relief plan."

COMPROMISE SEEN ON MUSCLE SHOALS

Agreement on Bill Is Held Method of Averting Special Session.

CONFEREES WILL MEET

(Associated Press.)

A middle-ground through the Muscle Shoals controversy was envisioned yesterday by administration leaders in the House, as a course which might lead them away from special session pitfalls.

Caught in conference last session, between the Senate and the House, Muscle Shoals' legislation is regarded as the key log in the jam of controversial proposals clogging both branches. With its removal, administration leaders believe the way would be cleared for action on other major matters and a special session of the new Congress would be averted.

The first indication of a compromise with Senator Norris, of Nebraska, on his Government operation measure approved last spring by the Senate, came yesterday from Chairman Snell, of the House rules committee, who heretofore has resisted such legislation.

Concessions Foreseen.

Although making it clear he was opposed to the policy of Government operation of power projects, he said if a majority of Congress wanted it, he would not oppose the operation of Muscle Shoals as a Government experiment.

In addition, Representative Reece, of Tennessee, Republican conferee who sponsored the administration measure for disposal of Muscle Shoals to private interests, began a study of the bill approved by the House with a view to making certain concessions. He plans to submit his proposals to the conferees early next week when they are called in session by Senator McNary, of Oregon, chairman.

Representative Michener (Republican), Michigan, a member of the rules committee, predicted a compromise measure would be enacted before the end of the short session. He also has opposed Government operation.

Tax Increase Possible.

The Michigan member said the importance of Muscle Shoals had been overemphasized.

In outlining the prospective program for the coming session, Mr. Snell said the 1 per cent income tax reduction would not be continued. He added the country would be fortunate if taxes were not increased.

Snell said no trouble should be encountered in obtaining immigration restriction, as an unemployment measure. He also placed the long pending Capper-Kelly fair trade bill and the Norris resolution to eliminate the short sessions of Congress on the list of measures he said should be voted on at the short session.

People Want Action.

"The people of the country want Congress to vote on a lot of things," the New Yorker said. "If we get down to work we can do it and avoid a special session of the newly elected Congress."

While the program was being formulated by leaders in the House, the cooperation pledge of a Senatorial Democrats was jolted by Senator Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas, upon his return to the Capital.

"The Democratic party has been indorsed by the country," he said, "the party is not going to shirk its responsibilities or dishonor its pledges. If that leads to an extra session, we can't help it. We are going to carry out our program."

Bankruptcy Plea Filed.

Roland J. Binkert, of 4 Concord avenue northeast, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to adjudge him a bankrupt individually and as a copartner in the contracting firm of Smith & Binkert. He lists assets of $544 and liabilities of $2,293. Attorney John D. Sadler appears for the petitioner.

Alleged Taxicab Robber Is Held

Carroll E. Burkitt, 27 years old, of U street northeast near First street, alleged taxicab bandit, was held for grand jury action yesterday following his arraignment in Police Court on a robbery charge.

Burkitt was charged with robbing Millard Newman, a taxicab driver, of D street northwest near Eleventh street, on November 14. Newman testified that Burkitt hailed his cab at Fourteenth street and Florida avenue northwest and, after riding for a short distance, forced him to turn over his money. Police claim that they have six additional charges to book against the man.

Burkitt was arrested last Friday at the home of his mother near Hatfield Station, Va. Police believe that with the arrest of Burkitt they have found the man who for the last several weeks has preyed on taxicab drivers.

GUARDS AT MADRID SEARCH FOR FRANCO

WORDS HELD SEDITIOUS

Madrid, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Civil guards along all the roads leading out of Madrid were peering into every automobile and poking bayonets into every load of hay, for Maj. Ramon Franco, the idol of Spain, had escaped from his cell in an old prison on the outskirts of Madrid.

Ramon Franco is Spain's best aviator. He flew to Brazil in 1926. Last year he tried it again, came down in the ocean, and was lost for a week off the Azores.

Articles Not Approved.

A few weeks ago he was thrown into jail for writing certain political articles for newspapers, which the government did not approve. Even from his cell, it was charged, he continued the objectionable writings and on Friday he was sentenced to serve eight months in prison for alleged seditious utterances.

It was not a regular jail they put him in. It was an old convent. Franco, like most of the other prisoners there, was on his honor not to attempt an escape, and the government seemed more disappointed today that he had broken that pledge than over the fact of the escape itself.

Apparently it was some time between midnight at 3 a. m. that Franco pried open a window and dropped to freedom, taking with him Eduardo Reyes, another aviator, who was imprisoned for certain irregularities in his accounts.

Faces Worse Penalty.

Today while police were watching the homes of his relatives and friends and guarding all airports to prevent Franco's escape from the country by airplane, Premier Berenguer himself talked about the escape.

"I can't understand it," he said. "We had to punish him, but we did not really consider his offenses so very terrible, and his punishment would have been light. Now he throws all that away by breaking his word of honor not to escape. I'm awfully sorry he was so foolish, but now of course it is our duty to recapture him."

It was indicated the authorities had intended to include the quixotic flier in the list of Christmas pardons. Now, it is assumed, more serious charges will be made against him if he is recaptured.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

MRS. ALVIN T. HERT has come back to the swirl of politics from which she withdrew several months ago, apparently to serve as sort of a superstructure over the women's division of the Republican national committee.

In her capacity as a vice chairman of the committee she served as the director of the women's division in the 1928 campaign and attained such a distinction that the then chairman, Hubert Work, in a happy moment suggested her for a Cabinet post. It was a happy moment for the doctor, but his thought turned out to be a most unhappy one for both himself and Mrs. Hert.

• • • •

FOR months Mrs. Hert, who had found the business of pamphleteering the women of the country so engaging, was tossed about in such a controversy as must have made her heart ache. In fact, it did. She renounced any Cabinet aspirations that she may have had and subsequently sought to resign, sickened of the whole picture.

Then she learned that the business of politics has so many fine twists and turns that she couldn't even do this. For one thing there was a mad scramble of the women for her place.

THE women's division was finally separated from her post and she retired to her Kentucky home. Mrs. Louise M. Dodson being named director of women's activities.

Not so long ago Mrs. Dodson in order to remind the men of the party that the women's division still existed, submitted her resignation. The men either never did see the point then or professed not to have seen it and accepted the resignation. Whereupon, Senator Fess, newly appointed chairman, scouted around and picked Mrs. Ella Yost, Washington representative of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, for the place.

• • • •

MRS. YOST is the director now. Mrs. Hert's coming back is not believed to have any particular political significance. It seems that she just wanted to come back.

There will be an office fitted up for her in the Barr Building, a room befitting her rank as vice chairman. She is not to displace Mrs. Yost, but with her office she will be back in the political atmosphere again.

It is an atmosphere that is laden with both good and evil content, but it is hard to cure one after politics gets in the blood. After all, it is a lot of fun.

DISMEMBERED BODY IS POLICE MYSTERY

LAUNDRY MARK CLEW

New York, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—The dismembered legs and the torso of a man who probably was slain early yesterday were found today in widely separated parts of the city, providing police with a gruesome murder mystery.

The torso, severed from the head, was found in a trunk floating on the flood tide of the Hudson River at the foot of West Fifty-eighth street. The legs were found in a cheap and battered suitcase in front of a vacant store on the lower East Side, a short block from the East River.

Suitcase Is Reclaimed.

A suitcase containing various articles of clothing with a few identifying marks was reclaimed at a laborer's hotel by detectives with a baggage check found with the torso, and a shirt with a laundry mark inked in the collar band was found stuffed in the suitcase with the legs. No other clews to the dead man's identity were discovered.

An autopsy established that the man had been drinking heavily before he died and that the body was dismembered after death. No bullet wounds or other marks of violence were found. The only marks on the body were a faint scar on the left leg behind the kneecap and two small contusions on the right arm. The dead man was about 5 feet 8 or 9 inches tall and weighed about 155 pounds.

Severed With Great Skill.

The medical examiner said the legs and the torso had been severed with great skill. The hypothesis that the body might have been discarded by a medical student was abandoned by police after examination of the articles that were found with the legs and torso.

In the suitcase with the limbs were a cheap brown topcoat, a heather colored sweater, a black belt and a shirt bearing the laundry mark "216." Inside a coat found in the hotel was a mark such as dry cleaners use, "10x208," and a label indicating it had been sold at "George's" a retail clothing store at 34 Monroe street, Detroit. Detroit police were asked to trace the coat.

14,000-Mile Phone Conversation Held

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 24 (A.P.).—The Journal says John Candler, Atlanta capitalist, answered his telephone at 2 a. m. Saturday to hear the operator say, "hold the line for Sydney."

Mr. Candler, in a few seconds, heard the voice of Asa G. Candler, his father. The elder Candler was talking from Sydney, Australia, at 6 p. m., Saturday.

Telephone officials said the voices carried from a point near New York to Sydney, or back, by radio through London. From Atlanta to near New York the voices were carried by a land telephone system. Mr. Candler said his father had called to advise he would be home for Christmas and inquire about the health of his children and grandchildren. The distance was 14,000 miles.

FOUR PER CENT BEER IS GOAL OF BINGHAM

GREEN BACKS PROPOSAL

While the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission was continuing to delve into the intricacies of prohibition, three proposals for the return of beer were brewing in the Capital yesterday.

Labor was behind two of the moves to amend the Volstead act, while Senator Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, was the sponsor of the third. The American federation of Labor itself announced plans to fight for the return of the slightly alcoholic beverage, and a second similar proposal was promised by affiliated labor organizations, to be known as the national labor legislative committee for modification of the Volstead act.

The return of beer would aid the unemployed, "improve temperance and provide revenues for the Treasury," labor leaders declared, in revealing their plan to battle for a 2.75 per cent beverage. Senator Bingham is seeking a 4 per cent beer.

The labor legislative committee has set up temporary headquarters in Washington with a view to waging the fight at the next session of Congress. Whatever this organiation does, the American federation of Labor is pledged to seek a modification of the prohibition law, William Green, its president, said.

Senator Bingham also said that he would propose additional legislation to permit physicians to prescribe malt as well as spirituous liquors.

The law enforcement commission heard Richard H. Templeton, district attorney of Buffalo, yesterday upon reconvening after a ten-day recess. The members adjourned after listening to the testimony to study the briefs prepared during the recess.

Naval Graduates Exceed Vacancies

Only 250 Likely to Be Absorbed Out of 450 Annapolis Class.

Annapolis, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—With an unusually large class scheduled to graduate from the Naval Academy in June, and an insufficient number of posts to accommodate them, a large percentage of the graduates will not receive commissions, Commander Donald Beary, aid to the superintendent, said today.

The 1931 graduates will number between 435 and 440 of the 450 enrolled, he said, and probably not more than 250 will be commissioned. The Navy is entitled to line officers equal in number to 4 per cent of the enlisted personnel, and present enlistment sets the number of officers at 5,499. Deaths, retirements, dimissals and resignations during the past year have not been sufficient to clear the way for commissioning all of the present class.

Those members of the graduating class who do not receive commissions receive a year's pay and are dropped from the service, Commander Beary said.

Alleged Extortionist, School Boy, Paroled

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 24.—A high school boy living near Van Clevesville, who is said to have confessed sending a threatening letter to J. A. Ramsburg, Van Clevesville farmer, demanding $250 upon pain of personal harm to members of his family, was paroled here today in custody of his father. The boy was arrested two weeks ago.

The boy denied he seriously intended to carry out his threats. He said the idea of threatening Mr. Ramsburg came from reading a Wild West book, and his purpose in getting the money was to show fellow students at the high school here "how to spend money." West Virgnia law prohibits publication of the names of defendants in juvenile court.

Gas Firm May Buy Suburban Concern

Negotiations Under Way to Purchase Plant at Hyattsville.

Negotiations for purchase of the Washington & Suburban Gas Co., of Hyattsville, Md., by interests closely allied with the Washington Gas Light Co., probably will be completed this week, it was learned yesterday on reliable authority.

One of the first effects of the consolidation, it is believed, will be a reduction in rates charged consumers in the Maryland town. While these rates probably will not be as low as those now paid by Washington gas users, they will be considerably below the present Hyattsville scale.

Completion of this deal will give the District interests control of all gas business within a radius of 15 miles of Washington. It is expected that the present plant and equipment of the Hyattsville Co. will be put out of service as quickly as possible and the section will then draw its gas supplies entirely from the present main tanks in Washington.

Two Women Flee Fire When Dog Rouses Them

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 24.—The whining of a fox terrier at 4:30 o'clock this morning possibly saved the lives of Mrs. L. M. Smith and Mrs. H. O. Turner, who were awakened to find their home in flames and their exit by the door cut off. Both escaped by a window, as the fire dedpartment arrived.

The fire, evidently originating in a closet under the stairs, spread to the upper story before being detected. The house was partially demolished.

CASE AGAINST NURMI PAIR IS HELD WEAK

responsibility of its prosecution would fall to him.

"Unless more definite evidence is received than that already presented I am not sure I will prosecute the case," Prescott added. "Most of the evidence thus far tends to the suicide theory. Frankly, I believe it would be difficult to get a conviction against these two men on manslaughter charges with what we have. However, I intend to continue my present study."

To Test Pistol.

The preliminary hearing will be held before Judge Charles W. Woodward, Montgomery County police judge, in Rockville police court.

Kenneth Lyddane and Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, Rockville attorneys and counsel for McGuire, said last night that in all probability they will waive the preliminary hearing and rest their case to await action of the next Montgomery County grand jury, which meets in March.

Meanwhile both the State and defense counsel made plans to hold separate tests with the .25-caliber pearl-handled pistol which was found lying close to Nurmi's body, sprawled on the automobile driveway alongside his home in Takoma Park last Wednesday night at the end of a drinking party in which the 24-year-old Government clerk and former Business High School student caroused, according to police, with McGuire and O'Brien.

McGuire Protests Innocence.

The State will seek to establish definitely whether the pistol, with its barrel found to be rusty, fired the shot which killed Nurmi, entering the right side of the head and imbedding itself in the skull on the left side. The defense will attempt to determine at what distance from an individual the pistol can be held without leaving powder burns. The two autopsies over the body revealed that the bullet hole in Nurmi's head bore no powder burns and that the wound was smooth and clean, points which the coroner, Dr. William T. Pratt, officially reported strengthened his belief that the shot was fired from a distance.

McGuire, before his release yesterday, elaborated on previous statements in his protestations of innocence and reiterated his belief that Nurmi had committed suicide. He vigorously refuted the suggestion that he had quarreled with Nurmi at any time.

"Nurmi was not the type to quarrel," McGuire said. "Nurmi would talk solely on one subject when he was drinking, and he wouldn't give any one else a chance to talk, so there could never be any argument, and when he was sober he never had anything to say. Before the day of the party at his house I hadn't seen him for three or four days as I had been transferred to another temporary building of the Census Bureau. When I ran into Nurmi and O'Brien at the bootleg joint in southwest Washington it was the first time I had seen him in those several days."

the board in its efforts to find a solution to the surplus problem.

Only Secretary Hyde and Chairman Legge were heard yesterday. The committee will conclude its survey today with the examination of officers of the American Farm Bureau Federation, National Grange and the National Farmers' Union.

While Mr. Legge said the time was not ripe to discuss in detail his proposals to the committee, whose session was executive, members of the committee said he had expressed the belief the board, which has in excess of 100,000,000 bushels of wheat on hand, could sustain the price at around 76 cents, which now is more than 20 cents above the Liverpool market.

It also developed that the board had been selling as well as buying wheat, but Senator McNary said every bushel sold had been replaced the same day. The prospects of future board purchases also were discussed, but details were withheld.

The suggestion of Senator Capper (Republican), Kansas, a member of the committee, that 50,000,000 bushels of the Farm Board's wheat be used to feed the unemployed also was considered. Mr. Legge was of the opinion this would not increase consumption sufficiently to help.

Both Mr. Hyde and Mr. Legge took the position that short selling was detrimental to the farmer, regardless of who did the selling. Mr. Hyde, when taken to task by Senators Wheeler, Montana, and Thomas, Oklahoma, Democrats, for his criticism of short selling in the Chicago market by agents of the Soviet government, replied it was said, that his statements had been taken too seriously. He added, however, that more "elastic" or "veto" control over grain exchange rules should be vested in the Government.

Senator Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas, another member of the committee, said he would press for action this session on his bill to regulate short selling of farm commodities but at the same time permit legitimate hedging.

While the committee was in session, advocates of the export debenture, opposed by President Hoover, were discussing the advisability of another attempt for this legislation this session.

There is a division in the ranks as to whether such a measure can be initiated in the Senate.

OIL COMPANY PLANS WASHINGTON PLANT

Specifications Are Filed Here for Proposed Waterfront Development.

$85,000 IS CALLED COST

Plans for the building of a modern oil storage plant at South Capitol and Water streets were revealed yesterday by the Gulf Refining Co., of Rosslyn, Va., upon the filing of specifications with the District building inspector. The project eventually will include shipping and docking facilities on the river front.

Six buildings are to be constructed at 1724 South Capitol street and 1707 Water street at an approximate cost of $85,000. Equipment will be extra. Included in the plant will be a modern pumphouse, truck loading sheds, brick garage, a boiler and pumphouse, storage warehouses and oil containers.

Constructed of brick and concrete, the buildings will be steam heated and have flat sag roofs. The main structure will have nine rooms, while the others will have no partitions.

Capt. E. N. Chisholm, jr., engineer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, expressed himself as favoring an industrial development in the Buzzards Point region, where the oil plant is to be built. The commission has opposed the construction of any wharves on the Virginia side of the Potomac River on the grounds that it would mar the proposed parkway.

The Sun Oil Co. recently made an unsuccessful attempt to obtain permission to obtain a permit for building a wharf just above Key Bridge at Rosslyn.

"When I Visited—I Found"

Says

ROBERT H. DAVIS

("Bob" Davis)

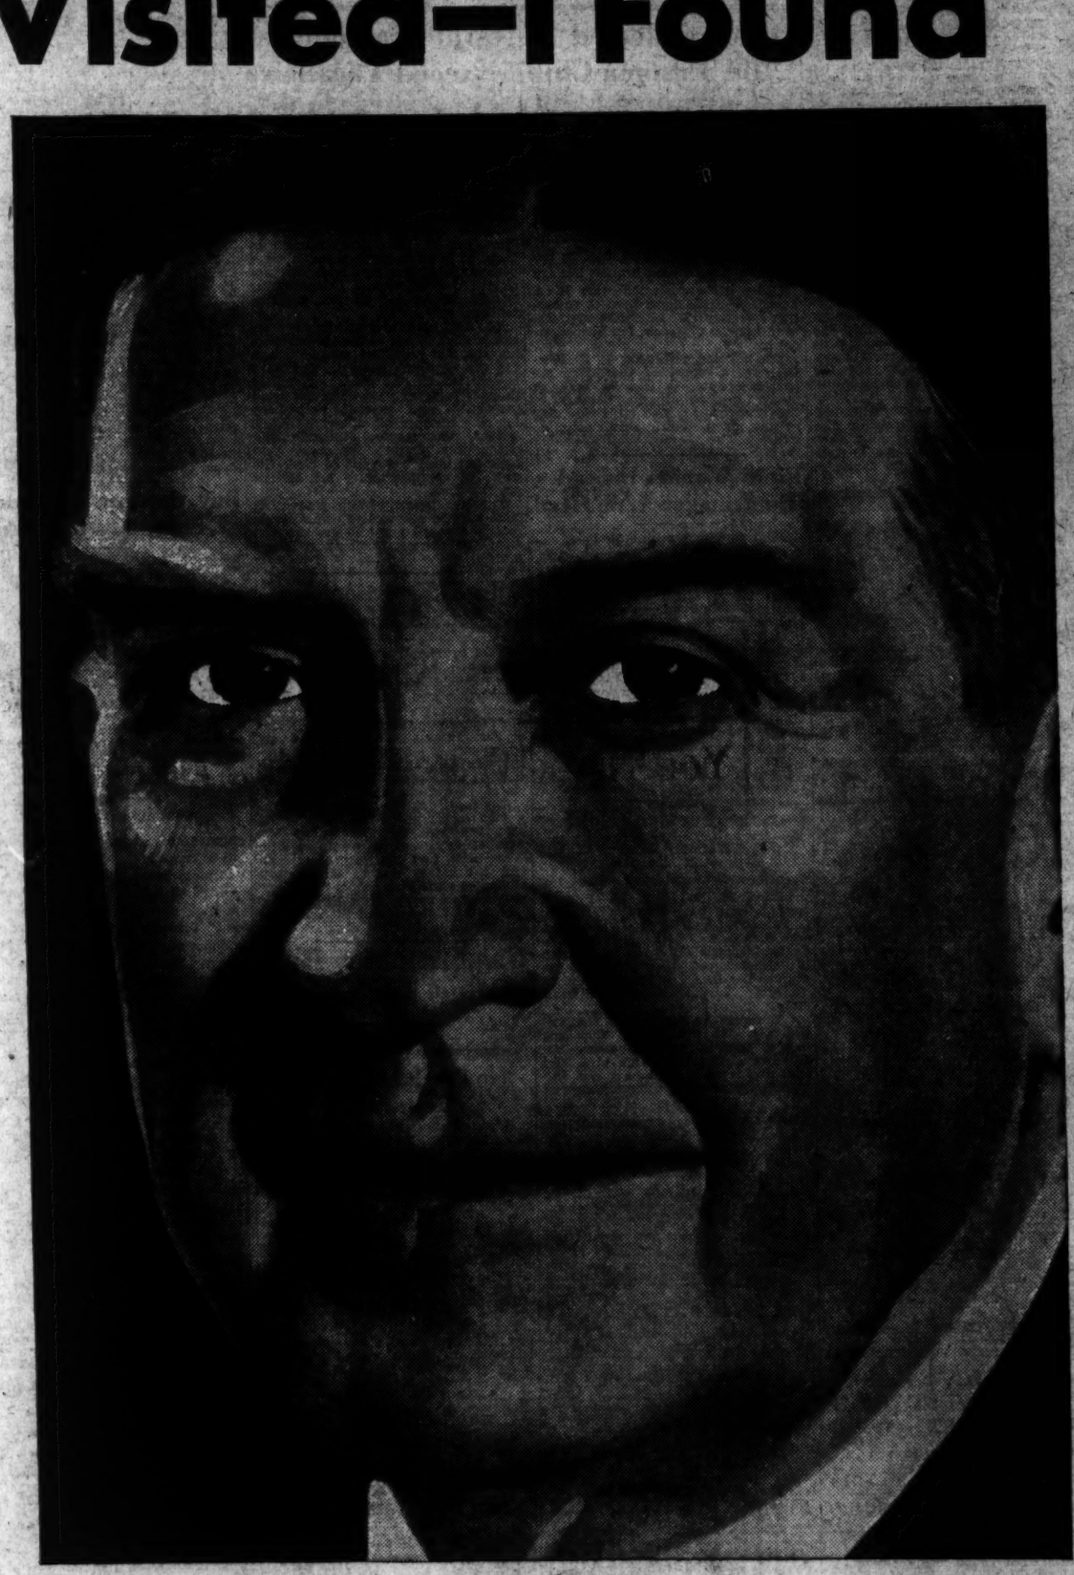
Newspaper Correspondent

"Winning the public's favor is no longer a matter of shouting from the housetops—today you must offer them something concrete. When I visited Reidsville and went through the LUCKY STRIKE plant, I found one explanation for the growth of LUCKY STRIKE. Your use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of the tobaccos is a splendid example of achievement. It is the new order of the day."

Robert H. Davis

Consistent with its policy of laying the facts before the public, The American Tobacco Company invited Mr. Robert H. Davis to personally witness and to review the reports of the distinguished men who have witnessed LUCKY STRIKE'S famous Toasting Process and report his findings. The statement of Mr. Davis appears on this page.



Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray. LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating!

TWO-CENT CAR FARE BILL ACTION IS SEEN

UTILITY MERGERS PEND

Early action will be taken by the Senate District committee on the bill providing 2-cent car fare for school children, Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, chairman of the committee, told the Public Utilities Commission in a letter sent yesterday to Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, retired, commission chairman.

The letter to Gen. Patrick invited comment by the commission on the 2-cent car fare bill and other District public utilities legislation pending in the Senate or before the District committee.

Another letter was addressed to the District Commissioners asking them for whatever suggestions they might care to offer on District legislation for the coming session, which convenes next Monday.

Warns of Limited Time.

Inviting the Commissioners to submit whatever new legislation they might care to propose at this time, Senator Capper added that "it might be well to bear in mind that this Congress will adjourn on March 3 next. All legislation then pending will expire.

"I know that I can speak for the committee in stating that prompt and careful consideration will be given to any and all recommendations the Commissioners may make, but the activities of Congress necessarily will be affected by the restricted time of the session."

Possible amendment on the Senate floor of some of the utilities measures which have been put on the Senate calendar by the committee was suggested to Gen. Patrick.

District Matters Before Senate.

"There are," Senator Capper wrote the general, "before the Senate the proposals for merger of the street railway companies and of the gas companies of the District; also the bill to limit the jurisdiction of the local courts in appeals from Public Utilities Commission orders. Does the commission recommend passage of these measures in their present form, or does it care to suggest amendments that may be offered from the floor when the bills are considered in the Senate?

"The Senate District committee, probably will wish to take early action on H. R. 12571, the bill to provide a two-cent street car fare for school children. If you have any suggestions whereby the administrative features of this bill may be improved, I hope that you will send them to me as soon as possible. I also shall be glad to receive any recommendations of the Commission on any pending or proposed legislation."

Judge Warns Aged Feudists To Curb "Youthful Spirits"

Warning both men to curb their "youthful spirits," Judge Isaac R. Hitt in Police Court yesterday took the personal bond of William Samuel Walker, 75 years old, Pennsylvania avenue northwest, near Four-and-a-half street, not to repeat an assault on Henry Myer, 93 years old, of the same address.

Myer appeared for the trial with his head swathed in bandages, the result of eleven stitches taken to close a wound administered by Walker with a piece of iron. Walker's defense was that Myer was advancing on him with a club when he struck. The fight is said to have started following a three weeks' feud which began when Myer stepped on Walker's foot. The battle occurred Sunday.

As he sat on the edge of his bed in the small room at his boarding hotel, following the hearing yesterday Myer recalled coming to Washington 41 years ago. He said that he had left his home in Texas near the Rio Grande 77 years ago, just after the Mexican War.

When a photographer's flashlight boomed, the 93-year-old youngster blinked and sighed. "I like to smell powder burning," he declared. "You know I am a fighting man, a veteran of the Southern Army in the Civil War."

Myer is nearly blind and finds his way about his lodgings with the aid of a cane. He has lived there for six years but says he would move except for the fear that he "might get in trouble" if he went somewhere else.

He declared doctors at the hospital told him to return tomorrow for additional treatment. When some one suggested that he call an ambulance for the trip, the veteran stretched to his full height and made the announcement that he would "walk there" and that he could "do anything any one else could, except see so well."

Pair Loses Fight To Escape Death

Conviction of Mrs. Schroeder and W. Glenn Dague Is Upheld on Appeal.

Philadelphia, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—The State Supreme Court today upheld the conviction with death penalty of Mrs. Irene Schroeder and W. Glenn Dague, convicted for the murder of a State highway patrolman near New Castle, Pa., nearly a year ago.

The patrolman, Corporal Brady Paul, was killed when he sought to question the pair about a holdup.

The girl and Dague formerly lived in Wheeling, W. Va., where she was a waitress. She left her husband and Dague left his wife. Police were seeking them for a holdup in Butler, Pa., when Corporal Paul stopped their automobile on the highway.

Th pair fled westward and was captured weeks later in Arizona after a gun fight with deputy sheriffs, one of whom was killed.

Cure in Infantile Paralysis Claimed

Newly Discovered Serum Held Five Times Stronger Than That Now Used.

New York, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—A new serum, five times as strong as any heretofore available for infantile paralysis, and its efficacious use in more than 57 cases were reported to the New York County Medical Society tonight.

The serum is produced in horses, and was developed by Drs. M. Neustadter, of the Neurological Hospital, at Welfare Island, and E. J. Banshaf, an assistant director of the New York Bureau of Laboratories.

Dr. Neustadter announced it has been proved definitely that horse serum has neutralizing volume for infantile paralysis.

"It is as harmless as any other antitoxin," he added, "and is superior to human convalescent serum, because it can be standardized, obtained in large quantities and is always available."

A HALT ON IMMIGRATION.

Senator Reed's proposal to halt immigration for two years is in line with the policy that has already been adopted by the administration. Early in September President Hoover instructed the Department of Labor to exclude all prospective immigrants who are liable to become public charges. In view of the limited opportunities for finding work in the United States, this had the effect of denying visas to practically all applicants of the laboring class. This policy has been in operation for two months and has brought about a sharp decrease in immigration. The influx of laborers over the Mexican border has been almost stopped. Restrictions can be made more drastic only by action of Congress.

"The welfare of our people must take precedence over the desire of aliens to enter the United States," Senator Reed said. "Every arriving alien who comes here to earn a living in times like the present either displaces some one now at work or becomes in some degree a public charge. To permit new immigrants to enter the country at this time is unfair to both our own workers and to those who come expecting to find work."

This position is fundamentally sound. It has the support of Secretary of Labor Davis and of all organized labor. Senator Reed thinks his resolution will meet with almost unanimous approval in Congress. Certainly it will be supported by public opinion.

It should be remembered that this proposed resolution would not define the policy of the United States on immigration, but would merely put into effect temporary regulations to meet the economic emergency. The whole question of immigration needs to be studied with a view to admitting only those foreigners for whom there is economic need in the United States. There should be complete exclusion while the country is regaining its equilibrium.

UNDER THE WHITE MAN'S LAW.

As one of the first steps toward assimilating the Indian race with the economic life of the country, the Board of Indian Commissioners recommends legislation that will make members of the tribes under Federal jurisdiction amenable to the law of the land. Nearly all reservation superintendents are of the opinion that the Indians have reached a state of civilization where it is advisable to judge them by the white man's law.

Under present conditions State and county law enforcement officials have no right to enter upon Federal Indian lands, and the tribes live according to their own laws and the Federal regulations set up for them. So long as this privileged status continues, the process of assimilating the Indian obviously will be retarded. The Indian must learn to abide by the white man's law before he can successfully become an integral part of modern society.

The reasons why the board makes this recommendation are convincing. "Millions of acres of allotted Indian lands," its report says, "have passed to white ownership. On most reservations Indians and whites are near neighbors. Thickly settled areas environ many Indian communities, many of which are in close proximity to large towns. Thousands of Indian children attend the public schools with white children, and most Indians have, in considerable degree, adopted the ways of white men. Most of them know what the laws of the land require; understand their purposes and the consequences of breaking them. Most Indians are sufficiently advanced to be brought under the same laws which their white neighbors must obey or be in peril of punishment."

This recommendation may find a place in President Hoover's message to Congress. It will have the support of all who believe that the Indians are ready to bear the white man's burden.

INDIA STANDS UNITED.

One of the unexpected developments of the India Conference, now in session in London, is the accord reached among the representatives of the several social groups. Early in the conference the ruling princes made their bid for dominion status. Later the Moslems and the Hindus let it be known that they had come to an agreement whereby each religious group would concede to the other representation in an Indian government in proportion to its numbers. Finally the delegate representing the "untouchables" presented the bid of his people for dominion status, and it became known that other delegates had agreed in writing that any all-Indian government would accord the "untouchables" representation in proportion to their numbers.

India has presented a united front against Britain in the conference. The mere fact that the several groups have found common ground upon which to stand is an achievement of immense significance. And yet, a wide gulf exists between the conference and the formation of an Indian government in which all groups will be represented. When the conference becomes only a memory, whether a new government be evolved for India or not, somewhere in India a meat-eating Moslem will slaughter a cow and cow-worshipping Hindus will be stirred to violence; an "untouchable," emboldened by the promise of political recognition, will make an attempt to enter a temple, and riots will result. The caste system of India is rooted in time and prejudice. Modern India, particularly the so-called Youth Movement, is making strides toward its abolition, but it is a task of decades and perhaps of centuries.

Nevertheless, the mere fact that India has presented a united front against Britain in the negotiations makes the British government's problem doubly difficult. For the first time in 150 years of British rule the system of playing one element against the other has failed to work. All India, regardless of caste, demands the status of a dominion of the British Empire.

HIGHER RAILROAD PAY.

While leaders of the five major railroad brotherhoods were meeting in Cleveland formulating a program for the relief of unemployment, the principal feature of which is the substitution of the six-hour working day with eight hours' pay for the present eight-hour day, the Association of Railroad Executives was meeting in New York writing a declaration of future policy stressing the need of the roads to be relieved of further demands calculated to reduce their income. The executives stressed the new competition and the fact that the roads never have been able to earn the rate of return suggested by the transportation act of 1920 as fair, and stated that the insistent demands for rate reductions and the declining traffic forced them to adopt a militant attitude for the protection of their "rights." The brotherhoods, which claim a membership of 500,000, of which more than 100,000 are at present unemployed, cite the technological improvements in the handling of rail traffic and the consolidation movement as having caused a shrinkage in labor demand which they expect to continue indefinitely into the future.

The two interests are radically opposed. The brotherhoods have seized upon the six-hour day as offering the only hope of reducing unemployment, but the roads are so sorely pressed financially that it does not seem that they could stand at this time a blanket 25 per cent increase in their labor pay roll. This is what it would mean for the roads to go on a six-hour day basis without reducing the day's pay.

Between the original demand for the six-hour day and final action on the demand a bitter battle may ensue. The eight-hour day for railroad workers was established by Congress in the Adamson act. Presumably, the brotherhoods, if they uphold their leaders in demanding the reduction in working hours, would put the demand before the railroad executives, and should the request be refused, the matter would go before the Federal Mediation Board. If that body should not act, the brotherhoods would call on the President to appoint an emergency arbitration board. In any event, the final court of appeal would be Congress, which had the final say in the establishment of the eight-hour day.

Troubled days seem to lie ahead for the railroads. Whether or not Congress undertakes to regulate the competitive agencies of transportation, they will continue to draw from the rail carriers an increasing volume of traffic. Shippers will continue to clamor for rate reductions. The brotherhoods have to carry forward programs to keep their members employed. How the various opposing interests can be reconciled and the railroads placed on a firm financial basis constitutes a problem of major importance.

SAFETY IN ELEVATORS.

Local building regulations require that elevators shall be equipped with safeguards to prevent their falling in the event a cable should break or the elevating mechanism fail. These regulations should be rigidly enforced, inasmuch as an elevator is potentially extremely dangerous. An elevator fell in Washington this week when one of its supporting cables snapped. Fortunately the cab carried no passengers when the cable gave way.

The certificate of inspection that must be posted in the elevator cab is considered ample assurance by the public that it is safe to use the lift. While it is true that accidents are always apt to happen, even though every precaution is taken against them, the recent crash causes apprehension. Are the elevators in Washington buildings safe? Does the building inspector have a force sufficiently large to make possible regular and frequent inspection? Is the regulation requiring the installation of approved safety devices generally observed by building owners?

WHAT IS MAN?

Sir Arthur Eddington makes man very small, indeed. His Sunday address in London, which was broadcast to half the world, asked humanity to contemplate its own insignificance. He pictures the earth as the fifth or sixth largest planet, belonging to a solar system of inferior grade in one of the numerous islands of an archipelago of universes. Man, he says, might be the result of "just a trifling hitch" in the machinery which normally collects matter in big lumps at terrifically high temperatures.

"It may possibly be going too far," he said, "to say our bodies are pieces of stellar matter which, by a contingency not sufficiently guarded against, have taken advantage of the low temperature to assume an unusual complication and to perform a series of strange antics which we call life. But I do not combat this view even if I doubt its tenability. I keep an open mind."

Comparison is never more odious or useless than when man is drawn to the scale of infinity. It would be less absurd to contemplate ants operating a city the size of New York. The maze of universes on which astronomers cast their longing eyes is beyond the comprehension of man; therefore, he gives little thought to it. But a man's a man for a' that. The problems of life are no less momentous to the individual facing them, because that individual himself is only a speck, a "bit of a star gone wrong."

Fortunately, Sir Arthur did not leave man in the utter insignificance to which he at first consigned him. Before he had finished he had endowed mere man with some of the attributes of God. "It may happen some day," he said, "that science will be able to show how, from the entities of physics, creatures may be formed which are counterparts of ourselves, even to the point of being endowed with life." This puts man in an entirely new light, because the creation of life is probably the supreme achievement of all time.

Is man to be considered a "bit of a star gone wrong" or a creator? The very ramifications of Sir Arthur's intellect seem to indicate that man strikes a fair balance between the two.

PSYCHOLOGY OF DRIVERS

By DR. WALTER V. BINGHAM,
In the Scientific Monthly.

Distinguished psychologists in Europe and America have delved into the mysteries of human motive and habit, attention and distraction, visual acuity, reaction-time, susceptibility to fatigue, self-control and other aspects of human nature in search of obscure causes of proneness to accident and ways of removing them. Our colleagues in England have studied the relation of accidents to proficiency and to various differences of ability and personality. They early proved that accidents do not just happen; they are not distributed according to the laws of chance. In studying records of accidents among factory employes, street-car motormen, automobilists and bus drivers we, too, have found that more than half the accidents occur to a relatively small proportion of the men. These are the accident-prone people, the repeaters. They have had the same training and supervision as the others. They see the same posters and take part in the same safety drives. Yet they continue to have accidents. So the problem of the industrial psychologist is clearly that of developing the most effective ways of studying these accident-prone persons and helping them to overcome their particular tendencies.

Accidents have been largely reduced where this psychological approach has been added to the more familiar forms of effective safety effort—on the street railways and bus services of Boston, for example, where we have had opportunity during the past three years to cooperate with the management, study the problem in detail and observe the benefits to employes and public which have followed the use of the measures recommended. There, under my direction, continuing studies have been carried forward and practical aids developed and installed. Collision accidents have been reduced one half.

One of the important points we have been investigating is the relation between slight mishaps and serious accidents. Wherever adequate records have been made available, we have found that those people who have a large number of minor accidents are on the average more apt to meet with a serious disaster some day. The problem is how best to discover these accident-prone men and help them to become skillful, safe operators before they meet with a bad accident. Nearly all these men are just as anxious to avoid accidents as any one. They do not know why they so often have "tough luck" as they call it. It is our duty to find out why they have such bad luck and then help them to develop correct habits and right mental attitudes so that they can more surely avoid accidents. This has been done with marked success. The resulting decrease in accidents has been brought about, I am proud to say, not by discharging the men with bad accident records and hiring others, but by helping these men to change their ways and become competent, careful drivers. What these men have done, others can do. I believe you will agree that a large majority of the automobile accidents happening today are really quite unnecessary.

I am often asked whether men or women make the better drivers. Women have fewer accidents than men, but this is not because they are better drivers on the average. It is because they do not do so much driving. When men and women have a chance to operate the same kind of vehicle over the same streets for the same number of hours a day, the women have about three times as many collisions as the men. This fact came to light in a study of men and women taxicab operators in Philadelphia, published in the Personnel Journal for February, 1929.

Women and girls have the advantage over men in at least one regard. Not nearly so many of them are color-blind. They rarely have any trouble in telling red from green. But the latest researches show that about one man in twelve is born with this peculiarity of the retina. When a driver runs by a red light it is sometimes because his eyes are defective in this respect. Curiously enough, many such drivers are quite unaware that they have this handicap.

POESY.

It served no common purpose; added naught
To any man's advantage for the day.
'Twas just a line of beauty nicely wrought,
A few brief words in fanciful array.

Prices of this and that remained the same,
The mile men had to trudge was still a mile.
No dreary journey easier became,
Its benefit could not be proved worth while.

It bettered nothing human eyes could see.
Men still grew weary at their daily toil.
Death, pain and loss and shame and misery

Impractical this bit of beauty seemed,
And yet for some strange reason, day and night,
Men grasped the pretty fancy he had dreamed
And found in it both comfort and delight.

Remove Self-Restraint and Self-Denial and the Basis of Civilization Is Gone.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

AMONG the thousands of self-appointed mentors who attempt to advise boys are numerous irresponsible men who have no boys of their own, have no acquaintance with boys, and neither know nor care how boys will be affected by their advice.

Their one desire is to display their own "freedom from superstition"—which means their lack of decent moral standards.

"Youth," they say, "has certain natural appetities which should not be denied. The impulse to mate is a biological necessity and must be obeyed to preserve mental and physical health. To suppress the impulse merely because our unnatural economic system makes early marriage impossible is to violate nature and rob youth of its rights. The urge to mate is proof that mating is natural and necessary.

That will sound very plausible to the shallow in search of an alibi. Those willing to fool themselves in order to justify acts condemned by the common conscience of mankind will welcome it as a means of saving their self-respect. But the boy who has wit enough to recognize facts and courage enough to face them will see the fallacy in it at first glance.

The urge to mate is proof that mating is natural—when the time comes for mating.

The time for mating is when the mates are ready and able to set up an establishment of their own and fend for themselves and their young.

Nature is responsible for the mating instinct, but there is no reason in nature why the sons of men should be less continent and less decent than the birds and the higher beasts.

The equipment needed by adults is not completed in a day, and nature begins its development long before it is required. The tiger's cub develops claws while it still lives on milk; the young bird develops wings long before it is ready to fly. A capacity for love doesn't indicate ability to support a household.

The theory that natural impulses can be obeyed without wrong is absurd and vicious.

The child's natural impulse is to take, but it must learn that taking is stealing.

Natural impulses prompt the young to be deceitful, to be selfish, to show temper, to disregard rules, to strike blows in anger; but they must learn to suppress these impulses to keep pace with civilization.

Moral rules are the minted wisdom of the ages. They are as "natural" as fruit on a mature tree. And to disregard them in the name of liberty is to fall short of the standards that make a civilized man.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

Revising the Record.

Cleveland Press.

To call a senator "The fellow from Nevada" would be a step in the right direction—but not an accomplishment of the goal.

The whole desideration will not be filled until the Congressional Record sparkles with such lines as these:

"Will the Weak Sister from Ohio yield to the Wild Jackass from Alabama?"

"The High-Binder from Pennsylvania has the floor."

"The chair will recognize the Big Tattle-Tale from Iowa."

Dry Reorganization.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

There are obvious reasons why the transfer of leadership for the prohibition campaign from the professional reformers who hold salaried positions on church boards and in dry organizations to men of high standing in the world of affairs may be beneficial to the cause. There are many drys who are far from being in sympathy with the methods of the Antisaloon League. Some church officials also have aroused antagonism by their dictatorial attitude and their assumption of authority to speak for all their fellow members. Signs have been accumulating lately of a revolt among the laymen in the dry ranks against the professional leaders. These laymen have felt that there has been too much effort to raise a moral issue at the expense of arguments which might have more weight with the voters.

Henry J. Allen, mentioned for an important foreign post and mentioned for national secretary of the Republican party, let it be known yesterday that he isn't looking for any job just now at the hands of the administration. He will get into his car and "motor leisurely back to Kansas." Mr. Allen does not have to worry about his next job. He can be as philosophical about it as was Andrew Mellon a few years ago when his possible retirement as Secretary of the Treasury was discussed in the press. When asked what he was going to do Mr. Mellon said he did not know and added, "The Lord will provide."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Parking of Cars a Major Problem Already—What About Congestion When Government Buildings Are Completed?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have a half-dozen friends who, although they live a considerable distance from downtown Washington, leave their automobiles at home, preferring to ride to and from work in street cars or buses rather than be obliged to park their cars from five to a dozen or more blocks distant from their place of employment. Again, the wives of several of my friends accompany their husbands to the downtown areas, drive the car home, and return to take the workers home after hours. As the parking situation grows daily more acute, thousands of others will be obliged to leave their machines at home.

The parking situation ranks among the foremost problems with which the cities of the United States will have to deal within the next decade. Many cities are already actively engaged in attempts to solve it—with plans for triple-decked streets to relieve congestion, skyscraper garages for day and night parking, free municipal parking grounds, &c.

In Washington the problem will soon become the chief topic of conversation. When the Federal Government is finally housed, for the most part, in one compact set of buildings, the automobiles of its employes now parked in widely scattered sections will for the most part be parked in one or two areas. At present, the thickest parking section in this city is that below Pennsylvania avenue. This area will soon give way to public buildings and public parks. Another parking area will have to be found, but that will only add to the problem. Each of the new Federal buildings has an auto parking basement, but the number of cars these can accommodate is limited; besides, only officials of the various divisions in these Federal buildings will be permitted to use such basements for parking purposes.

One has but to stand on Pennsylvania avenue even today, when only one of these new buildings has been completed and occupied, to see what lies ahead. If one travels, mentally, up and down Pennsylvania avenue during the "rush" hour at 4:45 p. m., when the Federal employes and those from the municipal center and from the stores and office buildings are all scrambling to get home, one will see the makings of mutilations and tragedy. Indeed, one not without its accompanying tragedy, or tragedies.

Something must be done about it soon. Why now now?

MOTORIST.

Dr. Rossell Says All Alcohols Except for Medicine and Food Are Poisoned by the Government.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in The Post of November 22 entitled "Deadly Wood Alcohol," is excellent and timely. There is, however, one point which you did not make, and which should be emphasized. As a rule, motorists do not use menthol for their antifreeze mixtures. What they really use is "Government-poisoned alcohol," officially known as "completely denatured alcohol." This is a mixture made according to a formula prescribed by the prohibition regulations and compounded under the supervision of Governmental agents. It consists of 200 parts of pure grain alcohol, 20 parts of wood alcohol and one part of kerosene.

Then there are other forms of "Government-poisoned alcohol." Practically all kinds of alcoholic fluids, except medicinal or food preparations, are poisoned in some way, in accord with the prohibition regulations. For example, massage alcohol, bay rum, hair tonic and perfumes are all adulterated with powerful poisons, which may produce serious injury if the fluid should be accidentally swallowed or should enter the eyes. And this adulteration is done by order of the prohibition regulations, the object being to prevent the fluids from being used for beverage purposes.

The industrial alcohol division of the Treasury Department and the Prohibition Bureau between them have full control of all kinds of "Government-poisoned alcohol." The adulterants are prescribed by law, and the adulteration is done under the supervision of officials.

HUGH B. ROSSELL.

Writer Thinks Prohibition a Petty Quarrel as Compared With Great Questions of the Past.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There was a time when Jefferson and Hamilton fought, one as the champion of States' rights and the other for a strong centralized government. Their fight was heroic, and out of it the growth of the young republic was stabilized.

Jackson, Clay, Calhoun and Webster had their day discussing questions which were fundamentally involved in the development of the United States. Then came the struggle between the Federal Union and seceding States, and so on following the Civil War arose questions of progress and readjustment worth the serious consideration of the electorate.

In shameful contrast with the past, too much of our time during the next two years, if not longer, seems likely to be wasted in futile hair-splitting and angry squabbling in regard to whether or how the eighteenth amendment shall be repealed or modified.

Whether the Government or the States shall regulate our drinks; whether we shall be a light wine and beer or a whisky drinking people; what shall be the alcoholic content of intoxicating-in-fact potations—these and such as these are a fine lot of issues to take up the time of statesmen and scholars!

On Thanksgiving Day the wet-and-dry shindy should give way to real thoughts on realities. The quarrel over prohibition is unworthy of the American people. F. P. G.

ECONOMIC MENACE FROM RUSSIA SEEN

Two National Figures Talk at Meeting of Coalition of Patriotic Groups.

EMBARGO IS PROPOSED

Soviet Russia is an economic threat, overshadowing any menace to the United States through dissemination of Communistic propaganda, two national figures told the American Coalition of Patriotic Societies' advisory board at its annual meeting opening yesterday at the Carlton Hotel.

The group, which coordinates the activities of 57 well-known patriotic, fraternal and civic organizations in a move to "keep America American," heard the warning from Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., of New York, chairman of the special House committee investigating Communist activities, and Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor.

"At the present moment the economic system in Russia is an immediate menace to the prosperity of our American wheat and grain farmers, to our entire lumber industry," declared Representative Fish, "and to our oil and manganese industries, the latter having already been demoralized by dumping into the United States at a cost far below our cost of production.

"I do not consider the revolutionary doctrines of the Communists in the United States to be a real menace to our form of government, but they are a serious threat."

Mr. Woll, in stressing his contention that the Soviet system, through dumping, tends to drag down American free labor, characterized Russia as "not so much a world menace as it is a world nuisance, a disease that calls for quarantine. He urged an embargo on various Soviet products.

Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, commandant of the United States Military Academy, in a talk which also was broadcast over an extensive hook-up by the National Broadcasting Co., stressed the "immediate need of West Point for 15,000 additional acres of land adjacent to the reservation to the south."

Richmond, Va., Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Pumpkin pie may be scarce, but Virginians will have more turkeys for Thanksgiving. The drought is estimated to have cost Virginia agriculture $100,000,000, but the Federal-State crop reporting service says turkeys thrived on it. The crop is bigger than usual.

Shake-Up Is Seen In Cuban Cabinet

Difficulties With Students Are Believed Near Solution.

Havana, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Rumors spread today, despite official denial, that a cabinet shake-up would be the outcome of the disturbances which have placed Havana and environs under martial law. It is reported that President Machado's close friend, Carlos Miguel de Cespedes, secretary of public works, will step out.

Other information says Octavo Averoff will resign as secretary of public instruction and likely will be succeeded either by Col. Serafin Espinosa or Hernandez Cartaya.

It was understood tonight the difficulties with students, leaders in most of the summer disorders, are nearer settlement and university classes will be resumed the first of the year. Part of the quieting trend is credited to businessmen, who saw that internal strife was injuring the economic situation and therefore went to work to establish order.

Democrats Report Deficit.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 24 (Special).—The Democratic central committee of Allegheny County spent $8,193.76 in the recent campaign and has a deficit of $498.80, according to a report filed today by Robert E. King, treasurer. The Republican organization spent $5,067.15, leaving a balance of $22.73.

India Round Table Begins Real Task

Federal Relations Group Increases Membership at First Meeting.

London, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—After a week of speeches the Indian round table conference today began the task of translating into the realities of a federal India the hopes and aspirations voiced by all shades of Indian opinion represented. The federal relations committee, on which the brunt of the work falls, met today for the first time and its first decision was that the 32 members originally named were insufficient. The membership was increased to 49, including all members of the British government delegation.

The next meeting of the committee has been set for Friday. This committee will virtually be the round table conference itself. Wedgewood Benn, secretary of state for India, will act as chairman, giving Prime Minister MacDonald time for attending sessions of the House of Commons, where his presence is needed.

Bolivian Fliers' Bodies Await Return to La Paz

Rosario, Argentina, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—The remains of three Bolivians, who sought to blaze a trail by air from the sea to the capital of their land-locked fatherland, rested today, ashes and crumpled bones, in the urns at the Bolivian consulate awaiting transportation to La Paz.

Tragedy overtook their flight when their Junkers plane, El Condor de Bolivia, was less than three hours out of El Palomar Airdrome, Buenos Aires, from where they began the 1,600-mile trip to La Paz at 1:25 a. m. Saturday.

Ford Test Plane Crash Kills Two Craft Bursts Into Flames After Hour in Air, While Landing.

Detroit, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Two employes of the Ford Motor Co. were killed when their trimotored experimental plane crashed in flames, on the Ford Airport at Dearborn at 11:06 a. m. today.

The dead are Myron E. Zeller, 24, of Dearborn, the pilot, and Carl Wensel, 30, of River Rouge, the mechanic. The two men had been in the air for about an hour, and were returning to the airport when their ship caught fire. Heller managed to bring the plane to the earth nearly at the center of the field, after their flaming descent had been witnessed by hundreds of persons, including Henry Ford.

As the plane landed it turned over and was enveloped in flames. Both men were burned to death before firemen were able to rescue them.

Envoy Scorns Auto Car for Jinrickisha

Chinese Lift Eyebrows Over Mr. Johnson's Preferences.

IN the daily life of one American diplomat the humble rikisha has come into its own. Neither the mild lifting of eyebrows nor meaning glances in the diplomatic quarters of ancient Peiping have served to disturb the insistence of the American Minister to China, Mr. Nelson T. Johnson, on riding to formal affairs in characteristic Chinese fashion—by means of the jin-rikisha. Of automobiles—there are plenty—in the quarters of the Far Eastern envoy—but more often than not, they take second place as a means of transportation for Mr. Johnson.

This adherence to the customs of the "celestial kingdom," persisted in by the tactful envoy probably is an index to the popularity attained by Mr. Johnson since he succeeded Mr. John Van A. McMurray nearly a year ago. Too, the minister's scholarly interest in all things oriental, including the difficult language, has created a favorable impression among high circles in the Far Eastern republic.

An inveterate traveler, the minister's continuous journeys throughout China have made for him the reputation of being the most widely traveled diplomat in that country. He recently returned from a two weeks' trip to the Hopei-Shansi Suiyan border, part of the journey made on foot, when the party accompanying him made 25 miles a day, part of the trip on an open freight car or on horseback.

Mr. Johnson's democratic ways have pleased the Chinese officials, aristocrats and common people as much as his knowledge of their language. When he was chosen to follow the former minister, Mr. MacMurray, also familiar with the intricacies of the Chinese language, the republic beyond the Pacific expressed distinct pleasure, inasmuch as their language is the most difficult to master.

A student interpreter in China 20 years ago the present minister has spent much of his time in the Far East, serving at Mukden, Harbin, Hangkow, Shanghai and other Chinese cities until his knowledge of that quaint land embraces a far-flung area. Tis travels today often are made incognito in order to avoid official calls and frequently he is mistaken for a missionary, due to his fluent Chinese.

At the time of his appointment last December Mr. Johnson was serving in Washington as Assistant Secretary of State and as one of the few bachelors at that itme in the "little cabinet" his departure from the Capital was much regretted. For the new minister the appointment to the Chinese post was almost like going back home—so many years had he spent in the Orient.

And now from Shanghai and as far up the Yangtse Valley as Hankow the envoy travels almost constantly to keep in touch with "things Chinese," making contacts here and there, considering the unsettled state of the war-ridden country and its attendant dangers as quite inconsequential—just as he ignores the uplifted eyebrows of society when he goes jinricki-shaing to dinner.

What Today Means to You

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF November 25 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 4:40 p. m. to 7 p. m. The hours in which to be careful are from 7:30 a. m. to 9 a. m. and from 8:30 p. m. to 9:30 p. m.

Astrological influences on this date will make both happiness and a moderate degree of success accessible. Unusual experiences of minor importance, but thrilling in nature, may be expected. A new friend, who will prove sincere and helpful, may come into your life.

The child born on this November 25, if it be a boy, will be a little Robinson Crusoe and able to fend for itself. It should have a good physical vitality, a stout weapon for the battle of the years. If it be a girl, she will care more for books and sports than dolls and will have a wise little head. She will also be able to fight her own battles with a nimble tongue.

You have a very intuitive and prophetic nature, and you should experience some unusual and interesting evidences of mental telepathy. You quickly sense things without being told, especially any inharmonious vibrations. You feel forebodings of impending evils, and your hunches are usually a cause of worry to you.

You have very good mind control and seem to possess only one thought at a time, and this thought carries you on to the goal you wish to reach. Sagittarius is the sign of the archer, and those born under its influence shoot from their bow the arrow which seldom misses its mark. You always look forward with a bright and happy disposition, trusting and believing that the future state is to be far better than any that has preceded it. You are never afraid to look around the corner. You have such a decisive way of expressing yourself that you carry belief with your words. You have the ability to sense the weak spot in others, and when angered you know exactly where to hurt.

You should live in the open air as much as possible, as it will strengthen your vitality. There is a tendency to overexertion on your part, and experience will teach you the limit of your strength and endurance. Vocations favored by those born in this sign comprise teaching, the ministry, law, astronomy and designing. You never like to leave things unfinished.

Successful people born November 25:
Arthur Sewall, shipbuilder.
Andrew Carnegie, ironmaster.
Bliss Perry, author and editor.
Ethelbert Nevin, composer.
Alice Ames Winter, author and clubwoman.
Cecil F. P. Bancroft, educator.

Dare Interprets the Mode

New York, Nov. 24.

"O-O-O-O-H, I simply have to have that!"

And that she forthwith buys, and sometimes the elation of having secured a bargain, a real bargain and nothing but a bargain, sustains her throughout the wearing life of the article—and sometimes it doesn't.

There is a way to assure yourself of real bargains. And that is to stop and ask yourself if the thing advertised for sale, or sold at such a small price that it entices you by its cheapness is a cheaply made product, which is always the same price and actually cheap, or a more expensive article actually being sold cheaply for some particular reason.

Nor should the clever woman depend upon the word of the sales girl as to whether the article is actually on sale, actually "marked down" as the say, or not. It must be remembered that the sales woman, God bless her, is only human after all—and is working for a living and her commissions. (Haven't I just done that myself in the dark ages of careerdom, though?) One must depend upon his or her own judgement, and decide for oneself whether what you buy is actually a bargain or not.

• • • •

The clever woman saves her pennies, and watches for sales offered by reputable stores, especially in gloves and stockings. Shoe stores that handle expensive shoes invariably have their one or two sales a year, at which time she buys her expensive shoes for a third or a half of their average price, which is the price she would otherwise pay for a much cheaper grade of shoe.

And the same holds true for materials, table linens and wearing apparel. It is true that one can not always have enough money on hand to take advantage of the sales of the larger items of wearing apparel, but one can at least save the pennies and watch for sales, as I said before, on gloves and hosiery.

• • • •

All you need is muslin, and eggshells, and button molds, and gold this, and silver that, and popcorn, and the simple and fascinating directions about what to do with all of 'em! I have made a leaflet of instructions of how to make delightful and inexpensive Christmas tree ornaments, and the Dare Department of The Washington Post is only waiting for your stamped, self-addressed envelope to send you your copy. These ornaments are awfully cute—they don't cost much and they can be used year after year, because just about all of them are unbreakable.

• • • •

Novelty gloves have to be bought and worn with discretion—many a sale of novelty gloves is a forced one brought about by the lack of judgment on the part of the buyer, who overstocked with an article which the clever woman realizes can not be worn generally, but must be worn only with a particular costume.

Yet there are some novelty gloves that are charmingly discreet, such as the two black kid gloves I have illustrated for you today, the one with white kid incrustations, the other with a little pleat effect lined in white, and white incrusations at either side.

Who couldn't find myriads of occasions to wear a dark green knitted silk dress like the one I show you today? I couldn't resist such an opportunity of illustrating how Ardanse has combined simplicity of line and material with the utmost chic. See how diagonally stitched pleating plays its part in making the skirt? And much of this frock's smartness, too, comes from its yellow velvet collars and cuffs, and the narrow little green leather belt.

WORK ON BRIDGE

STEALING AN EXTRA TRICK.

With the above hand the Contract bidding would be: South two Hearts, West four Clubs, North four Hearts which would obtain the contract.

South, with five high-card tricks and two low-card tricks, would be amply justified in bidding two Hearts; he could almost bid three. West would put in a bid of four Clubs, hoping to pre-empt and being satisfied to play a Club contract and go down because his honors would help to offset the loss in the event of a double. Moreover, being set one or two even without honor compensation would be better than having the opponents go game at Hearts, which apparently they could do. North bid four Hearts as he had the needed three raisers to assist his partner from two to four; Ace of Spades1, singleton Club 1, four Hearts with a singleton in the hand 1. Had South bid only one Heart, as he would under the forcing system, North would not have the strength to bid four.

At Auction the bidding probably would be: South one Heart, West as many Clubs as he dared to bid, North would overcall two or three Clubs but might not dare to overcall four.

In the play West led a Club which won, and then switched to a Diamond. Declarer won and exhausted the four adverse trumps in two rounds; it was a bit of good luck to have them divided 2-2. Then he led three more rounds of Diamonds, discarding one Spade from dummy. After that he led the Ten of Spades and, although West refused, passed the trick up to the East hand. After winning this Spade, East had to lose the remaining tricks. He could lead Spades up to dummy's tenace, or lead a Club which dummy could trump and on which closed hand would discard a Spade.

Declarer picked up a trick by passing up the Spade. Had he won the first Spade with the Ace when West refused the suit, the adversaries would have made one trick more than they did. Game would have been safe in any event, but in Contract the premium of 50 points for an extra trick is well worth winning.

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled the PLAYING PROBLEMS. Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

PLAYING PROBLEMS presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

PLAYING PROBLEMS, which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of The Washington Post by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed, stamped return envelope, together with six cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored. Address: Milton C. Work, care The Washington Post.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

PROTECTING YOUR ROSES.

THIS is the end of November and only a few things remain to be done in your garden. This is a good time, indeed the best time, to top dress the lawn with good soil to overcome irregularities. It is also time to place the burlap windbreaks in front of your rhododendrons and to tie up your roses. This really does not have to be done until after the first decided freeze, when the long canes must be tied down to prevent the winter winds from whipping them about. Rag bands are better for this purpose than heavy twine, as the latter may cut the bark and permanently injure the plants.

Do not put off making garden changes, the first hard freeze will put an end to such activities. This is the time to hill the ground up about the main stems of your roses. All of the hybrid teas, teas, and most of the hybrid perpetuals will need some winter protection. The best protection and the easiest for the grower is to hill the soil up about the main stems of the plants to the height of ten inches. One of the main reasons why roses fail to winter well is that water is allowed to collect about the roots of the plants. Hilling up the soil prevents this difficulty.

After the soil is drawn up about the plants, a mulch of coarse straw or well-rotted manure should be applied to the surface of the soil of the bed. This not only adds to the fertility of the soil, but aids in the conservation of moisture. In late February the alternate freezing and thawing caused by sunny days and cold, possibly freezing nights does a great deal of damage to roses. To guard against this, it will repay you for the effort you may expend if you wrap the branches of your roses with burlap or straw. Some growers feel that covering the beds with pine boughs sufficiently overcomes this difficulty. Of course, the winter protection necessary for your roses will depend on the location of your garden.

Some growers use inverted peach baskets to cover their roses. This is a practical thing to do, for it protects them from winter rains and ice. The use of baskets does not eliminate the work of hilling up the soil about the roots of the plants. As a rule, the briar roses require no protection other than hilling the soil up about the stems of the plants.

Like Butterflies

the cyclamen blossoms emerge from their tight little cocoon buds, and hover on curved stems over the plant.

If you've never watched the exquisitely soft petals of mauve or white or delicate peach unfold day by day, you have a treat in store for you.

You will find directions on soil and care in a leaflet prepared especially for readers of this column, and which you may have simply by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope for mailing to

JANE LESLIE KIFT,
Care of Washington Post.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed stamped envelope is supplied.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

HOW TO EARN WRINKLES.

MEN earn their wrinkles. So do women. There is more than one way to go about it. One type of wrinkles is earned by becoming obese and then reducing. The space just underneath the skin is a favorite location for the accumulation of fat. After reduction there is a surplus of skin, more than is needed for purposes of coverage. It arranges itself in folds.

There is no other way. These folds are called wrinkles. This is the type of wrinkling that shows on the neck particularly. Another type is a result of habitual contraction of certain muscles. It is very likely to follow habitual contraction of the skin muscles and those which are located near skin and attached to it. If the muscles of a given area are habitually contracted in a certain way, wrinkles with an arrangement caused by this muscle action develop. These are the wrinkles across the brow and those around the mouth and the eyes.

Habitual frowning begets horizontal wrinkles across the brow. Squinting the eyes causes the radiating wrinkles on the temples and cheeks. Perpetual smiling causes upward curving cribs at the corners of the mouth. Perpetual gloom causes downward curving circles located near the same area. Firm closing of the jaws and compression of the lips beget wrinkles distinctive as to location and arrangement.

As to both of these types of wrinkles there is considerable possibility of repair or cure. Massaging, rubbing, the local use of ice and cold water, and exposure to snow, rain, and cold winds are of service. The use of creams and so-called flesh foods are of service in massage in lessening friction. There is no foundation for any claim that they act as flesh foods, whatever that may mean, or that they have any other specific action.

But treatment must be prolonged, as the stretching effect of fat and of muscle action has been continued for years. It can be overcome only by prolonged treatment. Wrinkles of these two types can be prevented. The checkered wrinkles of senility are another matter. They are caused by decadence of the elastic fibers of the skin as the result of age. The skin is low in elasticity, but unevenly so, and in consequence it creases and folds irregularly. It is this group of cases that the men who use ductless glands claim to be able to help somewhat.

CHRONIC CONSTIPATION.

L. V. M. writes: Will you suggest something to enable me to get rid of chronic constipation?

REPLY.

Here is Miss J. B.'s method. It will work with many people: "May I add my remedy for constipation? I operate a switchboard, and sit in the one place all day, only getting up for a brief relief and for the lunch hour.

Soon after arising I drink a glass of water. An hour later I eat some fresh fruit. At noon I eat a regular dinner with potatoes, whipped cream on pie and cake included, and plenty of butter and vegetables. In the evening I eat some more fresh fruit or a couple of tomatoes and a glass of water before getting into bed. I eat candy, too.

I lost ten pounds in two months on this diet and I am never constipated, which is remarkable, considering that I don't exercise at all, outside of walking.

BATHING AFTER MEALS.

Miss H. F. writes: Is it harmful in any way to take a warm or hot bath immediately after eating? I realize the danger of swimming shortly after meals, especially in cold water, but I can not see how a bath would be harmful, but I have been told that it is. If it is, why is it?

REPLY.

Bathing soon after eating is not advised. This might not apply to a very light meal. The rule applies to warm bathing also.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

A Fear Dispelled.

One evening while she was being put to bed 4-year-old Lillian stiffened suddenly, clutching her mother's arm and pointed silently at her own grotesque, weirdly moving shadow, distorted by the unusual position of her bedroom lamp.

So frightened was she that she could not utter a word until her mother took her on her lap and held her quietly for a moment. She relaxed a little then and whispered:

"What is it, mother? What is it?"

"But I don't like it. Take it out. Make it go away!"

"If I move the lamp it will go away, or if you move it will go away. You see it's just your shadow that comes because you are in the way of the light.

"Look! You can make it do anything you like. If you wave your hand the shadow waves. It can't hurt you at all. It can only move when you move. Now I'll move the lamp and make it go away altogether. Now see, it's back again.

Talking thus in a reassuring voice, Lillian's mother made the frightening shadow a familiar, friendly thing. Next day mother took pains to point out to Lillian the funny little shadow that tagged her heels when the sun was high overhead, and Lillian laughed with pleasure.

From being afraid of her shadow she came to regard even the large, fantastic one on her bedroom wall with interest and pleasure. She learned from her mother to make shadow pictures and invented several of her own.

To become thoroughly familiar with a feared object or situation under circumstances of security, to establish friendly relationship with it, and finally to laugh at it, are sure ways of driving it away.

JEAN'S SANTA CLAUS - - - By JULIE ANNE MOORE

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Jean Mathe, a small town girl with big ideas, arrives from Kelsey, Conn., to make her fortune. When her office burns, she finds herself jobless. She craves adventure and yearns for the gay things of life. A little girl herself, she wishes Santa Claus would come to see her this Christmas.

Phillip Baldwin, her small town fiance, bodes the ride and promises to appear Christmas day with a marriage license. Rather than take the last of her inheritance by marrying Phil, Jean decides to tackle New York and find a job there. Jean plans to live with

Mollie Whitney, sophisticated friend, who has given Jean glowing reports of gay life in Gotham. Arriving in the city Jean learns that Mollie has just married and left New York, a surprise that added consternation by the fact that she only has 25 cents in her pocket but the situation is eased by

Sandy Clause, a handsome, polished and enigmatical young man who presents her from a stranger's room. Jean dines with her, and after he has lost her traveling bag, arranges for Jean to spend the night at the apartment of his friend

Marcia Parsons, a socialite whose unusual hospitality does not blind Jean to the fact that Marcia's apartment is no haven of safety as compared to Kelsey, Conn. Sandy leaves the apartment, but Jean's uneasiness is lessened by the sudden appearance of two sinister men,

Slim Diggers and

Pargeson, the latter of whom is observed by Jean in violently embrace Marcia. Instinctively frightened by fears she feels rather than can define, Jean rushes from the apartment. On her way out she sees Sandy Clause returning, but he does not see her. After spending the rest of the night in the park Jean answers an ad specially placed in the papers by Clause and learns that Pargeson, alias Simpson, was murdered the night before in Marcia's apartment. Clause denies that he returned and says Jean could not have seen him, as she tells him she did.

She accepts the job he offers with the Institute of Practical Philanthropy, an organization ready to spend millions to inculcate maternal yearnings in the hearts of little girls by giving them dolls—not to be known as dolls, however, but as miniature babies. What differences while shopping Jean finds Mollie, who explains that the wedding ceremony did not stick, and invites Jean to live with her. Jean accepts, and upon going to the office to learn that Marcia White, under police grilling, has threatened to implicate Jean in the murder.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VIII.

Twenty-six working days to Christmas—and Phil. . . . What a strange world. . . . Moved in with dear old Mollie last night and talked until after midnight. . . . I can't understand her attitude toward her husband. . . . I have an idea, however, that she is still in love with him. . . . She hasn't told me why they quarreled right after they were married, but it must have been something serious. . . . Lionel Gilman asked me to dinner last night and I had to refuse because I had promised to meet Mollie. Lionel seems to be a nice boy, and I like him. . . . The more I see of my new things, the more pleased I am with them. . . . The jersey tweed suit is such a darling! . . . I am trying not to think about the Pargeson affair, but I am finding it very hard to persuade myself that I didn't see Sandy going to the apartment as I was leaving it. . . . He wrote me a note last night saying that he would prove an alibi for me if Marcia should tell the police about my being there. But if he didn't go back to the apartment, how can he prove an alibi for me? . . . Must leave my diary now until tomorrow. . . . Want to get a note off to Phil before I settle down to study the Miniature Baby Plan. . . .

Though perhaps she did not realise it, Jean's diary was a direct result of Sandy's note. The thought of being involved in a murder—and the murder of a notorious gangster at that—seemed to chill her through. She vowed fervently that she had never left Kelsey, that she had forgotten her silly ideas of adventure and married Phil when he had asked her the last time, after the Red Diamond Novelty plant explosion.

This sort of adventure she had never desired. New York, once the city of freedom and gaiety, now seemed to be closing in upon her, harassing her with threats, suffocating her. She wanted to get out of it, and stay out.

When she had started to write to Phillip giving him her address, she had been strongly tempted to hint that he could come for her before Christmas morning. Only pride restrained her; pride and the fear that if she left New York now, she might ultimately be dragged into the Pargeson murder probe and ruin not alone her own life but Phillip's as well.

So she told him that she was having a delightful time and that on Christmas morning—if he had not changed his mind—he would find her with Mollie. She not only gave him Mollie's address, but drew a little diagram showing him where to take the subway, and how to proceed after leaving it at Madison Square.

When she went to the office after lunch, the Miniature Baby Plan under her arm, she wore the jersey tweed suit with the matching blouse of wool lace. Clothes may not make the woman, but it was plainly evident in Lionel Gilman's eyes that clothes played an important part.

"My!" he greeted her, smiling. "You've grown up overnight."

She knew what he meant. The plain little dress she had worn for two days after leaving Kelsey had been a relic of the short-skirt era. Her new frocks were longer, newer, finer, better fitting and naturally more becoming. She was pleased with his subtle compliment.

"Has the director come back from lunch?" she asked him.

"Sandy? He hasn't been in at all. But he is coming in shortly. He said you were to wait for him. Have you had lunch?"

She told him, regretfully, that she had.

"Defeated at every turn," he smiled. "Would it be effrontery if I asked you to dinner again tonight?"

Jean laughed easily. "It might be," she said, "but I'd accept."

"Good!" He seemed to be genuinely pleased. "Night club, or . . ."

"Preferably not. Don't forget I'm a small town girl in the big city. I must get used to it by degrees."

He agreed amiably. "I know a hotel grillroom where the food is excellent and the orchestra equally good. We can eat, dance and forget there is such a thing as the Miniature Baby Plan."

Jean was suddenly serious. "But I don't want to forget it," she told him. "I've been over the plan again and again and the more I consider it the more enthusiastic I grow. It's wonderful, Mr. Gilman! You're a man; it can't mean much to you. But the thought of giving every poor little girl in New York a big, prettily dressed doll sends little shivers through me. . . . Understand, I'm not particularly thrilled over the idea of teaching motherhood, as Sandy puts it. It may work and it may not. But think of the happiness it will bring to thousands of little girls who might otherwise get nothing for Christmas. . . ."

Lionel smiled sympathetically. "Say, but you are strong for it, aren't you? And only last week Sandy was pulling his hair because there was no one in the organization enough in sympathy with it to take it in hand. Have you thought out a plan for finding the poor little girls and getting the dolls—I mean the miniature babies—to them?"

Jean said hesitantly, "Why, yes, I have . . . for my own amusement. That's all arranged, isn't it?"

He shook his blond head. "Nothing's arranged. That, as I understand it, is your job. First, you have to select the doll, determine the number you will need, arrange for their purchase and work out a plan of distribution. . . . You see, the old gentleman came in with the idea only last week and we haven't had time to think much about it."

"The old gentleman. . . ?" Jean said, puzzled. "Who is he?"

Lionel looked at her in surprise. "Didn't Sandy tell you?" And after a moment: "Perhaps he doesn't want it known yet, if at all. "If. . ."

Jean said quickly: "If it's a secret, I'd rather not know it. "I've more secrets on my chest now than I can look after."

* * * * * *

When at last Sandy arrived he asked Jean into his office at once. He closed the door after her, waited until she was seated, then dropped into the chair by his desk. Jean saw that he was appraising her new costume and she was suddenly self-conscious.

"You've excellent taste, Jean," he said after a moment. "Though, to be perfectly frank, I suspect anything would look good on you."

"Blarney," said Jean in self-defense. "I'm glad to see you're looking less . . . haggard, Sandy. You were pathetic yesterday morning."

He gazed out toward the window thoughtfully. "One of these days I'll tell you how I spent the night before. . . . Did you find a nice place to live?"

She told him about finding Mollie and of their temporary arrangement to occupy the same room. "We don't have much space to waste," she concluded, "but it's something to be with some one you know."

"Yes, of course. But if her husband should come back or, for any reason, you wish to make a change, I can find you a comfortable little apartment somewhere. You'll be able to afford it, you know."

It was the first suggestion concerning her salary.

"I don't need much, Sandy," she told him then, "and I'm not interested in salary. All I want is enough to keep me going until Christmas and . . ."

"You're still thinking about leaving New York?"

She thought she saw something in his eyes beyond the casual question, but she said quietly: "I think so, Sandy. New York is all right, but . . . I was born in a small town and . . . I think I prefer it. . . . But for the present I'm all wrapped up in your miniature baby plan, and until that's disposed of, I can't think of leaving or anything else."

He was obviously delighted to find her so eager to put the plan into effect.

"Lionel tells me," she said, "that I'm to organize the whole thing."

Sandy nodded. "You'll need time, of course."

"Yes, I will. But I've already thought of a plan. It may be all wrong, but you can tell me where it's weak."

Sandy's eyes lighted up with admiration, but he said nothing.

Jean said eagerly: "We'll go to the city hall and get a complete list of girl babies from the birth records since, and including 1925, with addresses, of course."

"But a good many of them will have moved," Sandy suggested.

"Yes, I know. And some of them will not have survived the New York atmosphere. But we'll send out letters to every address with 'Please Forward' on the envelope. The letters will be addressed to the girls themselves and will contain a return card. We'll just say that if they will have their mothers or fathers write and their names and correct addresses on the cards and post them, Santa Claus will bring them a doll for Christmas. And we'll sign the letters 'Santa Claus' . . ."

Sandy's fist came down on the desk sharply. "Say! You've got it worked out to a T. That's great, Jean. Really it is. . . . But what about distribution?"

Jean laughed gaily. "Give me time. The first thing is to get a force busy on the birth records at the city hall. . . . By the way, how much money have we to spend?"

"If I told you," Sandy replied, "you wouldn't believe me. We don't want to waste money, but the man behind this would duplicate the Chrysler Building and convert the Leviathan into a private yacht, and not feel it. Don't worry about expense where it's needed."

It was when Jean had risen from her chair to leave the office, that Sandy leaned over his desk toward her and asked quietly:

"I wonder if you'd go to dinner with me tonight, Jean. . . ?"

"Why, I . . . I'd love to, Sandy, but . . . Lionel asked me before you came in. . . . If I had known. . . ."

Jean saw his disappointment and was puzzled by it. But it was not evident in his voice.

"Some other time, then . . . Jean. Lionel's a good sort, and square." After a moment, he told her: "Don't worry about the birth records. I'll have Lionel send as many girls as necessary to the city hall. You'd better look around for the doll. I mean," he smiled, "the miniature baby."

Leaving Sandy's office, Jean was not aware that some one was in the office with Lionel, until she saw him rise and say politely:

"Mr. Clause is free now, Miss White. . . ."

Jean turned slowly. Marcia White rose from a chair on her left. She was staring at Jean as if she could hardly believe her eyes.

But presently her amazement gave way to an enigmatic smile. "Well . . ." she said softly; "I see you've turned my advice to good advantage." Her smile grew, then suddenly faded. "I hope you're here when I've finished talking to Sandy. I've a little more advice you might find helpful . . ."

Jean met her sharp gaze challengingly. "I'm very sorry," she said, "but I'm leaving the office for the afternoon." And with a nod to Lionel, she crossed the office and went out into the hall.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES McDONALD

DEAR FRANCES McDONALD: I believed myself engaged recently wrote you of our very private affairs. Certainly no other couple could so duplicate our situation. She wrote of a visit to my parents which so disgusted and disillusioned her that love and consideration for me instantly departed. She described my dear and faithful parents as a "couple of strange animals." Do you place the case? You headed your just rebuke to her "The Niceties of Life." The whole thing has reduced me to a pulp. And in justice to two of the dearest old people in the world I beg one fraction of the space her attack upon them received.

My people came to America penniless. They knew only farming. They went to relatives on a barren farm where they almost starved for years. No Americans were near and they never learned the language.

As a child I worked, as the girl told you, from the time I could walk at my mother's side. But I was tenderly loved. Don't forget that. Then an uncle going back home gave them the farm and offered to give me a chance. Because of their love for me they let me go. For ten years I never saw them. I was sent to school, working my way. I stumbled upon an invention. I made money. I sent them money. I met beautiful women and fine men. I never loved until I met the teacher who wrote to you of my "unspeakable family." I worshiped her. I told her that I had people way back in the country. That I rarely saw them but wanted her to meet them before our marriage.

Perhaps I sensed the shallowness that has revealed itself. At any rate the visit was planned. My dear little mother in her best dress welcomed her. They did their best. There was a sort of feast for just us four. During it all the girl was cold as ice. I will never forget the ride home. She never spoke one word. If the trip had disclosed me a murderer, she could not have recoiled so thoroughly.

I brought her to her door. I felt no anger. Indeed until I saw that letter in your column, I believed I still loved her and could reconcile her and convince her that the old folks would never dream of leaving the farm or bother us in any way. But when I read what she had written, "a couple of strange animals"—my mother and my father—I can tell you if she went on her knees to me she would not be allowed to bear my name. She says she told her mother and was advised to caution!

Her mother looked me up at my bank when I knew the girl only two weeks. Caution. Such people could learn of my people. If I married that girl, no matter what misfortune befell my father would take her as a daughter and work till he dropped for her and her children. That is our way—"strange animals" that we are. Well, that ends my dream of love. For me no savage-hearted woman as a wife. I did not know such feelings could really be in any young girl's heart. A teacher. Twenty-five years old. And she calls unfit a man reared to worship forever one woman—his wife. May she find happiness.

UNFIT.

Sheer tragedy, this. Not for the man but for the girl, one of our millions of uneducated college graduates. In the midst of living they are as dead. Their little world is all they know. The man is to be congratulated. The girl to be pitied.

Your Name
WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Gould" is merely a variation of "Gold." "Gold" was an old Anglo-Saxon personal name taken from the name of the metal, with the meanings "precious," "beloved" or "golden-haired." Similar names are found in all modern languages. Hence the family name "Gold" is often a translation or adaptation of some foreign name. A certain Adam Gold is mentioned in the Hundred Rolls.

The family name "Jay" (also spelled "Jaye") is derived from the middle English "jaye" and from the old French "jaie." It is one of the relatively few family names whose original meanings are still indicated by their present forms. It was originally given as a nickname to gayly-dressed persons or to chatterers who were thereby thought to resemble the bird called the jay. A certain John le Jay is mentioned in an English record of the year 1313.

The family name "Verdier" is of French origin. It means "the forester," and indicates the occupation of the persons who were first so called.

The family name "Strauss" may be traced back to two quite different German sources. In most cases it means "the ostrich," and was first given to persons who lived at an inn or private dwelling which displayed the image or picture of an ostrich as a means of identification. Occasionally, however, it is a modern variation of "Strodo." "Strodo" was an old Germanic personal name meaning "the destroyer" and "the robber." A certain Ulrich Sem Struss is mentioned in a German document of the year 1428.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood—A faithful reproduction in film of Mark Twain's immortal story, "Tom Sawyer," has been made with Jackie Coogan, in his screen comeback, and Junior Durkin, as the pal, Huckleberry Finn.

JACKIE COOGAN

The picture is an experiment and its box office fate will decide if other children's stories are to be filmed. If "Tom Sawyer" does re-attract children, doubtless other classic stories, such as "Treasure Island" and "Penrod," will be forthcoming.

"Tom Sawyer" is regarded as an experiment because producers want to find out whether complaints that the average talkie does not interest children are true.

If, as theater owners say, pictures are too sophisticated, and less subtle ones will do as much business (or, preferably, more) then there will be many such as "Tom Sawyer."

Another Reason.

In addition to an attempt to cater to youngsters' film tastes, there is another reason why pictures with children in the leading, or at least, the important roles should be more in number.

The sight of a child in a picture always evokes a warm audience reaction. As an example, "Our Gang" comedies were extraordinarily popular until sound robbed them of their success secret.

And a baby in a newsreel always receives more applause than a military parade or the equally conventional views of New York's skyline.

TRADE BODY WEIGHS CIVIL SERVICE PLAN

105 MEMBERS APPROVED

Apprehension was expressed by members of the executive committee of the Washington Board of Trade yesterday over the decision to place employes of the District of Columbia under the regulations of the Civil Service Commission.

The committee asked George Plitt, president of the board, to appoint a special committee "to examine into the effect of the new ruling, to determine just how broad its scope is, how it will affect the present employes of the District government and what effect it will have on the chances of residents of Washington to obtain employment under the local municipal government."

Opinion was expressed by members of the executive committee that no other city would tolerate such a ruling that lessened the chances of its own citizens getting work. Residents of Washington should be given preference in being employed in the District government over nonresidents and nontaxpayers, it was also pointed out. Summed up, the opinion of the executive committee seemed to be that the civil service ruling should be applied to just the residents of Washington rather than to the whole Nation.

The executive committee approved the entrance of 105 persons into the membership of the Board of Trade. Their names follow:

A. H. Adkins, Frederick A. Allnutt, Louis L. Altmann, Bank of Brightwood (R. L. Schreiner and C. J. Sincell), Gordon S. Barber, Charles H. Hartz, Francis M. Bass, Dr. Sterling Bockoven, Samuel S. Bond, Edwin C. Bosworth, Clayton A. Brown, Dr. D. E. Buckingham, Donald Buckingham, O. M. Bugniazet, Martin F. Comeau, A. D. Crumbaugh, William W. Daly, jr., Elliott T. Dimond, William T. BEHIND THE SCREENS - - - - With NELSON B. BELL

WHEN a considerable inclination to inaugurate their new bills on Friday was manifested by the downtown, first-run picture houses some months ago, the prophecy was freely made that it would only be a matter of time until some enterprising management, intent on stealing a march on its competitors, would crash the new bills on Thursday. That forecast now seems to have been fulfilled—for one week, at least.

Last-minute advices from the executive offices of the RKO-Keith Theater apprise me that the engagement of "Tol'able David," Columbia Pictures' dialogue version of the Hergesheimer story that elevated Richard Barthelmess to stardom, will come to an end on Wednesday night of this week—tomorrow.

Beginning Thanksgiving morning, the attraction at the Fifteenth street house will be Pathe's production of "Sin Takes a Holiday," in which Constance Bennett is the featured player, supported by Kenneth MacKenna, Rita La Roy, ZaSu Pitts and Basil Rathbone.

It is the merest coincidence, that might understandably be converted to the common advantage of both picture and artist, that Mr. Rathbone is appearing in Washington in person this week as a star of "A Kiss of Importance," which opened last night at the National.

"Sin Takes a Holiday," by the way, is described as a sophisticated, modern drama, in which Miss Bennett may confidently be expected to exceed the popular appeal which she exerted by her recent screen appearance in "Common Clay," which enjoyed a record-breaking first-run at Washington's largest cathedral of the celluloids, the Fox.

Although the chances at present seem to be rather against than for it, definite decision has not as yet been made by New York as to whether the Thursday opening will be adhered to, or only resorted to in this single isolated instance.

With regard to "Tol'able David," it must be apparent to every thoughtful observer that the era has passed when this homely tale of the Kentucky mountaineers might be expected to score the sensational triumph that marked its introduction as a stellar vehicle for Richard Barthelmess. At the time of its initial release it represented a long step forward along the way of realistic and forceful screen drama. During the intervening years there have been many others just as good. Some better.

Furthermore, in one vital particular the director of the present camera version of the story failed to display quite the shrewdness of his predecessor. In the fight with the mountaineers that marks the climax of the drama, the element of suspense has been virtually neglected.

In the Barthelmess silent version, after two of the hillsmen had been dispatched, the action resolved itself into a question of physical superiority between Barthelmess and Ernest Torrence. There was a gun involved, to be sure, and for it they fought like wild and savage primitive men—and were still fighting when the scene flashed to the outside of the roadside cabin and the door began to swing slowly open. It was impossible to guess, from anything that the screen had revealed, who was coming out, lone survivor of the combat.

In the current picture, just before the scene flashes to the outside of the cabin, David is shown leveling a pistol at Noah Beery. A shot is heard from the outside and the door swings slowly open exactly as before—except that the source of the shot has been told in advance and suspense thus wholly destroyed.

Perhaps that is a contributory cause of "Sin Takes a Holiday's" opening two days ahead of schedule. Or maybe they are just trying to make good the title!

This seems to be a day of last-minute news flashes. A frothing courier from the office of Mr. Frank La Falce, of the local staff of the Warner Brothers, brings the interesting announcement that Robert Milton, director of "Outward Bound," the Warner Brothers-Vitaphone production which will inaugurate the reserved seat, two-a-day policy at the Metropolitan Theater tomorrow night at 8:45 o'clock, will be present in person at the premiere, arriving in the Capital either tonight or the first thing tomorrow morning.

Mr. Milton, who is well known in Washington, will be remembered by followers of the stage as a distinguished director of stage plays who has been associated with such stars as Richard Mansfield, Mrs. Fiske and George Arliss, and with such widely celebrated producers as the late Charles Frohman. Incidentally, Mr. Milton directed the stage production of the Sutton Vane play as well as his pictorial version. The past career of the man is not without interest.

Robert Milton was born in Russia and studied to become a priest of the Greek church. His father being a well-known stage director, it was perhaps natural that after having completed his education in St. Petersburg and Munich, young Milton should be offered a small role under his father at the Royal Theater. From that time forth the stage superseded the church in the young man's aspirations. There followed many years of acting and directing.

Three years ago, when sound and dialogue were just getting a footing in the theater of shadows, Mr. Milton began his directorial work.

It is expected that tomorrow night's inaugural at the Metropolitan will take on all of the familiar aspects of a typical Washington society "first night."

During its early days, the Mather Building, at 918 G street, was the headquarters of filmdom in the Capital. The representatives of practically all the big producing companies were located in the building. When the subsequent exodus and pilgrimage to North Capitol street began some years ago there was much moaning and wailing and gnashing of teeth. The new locations were too far away.

With that elevator taking a ten-story drop yesterday, just like a stock on the big board, I suspect that a good many of the boys and girls are now fairly well satisfied not to have been in it!

Openings four days in a row this week, in case you hadn't noticed it: Metropolitan, Wednesday night; RKO-Keith, Thursday; Fox, Friday; all the others Saturday.

The Supreme Court decision is one production the boys in the cutting room won't be able to do much with!

MERGER WILL FORM $1,000,000,000 BANK

NO NAME SELECTED YET

New York, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Plans for New York's fourth largest bank—a billion dollar institution to be formed by the merger of four units—went forward today with the announcement that details of the consolidation were being worked out and that J. Herbert Case, now chairman of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, would head the new financial giant.

The banks to be merged are the Manufacturers Trust Co., Bank of United States, Public National Bank & Trust Co., and International Trust Co. Their latest statements show total resources of roughly $993,000,000 and deposits of $700,000,000 so that the new bank will be exceeded in size only by the Chase National Bank, the National City Bank and the Guaranty Trust Co.

The merger has been under discussion for some time, but it was said the plans had been virtually completed over the week-end when Mr. Case was selected to head the list of New York bankers who have places on the directorate. Final details, covering the exchange of stock basis, will probably be announced after Thanksgiving, it was said.

Mr. Case's title has not been decided, nor has the date of his resignation from the Federal Reserve post. He succeeded Gates W. McGarrah to that office last spring when Mr. McGarrah became head of the World Bank for International Settlements.

It was generally believed, however, that Mr. Case would be made chairman inasmuch as E. Chester Gersten, now president of Public National, will become president. No name has been selected for the new bank.

Legion Censures Bombing of Store

Post to Get Reprimand for Armistice Day Attack.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—The executive committee of the American Legion of Ohio was on record today in criticism of the tear gas bombing of a grocery store at St. Clairsville, Ohio, last Armistice Day. The store was invaded and bombed by Legionnaires after its manager failed to close the place for the holiday.

In a resolution adopted at a meeting here yesterday the committee said the attack was "an uncalled-for demonstration which reflected on the spirit and principles of the Legion." Declaring the Legion would not condone such acts, the committee voted to ask the departmental commander to formally censure the St. Clairsville Post which was held responsible because the demonstrators were identified as Legionnaires.

A proposal to suspend the post's charter was rejected when investigators reported that the bombing caused no property damage.

HEARINGS ON FUNDS FOR DISTRICT LOOM

Public Will Be Admitted to Debates, Head of House Committee Indicates.

LONG FIGHT IMPROBABLE

Public hearings will be held by the special House committee on District fiscal relations it was indicated yesterday when Representative Carl E. Mapes (Republican), of Michigan, committee chairman, returned to his office.

No date has been fixed for a meeting of the committee, and until there had been a meeting and a plan of procedure had been agreed on he wished to make no comment on the subject, Mr. Mapes said.

The committee, however, will wish to go into the question thoroughly and arrive at its decision without the pressure of haste, Mr. Mapes believes.

House Resents Criticism.

Such a course would mean that the work of the special committee will not be rushed to arrive at a report in time to have an effect on the District appropriation bill for next year. This measure now is before the Budget Bureau being prepared for transmission by the President to Congress when it convenes next week. It will go through the usual process and be referred to the House appropriations committee and by it to a District appropriations subcommittee of which Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, is chairman.

The special fiscal relations committee will act independently of the appropriations subcommittee and it is quite possible that the fiscal relations committee will not make any serious effort to complete its study and report until after the appropriations bill has been acted on by the House or even has been made law.

Members of the House are restive under what they believe has been unfair criticism of their attitude on District fiscal affairs and some of the committee members have indicated their desire to make the fiscal committee report such an authoritative document that it will withstand attack and become the book of books on the subject for the House.

Linked to Extra Session.

Whether the committee's report is ready before the appropriations bill is acted on or not, it is not believed that there will be a repetition of the long-drawn-out fight of last session over the amount of the Federal appropriation. The Senate and House have been at odds on this question for years, with the Senate seeking to increase the amount of the appropriation and the House forcing the amount down until last session, when the Senate forced an increase of $500,000.

About the House side of the Capitol there is a belief that rather than make an occasion for another long fight this year the House will agree to the $9,500,000 total again. Should, however, there develop a battle to compel an extra session, it is possible that the District appropriations bill may become one of the weapons of those seeking the extra session.

Desertion Is Charged In Action for Divorce

Alleging that her husband deserted her last August while she was on her vacation, Ruth I. Beausoleil, of Seventeenth street northwest, near Kalorama road, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to grant her a limited divorce from Napoleon J. Beausoleil, of Eleventh street southeast, near G street.

Mrs. Beausoleil charges that her husband failed to pay grocery bills, neglected to provide for her and their two children, and borrowed $1,000 from her of which he paid back only $5. Attorney Catherine McCloskey represents Mrs. Beausoleil.

THE SHOW BOAT

By FRANK P. MORSE.

Cap'n Jim Adams' Floating Theater, more affectionately known as "the Show Boat," reached its first metropolitan mooring yesterday after a 17 year trip that has covered 42,000 miles. This floating temple of art was launched during the summer of 1913 at Little Washington, N. C. Last evening, a capacity audience from Big Washington, District of Columbia, saw the only cast of maritime thespians that has ever navigated tributaries of the Atlantic Ocean inaugurate, off the shores of Alexandria, Va., a run that will give local lovers of the drama much genuine entertainment during the coming weeks.

It must not be supposed that this protracted aquatic trek has involved any "trudging down that lonesome road." Cap'n Jim's remarkably fine company has brought the world of make-believe to innumerable communities which, through the idiosyncrasies of railroad builders, would have lacked, otherwise, the consolations of the theater. And, during six weeks of those 17 years, Cap'n Jim entertained as an honored guest aboard his floating theater Miss Edna Ferber, author of "Show Boat," the novel that became a Ziegfeld musical play and, later, an equally popular feature film. We hope it is not a betrayal of confidence to state that Cap'n Adams inspired the character of Cap'n Andy Hawks; that Miss Beulah Adams was the original Magnolia Hawks, and that Charles M. Hunter's charming personality was the genesis of Gaylord Ravenal.

So much for history; let us turn to drama.

The story of "Gossip," the play selected by Cap'n Jim for his company's debut last evening before a Washington first-night audience, might have for its locale "any small village."

It would be an injustice to disclose the elements of suspense which give "Gossip" much of its punch. Nevertheless, all is well when the final curtain falls on an absorbingly interesting comedy-drama that is admirably staged and far better acted than many a Broadway play.

Lack of space forbids suitable tribute to a splendid cast. Miss Beulah Adams, as the flapper daughter of a strait-laced doctor; Charles M. Hunter, as a young minister with modern ideas; Tim Lester, as Deacon Peas, the richest man in the village and an ardent supporter of the church, and Billy Montgomery as Tom, the doctor's profligate son, merely stand out conspicuously in the finest company we have ever seen afloat.

You will be delighted with the gifted orchestra, the courteous ushers attired in petty officers' naval uniform, the interior of the theater that presents soothing green velvet backgrounds, and the intensely interesting explanatory speech made nightly by Mr. Hunter.

Cap'n Jim announces "S'manthy" for next week. Obviously, therefore, Washington and Alexandria have a series of treats in store. No more delightful theatrical fare has ever been imported via the Potomac this far north of the lower Cedar Point light.

Chicago Bandits Slay Former Capital Man

D. A. O'Connor, Who Fought Off Gangsters, to Be Buried Here.

DANIEL A. O'CONNOR.

The murder of a former Washington man during a hold-up in Chicago a week ago Sunday was revealed yesterday when announcement was made of the funeral of Daniel A. O'Connor, 31 years old, former Veterans Bureau clerk, to be held tomorrow at the home of his mother, Mrs. Bridget O'Connor, 3340 Prospect avenue northwest. A high mass of requiem will be sung at Holy Trinity Church, and burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Mr. O'Connor, who was an inspector in the United States Immigration Service, was fatally wounded by three bandits when he resisted attempts to rob him near his Chicago home. He was beaten, choked, and kicked in the abdomen, the injuries resulting in his death Saturday at the Veterans' Hospital at Hines, Ill. The bandits obtained $30.

The victim of the attack lived in Georgetown until about three years ago. His wife, Mrs. Helen M. O'Connor, who also worked in the Veterans' Bureau here, was visiting relatives in Bedford, Me., when her husband was injured.

Four months ago Daniel A. O'Connor, sr., father of the robbers' victim, fell dead in the yard of his home at 3340 Prospect avenue northwest. He was a veteran of the District Fire Department.

The younger Mr O'Connor was a graduate of Holy Trinity School and later attended Business High School. During the World War he served in the Navy and received a citation for bravery during the sinking of the San Diego off the New England coast.

In addition to his wife and mother, Mr. O'Connor is survived by three children, Robert, Norman and Rosemary; a brother, Joseph; three sisters, Mrs. Mary Russell, of California; Mrs. Helen Znamenack and Mrs. Catherine Coles, of Washington.

PROSECUTION LOOMS IN ELEVATOR CRASH

HURTS MAY BE FATAL

Prosecution of the owners of the Mather Building, 916 G street northwest, will follow the falling of an elevator in the building yesterday morning in which John Caplinger, 35 years old, of 1224 Eleventh street southeast, a war veteran, was seriously injured. The elevator, which fell ten stories as Caplinger was operating it, had been condemned as defective on October 2, Col. John W. Oehmann, District building inspector, announced.

The owners had been given 30 days in which to make repairs, Col. Oehmann said and their failure to make such repairs will result in prosecution. The exact charges to be brought against the building owners, however, will be determined by the death or recovery of the accident victim.

Caplinger was alone in the elevator when a cable snapped, hurtling the cage to the basement from the ninth floor. Firemen of the rescue squad were called and were forced to cut their way through the top of the elevator to reach the injured man.

Rushed to Emergency Hospital, Caplinger was declared to be suffering from a fractured skull, fractured pelvis and severe cuts on the face and arm.

William Harkrider, 513 H street northwest, operator of the other elevator in the building, told police that Caplinger had made several trips in the shaft before the cable snapped. Harkrider said he was on the fifth floor with his cage when the second hurtled by. He descended immediately and called police and firemen.

The injured man was hurt in the same elevator about a year ago when his foot caught in the cage as the lift started. Caplinger is married and has two small sons.

Mrs. Caplinger, when informed of the accident, said bad luck has followed them for ten years. According to her story, one of the boys, Calvin, 5 years old, suffered the loss of three fingers when struck by an ax in the hands of his brother, 2 years old. This occurred two years ago when the family was living in Virginia.

Caplinger has been employed as elevator operator at the Mather Building for a year and a half.

Policeman Injured When Struck by Auto

Policeman Theodore L. Patterson, of the Fourteenth Precinct, was knocked down and injured early last night while directing traffic at Connecticut avenue and Macomb street northwest. The automobile that struck him was driven by William A. Shelton, of Tennyson street near Western avenue northwest.

Patterson was driven to Emergency Hospital by a motorist. His injury was diagnosed as a possible fracture of the left knee. He remained at the hospital. Shelton was held by police pending investigation of the circumstances of the accident.

TWO MEN ARRESTED IN 18-YEAR SEARCH

OTHERS BEING SOUGHT

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 24 (A.P.).—It took eighteen years, but United States secret service operatives say at last they have uncovered the source of counterfeit $10 gold pieces circulated in this region at frequent intervals and with baffling cunningness.

William H. Davenport, head of the United States secret service office here, announced two men were under arrest in St. Joseph, Mo., and that equipment for making the coins had been confiscated.

The men held, awaiting the next session of the Federal grand jury, are Allen T. Kinley and Jacob O. Smith. A third man, Athanasios Pelchikas, alias Tom Poulos, is serving a two-year sentence in the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, and two or three other arrests are expected within a few days, Davenport said.

Davenport took over the unsolved mystery in 1921, after his two predecessors had filed away all clews and information without clearing up the problem.

The first arrest in the old case was in January, 1913, when Ben Howard was found with spurious $5 and $10 gold pieces and sentenced to two years in the Leavenworth Prison. Efforts to find the source of the money failed, however.

Ever since, counterfeit gold pieces have been passed in Kansas City, St. Joseph and surrounding territory, usually during holiday seasons in crowded stores.

Pelchikas was arrested last April for passing $10 coins which Davenport called excellent imitations.

Kinley was arrested last Friday in St. Joseph and admitted, according to Davenport, that he gave coins to Pelchikas to pass. Kinley denied he had passed any himself.

Equipment for making the coins was found in Smith's home at St. Joseph. Smith was identified as an uncle of Ben Howard, whose whereabouts since he served his sentence was not known to officers.

Surveyor to Be Honored By New Center's Name

The proposed colored recreation center, hitherto known as the Howard Center, has been officially named the Banneker Recreation Center in honor of a prominent colored surveyor who aided in laying out the city of Washington, it was announced yesterday by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. The project is opposite Howard University at Barry place and Ninth street.

A study is being made of names for other playground areas, it was said, and an official list will likely be adopted at the December meeting.

MILLIONS OF SAFETY SYMBOLS

MORE than 120 million labels of Underwriters' Laboratories are attached each year to various articles, devices and materials used by the American people

Many of your housekeeping utilities—much of the equipment which serves in the homes, stores, factories, offices, schools, hospitals, and other public buildings—bear the well-known Symbol of Safety—the label of Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc.—because they have earned that right through severe test and inspection.

Cooperation of Manufacturers

In cooperation with many thousands of manufacturers, Underwriters' Laboratories scientifically safeguard thousands of fire and accident hazards. In 1929 the work involved 60,000 inspections in 114 cities, hundreds of re-examinations, and approximately 5,000 laboratory tests and examinations by more than 400 engineers and trained employes.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

Is responsible for the National Board of Fire Underwriters, which in turn is responsible for Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc. Established in 1901, it has become one of the largest privately operated laboratories of its kind in the world. By this means the Stock Fire Insurance companies provide one of their most important contributions to the public welfare.

LIGHT DROP HALTED AND STOCKS SCORE

Merchandising, Chain-Store Issues Once More Act as Price Tonic.

1,630,820 SHARES SOLD

New York, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—A rapid stock market today showed sufficient recuperative power to get back early losses of 1 to 5 points, and close a little higher. It was the quietest session in three weeks, with sales of only 1,630,820 shares.

Nevertheless, the fact that a dull market had been able to recover from a creeping decline was something of an innovation, for in recent months the tendency has been in the direction of steadily lower prices during periods of inertia. Bears had little success in their sallies against the pivotal industrials. They met with slightly better luck in the utilities and rails, but all the day's drives ran into the stone wall of dullness.

When the market finally turned definitely in the last half hour it again moved with the merchandising and chain store stocks. These are the groups that seem to harbor the most cheerful Christmas prospects, and just now the professional traders are overjoyed to find a group which can be said to have possibilities for short-term trading purposes.

Department Store Sales Gain.

The Federal Reserve report that October retail sales by department stores had shown a larger than seasonal increase stimulated further activity in shares which had shown strength last Saturday with the result that net gains of 1 to more than 3 points came out in Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, F. G. Shattuck, Abraham & Straus, Kroger Grocery, R. H. Macy and May department stores.

The market had to get along with little or no news from business. October railroad earnings, beginning to filter in, disclose slight changes. So far, they are somewhat higher than October, just as September's were higher than August's, but the proportionate decrease from October, 1929, is about the same as a month ago.

Earnings statements from other corporations presented a rather even balance between losses and gains. The most prominent dividend action of the day was the halving of the Sinclair rate, but the stock paid almost no attention to the action and closed unchanged. Considerable attention was attracted to the decision to cut the Texas Oil proration to 850,000 barrels daily from the present maximum output of 750,000 barrels, which has been in effect since late August.

Grain Prices Rally.

Wheat came out of an irregular day with gains averaging about a cent a bushel. Reports of continued improvement in the export demand and official advices of black rust in Argentina, as well as a decrease in visible supply, enabled the market to weather early heaviness. Corn's gains were nominal and reflected a bullish Illinois report and a good cash demand. Cotton lost 1 to 13 points net.

With few exceptions, the closing quotations on the market's leading industrial and utility stocks were fractional. U. S. Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, General Motors, General Electric, Standard of New Jersey, American Telephone, National Biscuit and Radio advanced ¼ to ⅝. Allied Chemical fully recovered a 5-point drop. International Harvester, Eastman Kodak, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Atchison and Union Pacific finished 1 to 2 lower. Some of the rubber shares were soft, Firestone preferred losing 5 and U. S. Rubber preferred 1. Shell Union preferred regained all but a third of a 3-point recession. Pullman and Baldwin-Locomotive firmed.

Gold shipments to Canada were resumed with a $5,000,000 exportation, the first outflow to the Dominion in several weeks. Foreign exchanges were irregular. Sterling cables eased off to a new 1930 low at $4.85 9-16. The mark and the French franc were steady.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Early advances accompanied by reports that trade interests were stopping the December notices, were followed by declines in cotton here today under a renewal of liquidation or realizing which was probably combined with some Southern selling. After selling up to 11.28, early March declined to 11.11 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 1 to 13 points.

The opening was steady, unchanged to an advance of 4 points, and the active months sold about 4 to 8 points net higher during the early trading. The circulation of December notices estimated at about 43,300 bales, caused some liquidation of December, but it appeared to be readily absorbed by trade buying against sales of later deliveries. The latter were steadied by covering and buying on reports that the December notices were being stopped, but after advancing to 10.84 for new December and 14.56 for May, the demand seemed to taper off. Later fluctuations were more or less irregular with the market working gradually lower under a renewal of liquidation and scattered selling which was probably influenced by the failure of demand to broaden on the bulges and indications that the trade buying in the later months was chiefly on scale-down orders.

There were rallies of several points early in the afternoon on covering, but they were lost later and closing prices were about the lowest of the day with new December quoted at 10.74 and May at 11.37. Later months were relatively easy and there seemed to be selling of these deliveries against purchases of December. At the close new December was 63 points under May, compared with a difference of 74 points at the close of Saturday.

Much of the day's trading seemed to be connected with the further evening-up of December contracts. Of the total tenders, according to estimate heard during the day, 41 notices or approximately 4,100 bales were issued against old and 392 or 39,200 bales against the new December contract. It was supposed that these notices were being taken up at the differences between near and late months, and this view was colored by the reduction in the late month premium.

Liverpool cables said that Bombay buying had been supplied by hedging and liquidation in that market, but reported a well sustained demand for cotton cloth in Manchester with more machinery working. Reports today, 16,037, making 3,013,494 so far this season. Port receipts, 55,300. U. S. port stocks, 4,061,857.

ROCKNE FORESEES VICTORY OVER ARMY AT CHICAGO

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—In official circles, which is a good name for officialdom, as officials quit in a good deal of their time running around in circles, Cappy Wells is known as the intelligence officer of the United States Military Academy. He is the man to call up when Congressman Britten or Congressman Fish announces that the Army will have to accept the Navy's rules of eligibility for football, apologize to the Naval Academy and resume the old series right away.

"Oh, yeah," says, he over that old blunderbuss telephone which is still regulation at the post at West Point. "Oh, yeah? The hell he says! Well, you can write that official circles at West Point had no knowledge of this and that the report was not taken seriously."

"Cappy" Is Fellow the General Sends For.

Then Cappy Wells emits that sound which passes for a chuckle with him—an alarming catching of the breath as though he had a herringbone stuck crosswise in his neck and more like a death rattle than a sound of mirth. Of all the variations of the human laugh that I have ever heard, from the bull-like bellow to the nanny goat bleat, this distinctive utterance of Cappy Wells, the West Point intelligence officer, or press agent, to put him in a familiar category, is the most disturbing, and, whether you are hearing it for the first time or the thousandth, the natural conclusion is that the Cap is going to die right away and you grow panicky trying to recall what it was that you read in the book on what to do until the doctor comes as the antidote for fish bone in the neck.

The Cap is the fellow the General sends for in a hurry and then sends jumping down-river to Broadway when he wants to break up some play about West Point in the public prints. A couple of weeks ago, for instance, when the New York sport pages, and not Grover A. Whalen, started this campaign to raise $1,000,000 for the unemployed with an Army-Navy football game, the Cap came clattering in to New York at nightfall, whoa-d up his lathering taxi in front of William L. Hiff's Tavern, where the sport editors take their vittles and such on fight nights at the Garden, and stomped into the place all of a flutter.

"Cappy" Drops in All Perturbed By Rumors.

"Say, what," said he, with a pretty good effort at nonchalance for a man all out of breath, "say, what is this foolishness about an Army-Navy game this fall Of course, it's impossible, as you must know. Examinations, frozen ground, hard schedule and all that sort of thing. I hope nobody is taking this thing seriously. Oh, no, the General didn't send me. I just happened to be coming by and something just happened to remind me of some mention of the Army-Navy game this fall. I suppose it's some joke, hey?" Then he chuckled and Mr. La Hiff's Irish waiters came a running from nigh and far to bank him on the shoulderblades, air old Irish custom in cases of herring bone.

If I were nominating the one party who has done the best job of putting a big school in right with the public since the schools recognized the importance of propaganda and organized press departments a few years ago, I would close the nominations with Cappy Wells. He went up to West Point about four years ago, a stranger to the academy, being a ranker, himself, and a holdover from the war, to take over the job of endearing the Military Academy to the public without truckling to the newspapers, the politicians or the nuts. The Military Academy was a cold spot. People didn't know much about it, even in New York and, west of the Alleghenies, a West Point cadet, home on furlough, was likely to be taken for a clarinet player from some band.

Jane Dixon Best "Newspaperman" At Point.

Somewhere, along about here, the Cap married Jane Dixon, and she had been around New York at trials, mass interviews, assassinations and disasters long enough to become known as one of the best newspaper men in town. Everybody in the business

14 One-Putt Greens Is Record of Woman

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Mrs. J. D. Hathaway, of Montreal, playing an 18-hole round of golf today, made what was believed here to be a putting record for women.

Mrs. Hathaway had fourteen one-putt greens in the holes. She sank her first putt on all the last nine holes.

Four Leading Teams, Says Lou Little

Notre Dame, Alabama, Wash. State, S. California Best.

Harvard Was Guilty of Mistakes Despite Upset Victory.

By LOU LITTLE
(Columbia Head Coach):

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—With the football season about over, there are four teams in the country that seem to stand out as the strongest, namely, Notre Dame, Alabama, Washington State and Southern California. It does not necessarily follow that there are not any other elevens who have enjoyed as good records, but the aforementioned seem to be the most popular in the general opinion.

One more week will just about see the end of this intercollegiate activity, with a few more games from then on as a climax. With the season at its end, we then will sit back and listen to the opponents of football speak and write on the overemphasis given the game.

It so happened that in the East, Middle West and Far West there was one game played in each section last Saturday which seemed to stand out perhaps as the game of the day: Harvard-Yale, Northwestern-Notre Dame and Stanford-California.

Experts Fooled by Harvard.

Harvard, to come through and win from Yale in a very decisive manner, was hardly expected. Very few gave Harvard even an outside chance. I doubt if there were many critics who, analyzing the game from a very technical point of view, could possibly see how the boys from Cambridge could hope to win. Everything pointed toward a Yale victory. But as it has often been said, in a traditional football game of this nature, most anything is apt to occur. Perhaps if Harvard had won by a lucky coup we might have used the explanation that it was their spirit that carried them through. But to have them turn around and outplay Yale from practically every angle was not to be foreseen. It is true that the running attack of either team did not function exceptionally well, probably due to the fact that they had been very well scouted and very efficient defenses to stop the plays had been devised.

Center of Yale Line Strong.

But at very opportune times Barry Wood, the Harvard quarter back, called for a reverse forward pass that was thrown by himself to the offensive wing back, Huguley, down the middle of the field. Huguley started down the field at an angle of about 45 degrees, than suddenly cut back over the middle where perfect passes from Wood were being thrown and he was catching them in stride, which means, as a rule, touchdowns. Harvard could not do much with plays around the Yale ends nor through the Yale center. They seemed to gain most of their ground by a spinner play, which ran off of the Yale tackle. Yale's defensive left backer-up seemed to be pulled out of position continually by this play.

If there were to be any criticism of Harvard's offensive play, I should say that it made the mistake of running too many of their bucks and spinners into the center of the Yale line. The New Haven boys were exceptionally strong at this point.

Another criticism of judgment, I thought, was that Harvard continually waited until the fourth down to punt and many times they just did manage to get the kick away. Wood is a slow kicker and if it had not been for the exceptional protection given him by his half backs he would have been continually in trouble.

The only time that Harvard kicked before the fourth down was in the early part of the first period, when they kicked on third down and Yale blocked the kick. Ticknor, of Harvard, recovered. Had this happened on a fourth down it would have been Yale's ball, or if Yale had recovered the ball it might have meant a different game from then on.

Stribling-Griffith Bout Winner for Loughran

Chicago, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Tommy Loughran, former world light heavyweight champion, signed today to meet the winner of the Young Stribling-Tuffy Griffiths bout at the Chicago Stadium December 12, within 90 days.

The stadium proposes to stage the match involving Loughran early in January, if agreeable to Stribling or the Sioux City, Iowa, heavyweight.

G.U. Schedules Bucknell For Contest Here in '31

Bucknell College has been scheduled by Georgetown University for a football game to be played in Griffith Stadium next November 7, it was learned yesterday. The Bisons and the Hilltoppers have not met in football since 1925, when the former won, 3 to 2, on a muddy field.

Lebanon Valley also has been scheduled for a local game by Georgetown, September 26 being the date, the opening of the 1931 season. Georgetown will meet Duquesne in Pittsburgh on October 17 in another game recently arranged.

West Virginia University has been dropped from the G. U. schedule after having been the Blue and Gray's opponent here for five successive seasons, it also was learned.

4 MARYLAND PLAYERS AILING

COACH CURLY BYRD gave his regulars a day of rest yesterday as Maryland's preparations for the Johns Hopkins and Vanderbilt games this week got under way at College Park, but while the first stringers took things easy, the reserves experienced one of their busiest days.

Jack Norris, regular left end, was confined to the university infirmary with an attack of indigestion. It was announced yesterday that Norris got up from a sick bed last Saturday morning to play against Navy at Annapolis. He simply would not pass the day without trying to help his team, it was said.

Besides Norris, Al Woods, Ray Poppelman and Ernie Carliss, of the first-string array, also were indisposed yesterday, the result of the bruising Navy game.

With two games in three days looming before them, the Terrapin regulars need all the rest they can get, and it is doubtful that they will do anything more strenuous today and tomorrow than merely limber up for an hour or two.

Reserves to Get Chance Against Hopkins.

The reserves will be given the burden of the playing against Hopkins, one of Maryland's oldest foes. This game will be held Thanksgiving Day in the Baltimore Stadium. Since Hopkins this season appears no more formidable than last year, when Maryland won easily, it is thought that the Terrapin reserves can handle Thursday assignment successfully.

But because Maryland cherishes a victory over Hopkins the reserves will not be allowed to remain in the game if it seems they can not win it. Byrd will shoot the regulars into the fray promptly in the event of adverse developments.

Immediately following the end of the Hopkins contest, the Maryland squad will entrain for Nashville, where Vanderbilt, one of the South's strongest elevens, will be met on Saturday. The Terrapins will arrive in Nashville Friday in time to take a workout.

Coast First Baseman Purchased by Reds

Cincinnati, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Mickey Heath, slugging young first baseman of the Hollywood Club of the Pacific Coast League, was purchased late today by the Cincinnati National League Club, it was announced by Sidney Weil, Reds' president.

Weil said he would send two unnamed players and a "large amount" of cash to Hollywood for Heath, who batted .340 last year and hit 40 home runs.

St. Mary's Declines Bid of S. California

Oakland, Calif., Nov. 24 (A.P.).—St. Mary's College declined today an invitation of the University of Southern California for a football game for charity in Los Angeles December 20, but invited the Trojans to San Francisco for a charity game December 13.

Louis Lefevre, graduate manager at St. Mary's, explained St. Mary's was unable to accept the bid because it was pledged to play in San Francisco December 13 in a charity game under the auspices of the auxiliary of the Children's Hospital.

New Foes for Fordham On Schedule Next Year

New York, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Fordham's Football Team will face two new opponents in 1931 it was revealed today with publication of the Maroon Schedule. Drake will play here October 24 and the following week West Liberty will be Fordham's guests at the Polo Grounds. Thiel, which played here in 1929 also returns to the schedule. These three replace Baltimore, Buffalo and St. Mary's which gave the Maroons its only defeat in the last two years.

6 Georgetown Stars Face Last Game

Hoyas in Light Drill in Preparation for Saturday Game.

WHEN Georgetown takes the field against the University of Detroit Saturday in the Automotive City, it will mark the close of the college football careers of six Hilltop players. They are Capt. Bill Morris, center; Johnny Scalzi, quarter back; Johnny Bozek, Ed Leary and Phil Mooney, half backs, and Dave Muir, guard.

The Hilltop next year should muster a large crop of football candidates which on the whole should prove stronger than the present varsity group. This year's outstanding freshmen squad will then be available for varsity competition.

However, the loss of at least three of the seniors nearing their finale will be felt keenly, this trio being Morris, Scalzi and Bozek. It is considered unlikely now that the places of these three will be filled capably by new candidates.

Morris Outstanding In Line.

Morris throughout the current campaign has been outstanding in the Georgetown line. His passing has been well-nigh flawless and his defensive work has factored prominently in every game. On several occasions he has thwarted enemy touchdown attempts at the edges of the Hilltop goal line.

Scalzi and Bozek will be missed especially because of their superb offensive playing. Scalzi has been the regular quarter back and the spark plug of the team for two seasons, while Bozek has been in a class by himself as an open field runner. The combined offensive efforts of this pair can be traced in nearly 50 per cent of Georgetown's gains this season.

Valuable Reserve Players.

Leary, Mooney and Muir represent valuable reserve strength. The Hilltop coaches have never found their faith in these players unjustified when they were called on in emergencies.

Preparations for the Detroit game began yesterday in Griffith Stadium where Head Coach Tommy Mills directed a light workout consisting of defensive drill against forward passes, signal practice and calisthenics.

Hopes for Bull Fight At Newark Are Fading

Newark, N. J., Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Any possibility that a bull fight prohibited by Public Safety Director Egan might still be held faded further today when Vice Chancellor Backes denied an application for an injunction to restrain interference with the exhibition. Backers of the fight said they would seek a writ from another court compelling the city to issue a permit.

Garden Bicycle Race Draws Large Field

New York, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Fifteen teams, headed by the French combination of Alfred LeTourner and Marcel Guimbretiere, winners of the recent Chicago grind, will compete in the forty-ninth international six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden, beginning Sunday night.

The complete list was announced today as follows:

Reggie McNamara, Newark, N. J., and Tony Beckman, Secaucus, N. J.; Franco Georgetti and Paul Broccardo, Italy; Freddie Spencer, Plainfield, N. J., and Gerard Debaets, Belgium; Franz Deulberg and Paul Buschenhagen, Germany; Pietro Linari and Alfred Binda, Italy; Jimmy Walthour and Charley Winter, New York; Alfred LeTourner and Marcel Guimbretiere, France; Gaetano Belloni, Italy, and Emil Richili, Switzerland; Roger de Nef and Adolf Charlier, Belgium; Cecil Walker and Harris Horder, Australia; Norman Hill, San Jose, Calif., and Harry Horan, Newark, N. J.; Dave Landis, Irvington, N. J., and William Grimm, Maplewood, N. J.; William "Torch" Peden, Toronto, and Al Crossley, Boston, Mass.; Paul Croley, Brooklyn, and Harvey Black, Newark, N. J.; Rafelo de Pacco and Pietro Fossatti, Italy.

ALFRED HARRIERS WIN.

New York, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Alfred University won the Middle Atlantic intercollegiate cross country championship today. Individual honors in the 6-mile race over the Van Cortland Park course went to Phil Shacklette, Manhattan College, who was timed at 30 minutes 42 3-5 seconds.

"MOTHER GOOSE" was born under the name of Elizabeth Foster and married a man by the name of Isaac Goose. She was a member of the famous old South Church in Boston. It was in Boston in 1716 that her well-known songs and jingles, which she wrote for her grandchildren, were published.

It wouldn't be hard for "Wild Bill" Hudson to qualify for a job as an elevator boy. He has the ups and downs in his life all right. The record he established in Akron was made while testing a new brake developed for airplane wheels by Goodyear. Since that time the new plane has made more than 4,500 landings, 300 of which were with rigid landing gear, without shock absorbers.

Ordinary fish will drown in water when the oxygen content gets below the requirements of the fish. The mudskipper, however, will drown in any deep, clear water. The fish is essentially a mud dweller. It will also skip across wet sand, climbing rocks and roots in search of flies for food.

PROBE URGED AGAIN ON COAST

New Student Editor at Calif. Demands Probe of Coaches.

Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 24 (A.P.).—C. M. "Nibs" Price tendered his resignation as head football coach at the University of California to the student executive committee tonight.

Arthur Arlett, student editor of the daily Californian, recently ousted by the executive committee for his editorials on the football situation, was reinstated. Arlett said Price's resignation was accepted by the committee.

BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 24 (A.P.).—The University of California football situation was in turmoil again today, with the new editor of the Daily Californian, student publication, urging a complete investigation and W. W. Monahan, graduate manager, busy denying rumors that Coach C. M. "Nibs" Price has resigned.

Price refused to comment either way upon rumors that his resignation was in the hands of athletic officials of the school.

The reports started with California's 41-to-0 defeat by Stanford Saturday. It was California's fourth conference defeat this season.

William F. Calkins, elevated to editor of the Daily Californian, student publication, followed the course of his predecessor, Arthur Arlett, who was ousted by the executive committee last Wednesday because of his editorials on the football situation.

Arlett had suggested an investigation of California's football coaching staff and team and intimated that the University of Southern California had professional players on its team.

IN THE COLLEGE CORNER

By JACK ESPEY

THE lamest alibi we ever heard of concerning a defeat in sports is the one published recently in Detroit about the defeat of Michigan State by Georgetown. This one surely needs crutches.

The author blames the Spartans' loss on a photographer who was making a flashlight picture at the moment that Vandemeer, State end, was trying to catch a lateral pass. An open field and an "almost sure" touchdown lay in front of Vandemeer, according to the alibi artist, but Vandy was blinded by the flash and could not make the catch.

If Vandemeer could have seen clearly, was it a certainty that he would have made the catch? And had he caught the ball would a touchdown have resulted? We wonder where the author thought Georgetown's secondary was at the time—running the other way?

State's Second Goal Was Lucky.

Nothing is said about the fact that Michigan State's second touchdown was due largely to the fact that a fourth-string Georgetown half back, woefully lacking in experience, was guarding the players who made the score on a pass. State was lucky to get that touchdown, for an experienced player never would have permitted the Spartan receiver to go behind him, which was just what happened.

Try again, brother.

What do they feed those Albright boys that makes football players out of them? That's the question now since they held undefeated Western Maryland to a tie. Last week the question was: "Who is Albright?" Nowadays you can't tell what's growing in the underbrush of the gridiron provinces.

Maryland Resurrects Bewhiskered Play.

Maryland executed the ancient Statue of Liberty play against Navy, showing that the coaches might make things easier for themselves by digging into the files for old ones instead of losing sleep and thinking up new ones.

This long-whiskered weapon was good for 16 yards when Maryland was in the midst of a goalward drive. Bill Evans dropped back as if to pass, holding the ball over his shoulder. Bozey Berger crossed behind him, snatching the ball as he ran, and circled the middle flank with ease. With better interference he probably would have scored a touchdown.

Fenlon Newest Star of Capital Firmament.

Johnny Fenlon, Sheboygan, Mich.'s contribution to George Washington football team, showed us as nice a bit of open field running as we've seen this season when he galloped up and down against C. U. last Friday night.

Fenlon, who weighs less than 160, seems to have the drive of a 200-pounder. He gets under way quickly and changes his direction seemingly without loss of speed. He feints with his body as well as some boxers do only with their hands.

Alabama vs. Georgia Tops South's Thanksgiving Card

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Thanksgiving Day battles bring a turbulent gridiron season to a close for 13 of the 23 Southern Conference teams, while another makes its final bow Saturday.

Sewanee and North Carolina State already have hung up the moleskins and Vanderbilt finishes against Maryland Saturday. Only Duke, North Carolina, Florida, Tennessee, Georgia, Maryland and Georgia Tech have engagements booked for December 6.

The Dixie championship picture will be complete after the holiday battles for none of the later contests can accomplish more than a slight change in the standings of teams already out of the running for the title.

With a probable rose bowl invitation hanging in the balance, Alabama's victorious squad is doubly anxious to defeat Georgia and win at least a share of the Dixie laurels, while Tulane, the other unbeaten team within the conference, also has its eye on the tie for the championship as well as a possible trip to the Coast.

A battle for blood is set for Knoxville as Tennessee comes to grips with Kentucky. For two years Kentucky has spoiled Tennessee's chances for a Dixie title by holding the Vols to a tie. By whipping the Wildcats, Tennessee will not only avenge past scores but will retain possession of the coveted beer keg trophy which for several years has passed back and forth between the winners of the annual feud. Tennessee won in 1927 and has kept the keg since as a result of the tie scores.

After a week-end of rest, the Florida Alligators were back at hard work today for the Georgia Tech game. Florida will be seeking its first victory, for the Alligators have never been able to beat Tech during the long series, although several games were tied.

DIEGEL WINS IN OREGON PLAY-OFF

Sarazen Is 3 Strokes Behind Rival's Sub-Par Round.

PORTLAND, Oreg., Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Shooting par-shattering golf, Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente professional, won the Oregon open golf championship here today, defeating Gene Sarazen, New York, in an 18-hole play-off.

Diegel had to go below par to win. He posted a card of 69, three under par, while Sarazen shot 72, even par, to cover the difficult Columbia Country Club course. The two professionals were tied at 287 at the end of the regular 72 holes Sunday.

Diegel went into the lead with a birdie on the first hole. Sarazen three-putted and lost his chance for a half. On the second hole Sarazen sank a 20-foot putt and evened the match.

The next four holes were negotiated in par by both men. At the fifth Diegel's second shot went into the rough, but a remarkable recovery enabled him to half it with Sarazen in par five.

Diegel again took the lead on the seventh, when Sarazen needed three putts. Sarazen, however, sent his ball

New York, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—The advance sale of tickets for the Army-Navy football game December 13 for unemployment relief has reached $400,000.

Grover Whalen, chairman of the Salvation Army citizens' committee sponsoring the game, estimated receipts would reach $1,310,000, including profits from sale of privileges and programs.

125,000 Fans To See Game Saturday

Irish Badly Battered; Reserves May Face West Point.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Convinced at last that he has another exceptional football team, Knute Rockne today refused to get much excited over Notre Dame's seventeenth annual football argument with the undefeated Army eleven at Soldier Field Saturday.

He gave his regulars a day off for rest, took the day off himself for a visit with Chicago friends, and for about the first time in many seasons he failed to sing the blues as a training overture for the traditional gridiron duel.

"The boys are pretty badly bruised as a result of that tough game with Northwestern Saturday," Coach Rockne said, "but we'll be ready to take on the Cadets Saturday. We should win that game, although don't think I haven't the profoundest regard for the Army. They always give us a 60-minute fight.

"It may be necessary to employ a lot of second-string men for the Army game, because we've got another tough one for the following Saturday against Southern California. Most of my regulars played almost the entire game against Northwestern and it is too much to expect that even from a great football team, you know."

Although the game was five days away, Chicago already was excited about the battle tonight. There was a general scurrying about for tickets and they were so scarce that a record football crowd of 125,000 was almost assured. Wagers were not heavy, however, as all the money was reported by betting brokers to be on Notre Dame, with few takers even at odds of five to one.

All Regulars Ready For Action.

Since the Army-Notre Dame series started at West Point way back in 1913, Notre Dame has been returned a winner eleven times to the Army's four, one game resulting in a scoreless tie in 1922. With a great record behind them this season and a recorded habit of stopping the Army's football march, the "Ramblers" naturally stacked up as top-heavy favorites for Saturday's game.

Despite the battering received in the grueling fight with Northwestern, all of the Notre Dame regulars were expected to be ready for action Saturday. Marty Brill, the pivotal point in the Rambler blocking system, had a sore side and a lame hip today; Full Back Larry Mullins came back with multiple hurts and bruises; Bert Metzger, Rockne's 154-pound watch charm guard, who starred in the Northwestern game, also had a bruised side.

The full back problem was expected to be Rockne's main study this week in preparation for the Army as well as the Southern California games. Mullins, who replaced "Jumping Joe" Savoldi at that position, may be supplanted by Dan Hanley in an effort to give the line attack more power and to speed up the running and blocking plays.

Heavy drill for the engagement will open tomorrow or Wednesday—it all depends on Rockne's frame of mind and the recovery of his bruised regulars—and the fourth, fifth and sixth teams were scheduled to scrimmage against the Ramblers with Army plays. Army has been scouted thoroughly by Rockne's aids, and, in fact, his team has drilled secretly for the Army for the past three weeks.

DR. FREELAND'S STRETCH RUSH WINS BOWIE PURSE

Salmon Colt Is Reserved Off Pace

Wrigley Field Beats Maiden Juveniles in First Race.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Nov. 24.—Walter J. Salmon's Dr. Freeland came through the stretch like an express train to win the feature here today, the Glen Echo Purse, at 1 1-16 miles. J. H. Louchheim's Grey Coat was second, while William T. was third, a half length separating the first four horses, Iolian was fourth. The time was 1:48.

Rain began while the horses were at the barrier, and the large Monday crowd pushed back to the stands. But there was not enough rain to seriously impair the track.

Omareen led to the stretch. Dr. Freeland turned the first corner second but kept dropping back. Sun Mission and Grey Coat alternating in the role of contender. William T. moved up at the far turn, but did not get in front until he reached the stretch. Then Schaefer got Dr. Freeland in motion and he came too fast for the others. He paid $11.70. William T. and Grey Coat evidently were still feeling the effects of their 2¼ miles race in the Pimlico Cup.

Wrigley Field Takes Opener.

Mrs. J. D. Hertz's Wrigley Field, the favorite, beat Spanish Bonero a half length in the first race for maiden 2-year-old colts and geldings. Two lengths farther back Ramus finished third. Steffen took Wrigley Field to the front from the stalls and saved ground all the way on the rail. Royal Guinea and Caplin were almost on even terms with the winner around the bend, but in the stretch Trice and Spanish Bonero were close to the pace. Spanish Bonero closing fastest of the contenders to be second, while Trice was beaten a head for show money by Ramus, from the Nevada Stock Farm. The winner paid $7.80. The time was 1:13 for 6 furlongs.

Fred E. Kraft's filly, Memories Dear, won the second race by a length and a half from Bluch Deneen, an outsider. Algol was third, a nose behind the second horse. Sturdy, the favorite, was never prominent. The winner paid $11.50 and her backing came late. The time was 1:13 for 6 furlongs. Memories Dear was always a contender and, turning into the stretch, assumed the lead with Frankie Munden aboard and drew away toward the finish. Bluch Deneen closed fast and paid $22.00 for place. Timon was fourth. Sun Broom had early speed and kept close to the leaders until he stopped.

Francock Gallops Home in Third.

F. Munden rode his second winner when he brought home Mrs. W. Rosen's Francock in the third race, a gallop of a mile and a sixteenth, in 1:49 1-5, for 3-year-olds. The winner was a half-length in front of the favorite, Sandals, at the finish. Look By, a field horse, was third. Francock broke in front, but was taken back and Sandals took the lead, which he held to the sixteenth, when Francock again assumed command and won easily. Ronald Grey had good speed for 7 furlongs. The winner paid $22.10.

Polly Play Best of Juvenile Fillies.

The Lone Star Stable's Polly Play won the Vanity Purse for 2-year-old fillies by a half-length, with E. Watters up. The Dorwood Stable's Toney Princess was second, four lengths in front of Nevada Stock Farm's Volta Green, favorite. Thais, starting last by several lengths, was fourth in the field of six. The race was a fast one, 6 furlongs in 1:11 4-5. Rancocas Stable's Glidelia set the early pace with Polly Play forcing the leader. In the stretch, Polly Play took the lead. The winner paid $11.80.

Mrs. M. Segal's Surtees won the sixth race by a half-length from Curator, with Satisfy third. A. Greco gave the winner a good ride. Satisfy covered much ground and was far out of it until reaching the stretch. Ardmore led all of the way. The time was 1:50 3-5 for a mile and a sixteenth. The winner paid $18.10.

G. C. Winfrey's Light View, the favorite, defeated Punishment in the final drive to win the seventh race of 1 1-16 miles for 3-year-olds and upward. The winner rewarded his backers with $4.90 for each $2 invested in the mutuels.

Jockey Church took Light View around the field shortly after the half-way mark had been passed and rode him to the front at the final turn. Punishment, who had been a strong contender from the start, held on well in the late spurt, but was unequal to the task of catching Light View. One length separated the first and second place horses at the wire.

—Bowie Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 24.—The Shenandoah, at a mile and a sixteenth, for 3-year-olds, with a purse of $1,800, featuring the Bowie card, affords the Sanford Stud's STARPATIC an opportunity to make his first start since Laurel, where he started only once. This $35,000 colt in his last race in New York defeated Sir Edwin, conceding 3 pounds to that colt. The track will be slow, which does not impede the Star Master colt. He should win with the light impost of 109 pounds.

He will carry 115 pounds Thursday in the Thanksgiving $10,000 Handicap, and this race should merely be an exercise gallop for him. RACCOON, winner of two races at Laurel, probably will be the contender. ESCUTCHEON beat him a nose at Pimlico, but takes up some weight, and the Marshall Field filly is rated third. Rain began slowly during the racing today and kept falling far into the night, which will change the condition of the track.

FIRST RACE—Maiden 2-year-old fillies comprise the large field. AMERISK, which failed to get in the last race in which she was named, is selected to win on the strength of her form in the spring, when she ran with better than these. BRIGHT MISS in her last race showed early speed, but met interference and lost out. She may have better luck in this race, and is rated the contender. LOMA LINDA, second to The Marquise last week, should get in the money on that showing.

SECOND RACE — Another large field of 2-year-olds will contest here. BUSHMAN, which won his last race at Empire City for his new owner, B. C. Forbes, and on a heavy track, looks best in this field. He is a fast stretch-runner, and while belonging to the Belair Stud, won a good race at Saratoga. BACKWOODSMAN, which won his last start at Laurel, paying 66 to 1, defeating All Told and others, is rated the contender. GUIDE LEFT, a defeated favorite, running third to Traufey, may come back to his best form, and should be in the money.

THIRD RACE—Again 2-year-olds start in the third race, but at a mile and a sixteenth, and these are of higher class than the fields making up the first two races. In this race will be found some of the candidates for the Endurance. BACKGAMMON, son of Wrack, but which, unlike Wrack, does not like mud, seems easily best, with ALBAZANO, a Ladkin colt the contender. At the distance and the light weight he may be dangerous. MINE SWEEPER is best of the others. He beat Gay Bird at Pimlico.

FOURTH RACE—The Sagamore Stable filly, THE SPARE, is selected to win the Scandal Purse for fillies, secondary feature. This gives the Sagamore Stable a good chance to win a double as the same stable owns Backgammon, in the previous race. THE SPARE, in her last two races, was third to Jock and third to Grattan, respectively, and she won her three previous starts. She is a front runner and will be hard to catch. The contender probably will be C. V. Whitney's MURKY CLOUD, which revels on a slow track, and which will be coupled with FLIMSY. MURKY CLOUD was beaten a head by the fast Con Amore in her last race. PENNANT LASS, wnner at Pimlico, should be in the money.

SIXTH RACE—TITUS is picked in the sixth. He was scratched three times recently, and it is the intention to run him down. He belongs to the A. W. Wentzel Stable, has worked fast, and all he needs to win from this kind of horses is to be started. NELL W., beaten a nose by Make Believe in her last start, should be the contender again. YANKEE DOODLE, third to Promethsus the other day, should be in the money.

SEVENTH RACE—A mile and a furlong test, is for cheap ones, and WAYFARER probably is best. His race behind Punishment last week was his best since he beat Baritone at Laurel. He likes a route. Cannon will ride him. REJUVENATION is about due for a comeback. He closed very fast in his last start, coming from eleventh to fifth behind Bright Day. JANE RINEHART is probably best of the others.

SAINTS TO PRACTICE.

The St. Mary's Lyceum cagers will practice tonight in their own gym. The session will get under way at 7:30 p. m. Tomorrow night the Saints meet the Tremonts in the McFarland Gym, starting at 8 o'clock.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WRIGLEY FIELD, $7.60, $4.80, $4.00; SPANISH BONERO, $5.40, $4.40; RAMUS, $10.80.

WRIGLEY FIELD, away promptly and assuming command shortly after the start, raced ROYAL GUINEA and TRICE into submission, lost ground at the stretch turn, but came again to get up in the last sixteenth. SPANISH BONERO broke slowly, improved his position on the outside and closed in stout fashion. RAMUS worked his way to the front rapidly, but faltered when the real issue came. TRICE had speed for five furlongs. ALL TOLD weakened. FRIAR BACON was held safe.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 1:38. Off at 1:42½. Winner, Fred Kraft's ch. f. (3), by John P. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MEMORIES DEAR, $11.50, $8.00, $5.00; BLUCH DINEEN, $22.00, $18.50; ALGOL, $9.40.

MEMORIES DEAR, following in close attendance of the pace, responded stoutly to wear CALWICK down and, under strong reasons, gradually moved clear. BLUCH DINEEN, slow to get into his stride, circled the field to close full of fun. ALGOL, going in her best form, closed in good fashion. TIMON was making up ground steadily. CALWICK weakened fast the last furlong. SUN BROOM tired. STURDY showed a flash of speed at the turn. WICKER showed a dull effort. STEPHANUS stopped.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 2:13½. Off at 2:14½. Winner, Mrs. W. Rosen's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FRANCOCK, $22.10, $10.80, $6.50; SANDALS, $3.90, $3.90; LOOKBY, $15.80.

FRANCOCK, luckily avoiding interference at the first turn and saving much ground, rushed in closest pursuit of SANDALS, responded gamely for the final drive and wore the pacemaker down to get up in the final furlong. SANDALS, carried very wide at the first turn, took command when entering the back stretch, saved ground thereafter, but weakened from her early efforts. LOOKBY went to the outside when improving his position and outstayed THE MARQUISE. Latter, crowded at the first turn, closed gamely. SWEET CALL weakened. RONALD GREY quit.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,400. The Vanity. For 2-year-old fillies. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 2:43. Off at 2:44. Winner, Lone Star Stable's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—POLLY PLAY, $11.80, $5.40, $4.60; TONEY PRINCESS, $5.50, $3.80; VOLTAGREEN, $3.10.

POLLY PLAY, having keen speed from the start, displaced GLIDELIA rounding the turn, saved ground and, holding on desperately, just lasted. TONEY PRINCESS, sent wide from the start and losing ground at all stages, finished gamely. VOLTAGREEN was unable to improve her position. THAIS saved ground, but could not threaten the leaders. GLIDELIA tired. ANGRY PLUME had no mishaps.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,500. The Glen Echo. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:13. Off at 3:18. Winner, W. J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DOCTOR FREELAND, $11.70, $5.20, $3.90; GREY COAT, $5.50, $3.50; WILLIAM T., $2.60.

DOCTOR FREELAND broke well and was closer up than usual in early stages, eased back off the pace going to half-mile pole and moved up on outside turning into stretch. Closed full of courage and outgamed GREY COAT in final drive. Fichon saved ground with latter entering stretch. He hung after disposing of WILLIAM T. inside the furlong pole. Latter, hustled along from the start, went to the front rounding far turn and drew away in stretch, but tired when put to a drive. IOLLAN and SUN MISSION dropped out of it after going half a mile.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:46. Off at 3:49½. Winner, Mrs. M. Segal's ch. g. SURTEES, kept forwardly placed, closed stoutly and was up right at end. CURATOR gained command in the last half mile and held on stoutly. SATISFY, slow to get going, closed strong. ARDMORE had good speed for six furlongs. MISS EVAT had no excuse. BRAVE KNIGHT tired.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:19½. Off at 4:20. Winner, G. G. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LIGHT VIEW, $4.90, $3.50, $2.90; PUNISHMENT, $7.00, $4.50; VACATION, $5.90.

N. Y. RACING HONORS TO WIDENER

By GEORGE DALEY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—George D. Widener, not William Woodward or the late H. P. Whitney, as so many anticipated and surmised, stands first among the leading owners of the racing season in this State under the direction of the Jockey Club—a season which began on April 17 and came to an end on November 8. The figures just compiled carry a surprise touch.

Jamestown, winner of six out of seven starts and $151,925, was responsible for carrying Mr. Widener to his proud place at the top. Full returns show that Jack Joyner tightened the girths on 35 winners for a grand total of $225,635. William Woodward's Belair Stud stands second with 20 winners and $182,480, of which Gallant Fox contributed $140,875, while the late H. P. Whitney is in third place with 36 winners and $176,076, the lion's share of which was earned by Equipoise and Whichone.

Woodward Likely to Lead For Year.

When the final accounting comes from all sections of the country and the last race is run at Bowie on November 29, William Woodward is likely to lead all the rest, as Gallant Fox alone added $167,400 to his total in this district by winning the Preakness, Kentucky Derby and Arlington Classic. Even the big Whitney establishment, with divisions racing in the Middle West and in Canada, and with Equipoise winning the Pimlico Futurity of $50,860 in the famous colors, but in the name of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, hardly will overcome this amount and stand at the top as it did in 1929, with $362,305.

One year ago George D. Widener finished twentieth in the country, standing with $81,964. He will be higher this season, as altogether he has had 56 winners, counting those who scored in Maryland and at Miami, although most of those were races of a minor kind. The fact remains, however, that he has the distinction of heading the list here.

Bucknell, which will return as a Georgetown football opponent next November 7 after six years, should prove a worthy foe for the Blue and Gray. This season the Bisons had one of the best teams in the East, winning six games and losing three. Among their victims were Penn State, Albright and Villanova. They lost on 1-point margins to Temple and Washington and Jefferson and bowed to Fordham, 12 to 0.

SAYS PEGLER

knew Jane, and when she joined the Army, so to speak, and moved into an old Civil War house on the West Point reservation as the wife of the lowest-ranking captain on the post, the West Point publicity department gained a recruit who knew more about the newspaper business and how to keep things out of the papers than anybody else who had ever lived there.

Of course, the Cap undoubtedly has some private ideas on some matters which are quite opposite to the ideas of the brass hats above him. For instance, I have a notion that he believed from the very first that the Military Academy ought to accept the Navy's challenge for a charity game this year, and I hope it will not put him in bad with the general to suspect that he helped to change the old man's opinion after the original hubbub had died away. The Cap must have seen that for the Navy to offer to play a charity game and for the Army to refuse would do the Army no good, and it was very surprising, indeed, to learn that the general had suddenly changed his mind, because the crisis was just as bad when he first refused.

Cappy Wells is about 6 feet long, and straight and skinny. His hair is darkish and slightly gray and it grows every which way in tufts and licks. Sometimes he goes in uniform and sometimes he disguises himself in mufti, as intelligence officers have to do, they being the fly cops of the Army, and always he is pondering some way to put the Academy advantageously into print or keep it advantageously out.

"Cappy" May Have Helped General Change His Mind.

His biographical stuff on the Army players is the best in the country; he edited and published the Army's correspondence with the Navy in the football row and he visited around, explaining and suggesting in the New York newspaper and press association shops so persuasively that the old Navy propaganda which used to be seen a few years ago, all of it giving the Army the devil, presently vanished from the prints.

Of course, like all football partisans, he is a bit of a nut about his own team's side of any row, but then that is an unfailing characteristic of football people.

The Cap is infantry himself, and unless he resigns from the Army he will move out of that old Civil War house some day and get back to his soldiering, in which case the Army will have to look far to find his equal in his job.

"I wonder," says he, "how that Salvation Army would be to soldier in. Full of girls. I suppose their cavalry rides side-saddle." Then comes that strangling, bone-in-the-neck sound. Only a fair humorist, if that, the Cap, but the best press agent in the football business.

Bowie Notes

BOWIE RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 24.—There is a merry scramble on among the riders to sign up for the 1931 season. Among those who have landed jobs for next year are: Charlie Kurtsinger with Greentree Stable, Frankie Catrone with E. F. Sanford, Harold Thurber with George Odom and F. Munden with Gifford A. Cochran.

Munden leaves next Monday for Agua Caliente, Mexico, but will return to New York in April to join his new contract employer.

Jockey Frankie Coltiletti, who kicked Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Beau home in Saturday's rich stake, has several offers for next year. He is under contract at Kilmer at present, but is planning to join another Eastern outfit next year.

It is understood that the Greentree Stable is endeavoring to have Sonny Workman, who is under contract to C. V. Whitney, of New York, for next year, give it second call on his services.

Jockey Carl Meyers, who was suspended during the October meeting at Laurel, was restored to good standing today. He rode in the sixth race.

Willis Sharpe Kilmer today denied that he planned to supplant Trainer Doc Crawford with Bert Michell. Kilmer says he is perfectly satisfied with Crawford's work and does not plan any changes in his establishment.

Mayor Frank Hayes and Police Commissioner John O'Connell, of Waterbury, Conn., were clubhouse visitors.

Capt. J. C. Bennet sold Satisfy at private terms to Sam Louis, of Kansas City. The latter ran the filly in his interests today.

G. U. Prep Daffodils Beat St. Alban's Midgets

The Georgetown Prep Daffodils triumphed over the St. Alban's Midgets yesterday afternoon at Garrett Park by the score of 12 to 0. The Daffodils, undefeated in three starts this year, exhibited good teamwork throughout.

Tom Keating, Daffodil back, sprinted 25 yards around end to score the first touchdown, while "Duck" Williams camped under a 20-yard pass from Keating and ran another 20 yards for the second 6-pointer.

SHOOTS BUCK WITH ARROW.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Leland S. Hill came home from the Northern Michigan woods today bringing back a 175-pound buck. Hill didn't take a gun with him on his hunting trip. He was equipped with his trusty bow and arrow—home made.

Clark and Nicholson Train for Marathon

Haskell Clark and Buck Nicholson, local marathon runners, are training diligently on the track around the Sixteenth Street Reservoir in preparation for the twenty-first annual Berwick (Pa.) Marathon, a nine and one-fourth-mile test which attracts many nationally known runners each year.

Nonmembers Invited To Club Turkey Shoot

"Open House" to all local and nearby trapshooters and other marksmen has been ordered by the officers of the Washington Gun Club in the club's annual turkey shoot on Thanksgiving at the club traps on Benning road, adjoining the Potomac Electric Power House.

The shooting begins promptly at 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

The program calls for 25 clay targets, whose cost is included in the entry fee of $1.50.

THREE TRADITIONAL GAMES IN VIRGINIA THURSDAY

Virginia-N.C. Clash Will Feature

Rivals in Annual Contest on Charlottesville Field.

V.M.I. Plays V.P.I.; Indians Tackle Richmond.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 24 (A.P.)—Thanksgiving brings to Virginians the three traditional battles that makes Old Dominion gridiron history colorful. The oldest of these is the struggle between the University of Virginia Cavaliers and the North Carolina University Tarheels returning this year to Charlottesville.

To Roanoke goes the South's Military classic—the twenty-eighth game between the V. M. I. Cadets and the V. P. I. Gobblers. In Richmond there will be the collegiate climax between the William and Mary Indians and the University of Richmond Spiders.

Since 1892, the Virginia-Carolina game has been a traditional contest. Alumni who wore the V. M. I. grey and the V. P. I blue in 1894 recall the beginning of football battles between the two institutes that since that time have been occasion for the gathering of thousands of "old grads." Pages in football history of William and Mary and Richmond College dating back to 1893 described grim battles marked by rivalry that glowed nearly a quarter of a century before co-eds came to Virginia's oldest college.

Prognosticators long since stopped trying to forecast the outcome of these games, whose crowds have included persons from the rank of President and governor to the most humble freshmen, all thrilled with the spirit that grows out of traditional rivalry.

To the tunes of martial music students have marched. To the strains of bands gaily uniformed in college colors, bare-headed alumni have stood to sing "alma mater." Amid the cheers of countless thousands games have been won and lost.

Thanksgiving will bring to Virginia a day of football. Bold fans have said Carolina will repeat the licking given to Virginia last year; that V. P. I. will break the V. M. I. jinx that has been disastrous for three successive years, and that the Indians are to add another game to their list of victories over the Spiders.

These six teams have been playing these Thanksgiving games many years and there have been but few ties.

Carolina has beaten Virginia for the last three years. But Virginia has beaten Carolina 22 out of 34 games played.

Last year the Tarheels were credited with having their best team in years, and they defeated the Cavaliers, 41-7.

Critics this year say Carolina still has a good team, although their record has not quite measured up to that of 1929.

They have beaten Wake Forest, 13 to 0; V. P. I., 39 to 21; Maryland, 26 to 21, and N. C. State, 13 to 6. They were defeated by Tennessee, 9 to 7; Georgia, 26 to 0, and Davidson, 7 to 6. Their Georgia Tech game resulted in a 6-to-6 tie.

48	Rand.-Macon	0	6
0	Duke	32	6
6	Pennsylvania	40	12
13	V. M. I.	0	21

Kentucky 47
Maryland 14
V. P. I. 34
Wash. & Lee.. 7

V. M. I. has defeated Richmond College, 13 to 0; St. John's, 6 to 0; Davidson, 6 to 0; and has been defeated by Citadel, 7 to 6; Virginia, 13 to 0; Maryland, 20 to 0; Clemson, 31 to 0, and Kentucky, 26 to 0.

V. P. I.'s record follows:

21	North Carol.	39	0
6	Vanderbilt	40	54
0	Wm. & Mary	6	7

Davidson 19
Wash. & Lee.. 0
Virginia 13
Maryland 7

William and Mary has defeated Guilford, 34 to 0; Wofford, 19 to 6; Bridgewater, 31 to 0; Roanoke, 39 to 0, and Emory and Henry, 27 to 0. They were defeated by Navy, 19 to 6, and V. P. I., 7 to 6. The Harvard game resulted in a 13-13 tie.

The Richmond College record follows:

0	V. M. I.	13	0

Emory & Hy. 6
Rand.-Macon. 6

West Va. Wesleyans Play Marshall Next

Buckhannon, W. Va., Nov. 24.—The game with Marshall College now looms up before Coach Cebe Ross and his band of West Virginia Wesleyan gridders, the finale for the 1930 season and coming just five days following the encounter with Duquesne University in Pittsburgh Saturday. Fairfield Stadium, football show place of Huntington, will be the scene of the annual southern West Virginia football classic.

The Methodists returned home late Monday afternoon from Pittsburgh, a battered group of pigskin warriors, facing only two days to round into shape, before departing for Huntington on Wednesday morning. Coach Cebe Ross is confronted with a mountainous task in getting the Bobcats in shape for the Turkey Day battle.

Bank Entanglements Hold Up Club Plans

Although work of organizing the Knoxville Club has been delayed because of the Holston Union Bank entanglement in Tennessee, the city has no intention of giving up the Southern Association franchise, transferred from Mobile. Reports have been circulated that Knoxville was going to back out, but Maj. George L. Berry, principal backer, has wired the league president, John D. Martin, that the program as laid down at Memphis will be carried out.

OFF FOR MONTE CARLO.

Monte Carlo is the destination of Alva Bradley, multimillionaire owner of the Cleveland Ball Club, says report. Probably to see if he can win enough money to pay Wes Ferrell's 1931 salary, says James C. Isaminger, in his column, Hit and Run.

CAPITAL CITY ELEVENS IN 2 GAMES

Palace and Petworth, Frats and Marions Clash Thursday.

CAPITAL City Football League fans will be given an opportunity to see four teams in action on Thanksgiving Day, when the Alpha Delta Omegas clash with the Marions in a nonleague attraction, and the Petworth Pennants take on Palace-District Grocery Stores in a regularly scheduled 150-pound division contest which has been moved up from its originally listed date of December 7.

Rivals to Be Strengthened For Contest.

Inasmuch as the regular league season closed for the unlimiteds last Sunday with the Mercurys capturing the championship, both Alpha Deltas and Marions will be strengthened considerably by the addition of many players from other teams in the section. The game will be staged at Dreadnaught Park, Alexandria, and will have a 2:30 o'clock kick-off.

The Palaces by defeating the Pennants, can go into undisputed possession of third place in the division, while the Pets on the other hand aspire to a tie for fifth position which is now held exclusively by the Southwesters. The two clubs will battle it out on the Silver Spring Field, starting at 2:30 p. m.

Ferguson to Referee Title Pocket Billiards

Joseph Ferguson, of New York, has been selected to referee the world's championship pocket billiard tournament, which will be played at Dwyer's Broadway Academy in New York from December 8 to 18. Ferguson, a noted billiard official, has refereed more than five world's championships. He officiated at the championship tournament in Detroit last December. The work of Ferguson was so satisfactory last season that his selection met with the unanimous approval of the tournament committee of the National Billiard Association of America.

A number of changes in the rules will be effective in the coming championship, and according to C. A. Storer, director of the tournaments for the National Billiard Association, these changes will be made known to the referee and players at a special meeting to be held two days before the title tournament starts. This indicates that all the players will be in New York on the Saturday before play begins.

Ralph Greenleaf, the defending champion, has been playing exhibitions in the East and intends to be occupied in exhibition work in New York City during the final week. Erwin Rudolph and Onofrio Lauri already are there, while Frank Taberski, last year's champion, will remain at his home in Schenectady, N. Y., until two days before the tournament starts.

Navy Prepares Reserves For Contest With G. W.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 24.—The Navy regulars were rested today and may also have a lay-off tomorrow, Head Coach Navy Bill Ingram announced. However, there was no let up for the reserves, who will likely face the George Washington University Team in a major portion of Saturday's game here, incidentally the last home game of the year.

The Tar back field tonight was composed of Fleck, quarter back; Castree and Davis, half backs, and Antrim, full back. Moncure substituted on several occasions. The reserves played a full game against the Frank Foster's B Squad, which is prepping for the George Washington University freshmen on Turkey Day.

Both George Washington teams will likely face the University of Pennsylvania system, as the Navy scrubs and reserves are prepping in Penn plays to flash against the Varsity and they will likely try them out against the Washingtonians.

The Navy Varsity, while likely to play awhile against the Colonials, will nevertheless turn the main burden over to the reserves. All Navy regulars came through the Maryland game without injury, and the improved line play is held encouraging by the coaches.

As the players trotted out onto the field today they were greeted with a huge insignia in the midshipmen section of the stands, spreading out over 2,000 seats usually occupied by the regiment were the words "Beat Army." The lettering was in white pasteboard over a background of red with the traditional Navy blue and gold as a border. It was an eye-opening reminder of the forthcoming charity game with the West Point Cadets.

Capt. Henry D. Cooke, director of athletics; Lieut. Comdr. Frederick G. Reinicke, director of football, and Roland Thomas, treasurer of the Navy Athletic Association, were in New York today perfecting plans from a naval angle for the service grid game in the Yankee Stadium on December 13.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Nov. 24.—Fire Chief James M. Duncan, of the municipal government, today was appointed chairman of Armory Hall for the incoming basket ball season by City Manager Wallace Lawrence.

Immediately upon assuming his new duties, Chief Duncan called an important meeting of all Alexandria basket ball teams to be held in the city hall building, Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock. At this time dates for the use of the armory will be alloted to the clubs in the field.

At present Alexandria has four unlimited teams—St. Mary's Celtics, Alpha Delta Omega, St. Mary's Lyceum Club and Del Ray Athletic Club. It is reported the R. P. & P. All-Stars will place a club in the field, while Bill Hammond, manager of the Pirate Athletic Club, plans to apply for permission to use his team in some of the preliminary encounters.

In the scholastic realm, the Virginia city will be represented by the Alexandria High Quint. This team will be combined with players from the local institution and George Mason High, recently acquired by the city through annexation proceedings. The "Twins" will play approximately 28 court games. Their big game will be with Woodrow Wilson High of Portsmouth here on February 16.

Manager Cleveland Shaw, of Engine Company No. 5, is seeking a grid game with some fast Washington opponent for Thanksgiving Day. He can be reached by phoning Alexandria 331.

Episcopal High School varsity team was given a rousing welcome by the students today for defeating their traditional rivals, Woodberry Forest Academy, last Saturday, 12-5, at Orange, Va.

The Maroon and Black gridders won every game they played this season. They defeated Eastern, Western and Technical High Schools' elevens of Washington, besides Woodberry Forest, Gilman Country, of Baltimore, Virginia Episcopal, of Lynchburg, and Augusta Military Academy, Fishburne M. A., Swavely Prep and Shenandoah M. A.

Dick Cardwell, former University of Virginia star, coached the club. He was assisted by Gus Kaminer, of Virginia, and Bob Lawson, late of Hampden-Sidney. The team was rated as the best at the Seminary Hill institution in the past eight years.

The St. Mary's Lyceum Basket Ball Club will trek to Washington on Tuesday night to meet the Tremonts. This game will be played in the McFarland High Gymnasium. Bob Vogt is manager of the "Saints." The club is made up of players who performed with last year's high school and Whitestone's Store, independent quints.

Head Coach Rube Hayman reports his entire team came out of the Apache game in Washington Sunday in good shape. Dick Allen was the only player injured. He suffered a wrenched shoulder, but will be ready for next Sunday's tussle with the Monawks, at Griffith's Stadium.

In preparation for this battle the Green and Gold warriors will practice each night this week at Baggett's Stadium. Special attention will be given to the back field, so they can click in the next engagement.

The Lyon Park A. C. has claimed the 125-pound football championship of Northern Virginia. Manager Clements, of the Lyon Park A. C., would like to hear from other clubs regarding his claims, so a series can be arranged. His phone number is Clarendon 786-W-2.

Doggie Hamilton's Del Ray Athletic Club will clash with the Northerns next Sunday on Edward Duncan Field. This is the next to final game of the season for the Red Birds, as they play Alpha Delta Omega eleven the following Sunday.

RAMSEY NEXT GOLF HEAD.

H. H. Ramsey will be president of the United States Golf Association during the coming season, taking the place vacated by Finlay Douglas.

SITE NOT YET CHOSEN.

A city in Alberta yet to be chosen will be the scene of the 1931 track and field meet of the Amateur Athletic Federation of Canada.

SHIELDS HEADS COACHES.

18 GRIDDERS TO BE LOST BY BROWN

Special to The Washington Post.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 24.—Eighteen men, thirteen of whom are letter men, will be playing their last game for Brown when Colgate comes to this city for the final encounter Thanksgiving Day morning. Seven of the men are regulars and the others are on the varsity reserve list, and the entire lot represents one of the largest and most imposing lots of gridders to leave a Brown team in years and years.

Heading the list are the following members of the A team, who have been towers of strength on the 1930 team that has lost only to Yale for one of the finest records in the history of the sport at Brown: Capt. W. Lincoln Fogarty, of Flushing, N. Y.; Joe Schein, of Newark, N. J.; John Gillies, of Brooklyn; Oscar Schneider, of Newark, N. J.; John Horton, of Providence; Frank Gurll, of New Bedford, Mass.; Wahe Johnson, of Providence, and Ralph Richardson, of Providence, all of whom are regulars this season.

Many Near-Regulars To Go.

Just back of this group are the near-regulars: Ken Henn, of Cleveland, Ohio; Ernest Hapgood, of Newton, Mass.; Ken Allen, of Newton; Dave Edes, of Newport, R. I.; Lou Demmler, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Gus Lundstedt, of Lynn, Mass.; Lee Marshall, of New York City; Joe Mahood, of Flushing; Bob Morey, of Canandaigua, N. Y., and Jim McDonough, of Manchester, N. H.

Fogarty, Schein, Schneider, Johnson, Gurll and Hapgood have been regulars for three years; Richardson broke into the line-up this year for the first time; Gillies is in his second year on the top list after being ineligible last season, and Horton and Henn have been close to the top for three years.

The graduation of this number of men in June will throw the ranks of the A and B teams wide open to a flock of newcomers, for only Perrebee, Mackasey, Sawyer, Chase, Gilmartin, Rotelli and Wiley, of the A team, stick through for another year.

TECH PLAYS SWAVELY ELEVEN

By BOB CONSIDINE.

SINCE the first few all-American teams were chosen by Walter Camp and his predecessors who, in doing so, had only to stroll around to glimpse at four or five teams, there has been constant wearing of sackcloth because the chosen all-Americans can not take the field and produce against a strong opponent a composite picture of the country's best football. So far as is known none of the myriads of all-American teams has ever been together on the same field.

It is something of a jump, but Tech High School's practically all-high team will be seen in action twice before the end of the season. Four Manual Trainers were "taken out" by the sports scriveners in charge of picking the several all-highs in a manner which smacked more of appreciation of the hard work of the other teams than in the belief that, touched up here and there, Tech would be an even better team than it is now.

Tech Needs No Strengthening.

Tech, perhaps fortunately without the services of the players we have presented to them, journeys to Manassas Thanksgiving for one of its sternest tests of the year, meeting Swavely Prep on the enemy's own field. Coach Hardell, full of pessimism again, after a full week of unadulterated crowing over his team, looks on the Swavely game as a truly tough assignment.

Swavely has issued warnings that it is a good club this year by sending Gonzaga home on the short end of 19-6 and yielding to Episcopal only at 13-6. Tech's 1928 team met disaster at Manassas, Coach Hardell also recalls.

If Central High Stadium can be obtained, Tech will have another game before the season ends. Gonzaga is scheduled to be met December 5 at Tech, but plans for the game will probably drop through if Central's superior field can not be obtained. Tech's turf is in poor shape, nor is the field as conveniently reached as is Central's.

Eastern to Battle Gonzaga.

Eastern plays its final game of the season Thursday when Coach Kelley sends his well-trained team against Gonzaga at Eastern Field. This should produce a keen Turkey Day match, with Eastern leading the way by dint of greater weight and a bit more experience.

Western also will wind up its season Thanksgiving if negotiations with Jamaica High, of New York, come to a head, while Georgetown Prep is due to journey to New Rochelle on Saturday to meet Iona Prep.

Salem College Players Take "Beard" Pledge

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 24.—Salem College football players are growing beards as the result of a pledge they made last week. All signed a paper not to shave until they win a game. Saturday they lost to West Liberty at Wheeling and unless they win from Fairmont State Normal Thanksgiving Day, they will resemble members of the House of David when they appear in the jobless charity fund game here December 5.

V. M. I. to Play Duke Eleven Next Season

Lexington, Va., Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Duke University replaces St. Johns College, of Annapolis, on the Virginia Military Institute 1931 football schedule announced today by Maj. Blandy Clarkson, athletic director. The Duke game will be played at Durham.

The card calls for nine games, six with Southern Conference teams. Kentucky will be the homecoming day adversary of the Cadets.

The schedule:

September 26, Richmond at Richmond. October 3, Duke at Durham; 10, Citadel here; 17, Virginia at Charlottesville; 24, Maryland at Richmond; 31, Davidson at Davidson.

November 7, Clemson at Norfolk; 14, Kentucky here; 26 (Thanksgiving), Virginia Polytechnic Institute at Roanoke.

Audley Farm Horses Go to Agua Caliente

Special to The Washington Post.

Agua Caliente, Baja California, Mexico, Nov. 24.—Two more carloads of crack Eastern horses are now on their way from Kentucky to Tia Juana for the annual race meeting of the Agua Caliente Jockey Club, which gets under way Thursday, December 25, Christmas Day. General Manager James N. Crofton received word yesterday to this effect. Both carloads will arrive at the Agua Caliente Jockey Club November 20.

One carload will consist of the famous Audley Farm thoroughbreds, twelve in number, trained by Kay Spence. They are coming out in charge of Terry O'Malley, who has been doing excellent work for the Agua Caliente Jockey Club on the Kentucky tracks. The Audley Farm shipment will include the following: Easter Stockings, Nellie Custis, Banner Bright, The Choctaw, Oui Monsier, International II, Royal Yeoman, Blue Ash and several others. These will be added to the meeting there. This will be the first appearance of this great Audley Farm string at Agua Caliente. Their headquarters are at Barryville, Va., and there is no doubt that they will be right up among the leaders during the Agua Caliente winter meeting. Jockey Schutte is also coming.

Air Billiard Match Called Off by Chiefs

The schedule aerial billiard match, with Willie Hoppe as one of the contestants, has been called off by the National Billiard Association of America. Hoppe was scheduled to meet either Welker Cochran or Jake Schaefer in a special straight-rail match in the Curtiss-Wright Condor plane over New York and the match was tentatively listed to be played the latter part of this month. When Hoppe took part in an unsanctioned billiard match against Cochran the National Billiard Association, which was sponsoring the aerial test, took action.

C. A. Storer, director of tournaments for the National Billiard Association, said that an aerial match would be played in New York in December in connection with the world's championship pocket billiard tournament, which will be in progress there from December 8 to 18. Schaefer may be asked to take part, or Ralph Greenleaf, the world's pocket billiard champion, who gave the first aerial billiard exhibition on record in Detroit last December, may get the assignment.

Thomas Has Brilliant Record As Virginia U. Grid Player

CHARLOOTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 24. Bill Thomas, Virginia's premier half back, has averaged a gain of 5 yards plus 1 foot each time he has tried to advance the ball from scrimmage this fall.

In the eight games in which he has played Thomas has received the ball from center 196 times. He has tucked it under his arm and started to run 126 times, for total gains of 586 yards. He has passed 37 times, for 279 yards gained. And 33 times he has punted.

Thomas has averaged a gain of a few inches less than 5 yards each time he has carried the ball. His 37 passes averaged gains of 7½ yards each time he tossed the ball into the air. Twenty of his throws were completed. Combining passes and running plays his season average is about 5 1-3 yards.

The Kentucky contest was the only one in which Thomas did not take part. A Charley horse kept him on the bench then. His best gains, however, were not against weaker teams, for he played less than twenty minutes against Roanoke College, and was in the Randolph-Macon game scarcely ten minutes.

Included in this yardage total are none of the punts he has returned nor the kick-offs he has received. Nor does it count his 80-yard sprint for a touchdown in the Maryland game, when Burger's fumble popped into his arms. He made two of his best gains against Duke, when he gained 62 yards off tackle, and later brought back a kick-off 50 yards.

Thomas is now leading the Southern Conference scorers in the Old Dominion, with seven touchdowns and one extra point.

The punts of Thomas are not always long and high, but they are usually well placed. He has developed the knack of getting a long roll. Time and again he has punted out of bounds inside the 10-yard line.

On defense Thomas is just as valuable as he is on offense. He is a deadly tackler and opposing runners rarely, if ever, get by him. Though he plays safety man, several times this season he has knifed through and thrown an opposing ball carrier for a loss.

Thomas did this trick in the V. M. I. game when the Cadets had 2 yards to go for a touchdown. He caught Travers 6 yards behind the scrimmage line. Last Saturday he repeated this when W. and L. had first down and 4 yards to go on to the goal. On the first play he tackled Thibadeau for a 1-yard loss. Then Virginia held and took the ball.

Cagle Likes Pro Football Despite His Injury in Debut

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—"I never thought or believed a line could be so tough," declared Chris "Red" Cagle, former idol of the West Point and now a member of the Giants as he rubbed his injured head in the clubhouse at the Polo Grounds this afternoon while his comrades went through a light workout o nthe field in preparation for their game with Stapleton on Thursday.

Cagle made his professional debut Sunday against the Green Bay Packers and was injured early in the first quarter when he collided with Tom Nash, the big end from Georgia University. The impact made a deep gash in Cagle's head, and he had to have it stitched in the clubhouse. Cagle came back i nthe final quarter and did his bit to keep the Packers from tieing the score.

"There's no fooling about this professional football," Cagle continued, "and when they tackle, they mean it. Both teams fought bitterly from the start to the end, but there was no unnecessary roughness.

"I like professional football. I'll be ready for a workout tomorrow and in condition to play against Stapleton."

The person most affected by the injury to Cagle was Fred Wandle, former coach of the Army eleven. When Cagle was hurt, Wandle rushed on the field and later helped dress the wound in the clubhouse.

Nash is through with football for the season. His nose is broken, and he was badly shaken up when he came into contact with the former Army captain. Today he left for his home in the South and will rest until it is time to report to the Giants at the training camp in San Antonio, Tex.

Nash was drafted by the Giants from the Asheville Club of the South Atlantic League. He is an outfielder.

Tunney Suit by Hoff Again Is Postponed

New York, Nov. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The warning gong marking the opening of the legal bout between Max (Boo-Boo) Hoff and James Joseph (Gene) Tunney was postponed again today when the case, which has been awaiting trial all month, was passed again in supreme court. It will mark the retired champion's second appearance in court within a month, following close on the heels of his triumph in a legal bout with Tim Mara, sports promoter, over fees which the latter claimed for certain professional services.

TEAMS MAKE FIRST VISIT HERE

Hampden-Sidney to Tackle Johnnies Thanksgiving.

WHEN the Tigers of Hampden-Sidney and the Johnnies of St. John's, of Annapolis, meet in Central Stadium Thanksgiving afternoon two radically different systems of football will be on display. The Virginians employ the Warner system, which is expounded in them by Coach Charles Bernier, while the Annapolitans use a shift not unlike Notre Dame's though they are coached by Teady Riggs, a Maryland alumnus.

Bernier is a firm devotee of the Warner system of play and is certain that his system and his team will prevail when the holiday sun sinks. Beginning the year with only five veterans from last year's strong team, Coach Bernier was severely handicapped in getting his team clicking in all departments. Now, however, he has a smooth, well drilled and well oiled eleven working like clockwork.

Tigers Now in Top Form.

The Tigers got off to a poor start this fall but have found themselves lately and are strong enough to give any team in their class a mighty stiff argument. Since Thursday's game will be the first football contest between these two old colleges the Tigers will be striving with might and main to make their debut a winning one.

The game also will be the first in Washington for the Johnnies, and they, too, are pointing for the clash. Two local boys, Bob MacCartee and Paul Cassasa, former Central stars, are members of the Johnnies and the fact that they will be playing football before a home crowd for the first time since their scholastic days will be an added incentive for them to do things and go places with the pigskin. Both are back field stars, each playing one of the half backs.

Coach Riggs attended five different coaching schools of Knute Rockne and is highly enthused about the famous Notre Dame style of play. He has one variation which he believes gives greater deception to his attack. This is having one of his backs in motion just before the ball is snapped. Naturally he feels his system is superior to the Warner style and expects his Johnnies to prove it.

NAVY GIVEN REST.

IRREGULARLY LOWER TREND RULES BONDS

Better Domestic Corporate and Treasury Issues Still Move Ahead.

LATIN-AMERICANS HEAVY

New York, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—The bond market began a new week with a very dull session in which prices drifted irregularly lower.

High priced domestic corporate obligations maintained their upward trend in very quiet activity, but a heavy tone dominated bonds ranking under the best. Buying of United States Governments was not as brisk as last week. Liberties, which were a strong feature last week, held their ground while Treasury issues—the 3¾s of 1940 and the 3¼s reached new peaks for the year.

German International 5½s were bolstered by buying encouraged by the record low reached last week and the bond advanced 2 points on a turnover that was the bright spot in the foreign list. Otherwise there was no change over the week-end, the group moving irregularly lower.

Latin Americans were heavy. More than a dozen were sharply depressed by light selling. Bolivian 7s of 1958 reacted 2 points and the 8s declined 3. Buenos Aires 6½s, Cauca Valley 7½s, Bogota City 8s, Minas Geraes 6½s, Peru 7s, Rio de Janeiro 8s and Sao Paulo State 8s and 7s dropped a point or more.

The listless trading carried most of the railroad issues slightly lower. There was pronounced weakness in Spokane International 5s, Wabash 5s D, Wilkes-Barre & Eastern 5s, Cotton Belt first 5s and Erie general 4s, all of which sank to new 1930 minimums. St. Louis San Francisco 4½s, Missouri Pacific general 4s, M. K. & T. 5s, Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s and Denver & Rio Grande & Western 5s eased.

In the industrial group, liquidation in several oil company bonds was conspicuous. Skelly Oil 5½s, and Shell Union 5s dipped to their low level of the year. Stock privilege issues were under some pressure and generally lower, although showing no marked weakness.

BANKING CONDITIONS ARE CALLED SOUND

National Review Discloses Country Unaffected by Wave of Failures.

LOCAL CAUSES BLAMED

(Associated Press.)

Sound and satisfactory banking conditions throughout the country generally were reported yesterday in statements telegraphed to the United States Daily by State commissioners of banking.

Recent failures were attributed to local causes and were said by the banking officials to have strengthened the general position by elimination of weak spots.

The situation in North Carolina, where there were several recent failures, was said by John Mitchell, chief bank examiner, to have resulted from a purely local situation, made acute by the investment banking house failure.

Out of the situation there, he predicted, "should come considerable impetus to the strong tendency already existent in the State toward sounder and more conservative banking."

There have been a few small failures in Tennessee, said D. D. Robertson, superintendent of banks, "due largely to heavy withdrawals, occasioned by failure of large banks in this and adjoining States, affiliated with Caldwell interests."

No further bank trouble is expected in Kentucky, Banking Commissioner O. S. Denny said. Most all of the State banks there are in healthy condition, he announced, and conditions in Louisville are wonderfully improved.

That several of the banks which closed in Arkansas have already reopened, and most of the others except those connected with one chain, will do so, was the statement of Walter E. Taylor, banking commissioner.

"Many of the suspended banks," he continued, "closed temporarily as a protection of depositors, and were at no time insolvent."

Archduke Cleared In Larcency Trial

Austrian Nobleman Still Faced by Charge of Actual Theft.

New York, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—A jury tonight acquitted Archduke Leopold, of Austria, of a charge that he aided in a grand larceny through unauthorized sale of a Napoleon necklace, the property of his great-aunt, the Archduchess Marie Theresa.

The archduke was accused of having abetted the sale of the relic for $60,000. The gems were allegedly disposed of to a Fifth avenue jeweler for far less than their sentimental value.

The Austrian nobleman, in certain circumstances an heir to the Hapsburg throne, which fell during the latter part of that country's participation in the World War, was cleared by the twelve American jurors of the first of charges against him in about four hours of deliberation.

Prominent Film Firms Sued for $5,130,000

New York, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Actions for sums aggregating $5,130,000 were filed today in Federal district court against the Paramount-Publix Corporation, the Motion Picture Producers & Distributors of America, Inc.; the Nector Theater Corporation, Adolph Zukor, Sidney R. Kent and Sam Katz.

Edward Quisttner, producer and manager, of Middletown, N. Y., and the Middletown Combine Buildings Co., Inc., brought the actions, claiming a chain of theaters owned and operated by them have been damaged to the extent of one-third of the amount asked by acts of the defendants in restraint of trade and violation of the antitrust laws. Messrs. Zukor, Kent and Katz are officers of Paramount-Publix, of which Necto is a theater-owning subsidiary.

Ruth Nichols in Ohio On Record Flight West

Miss Nichols landed at Port Columbus at 11:55 a. m. (Eastern standard time) from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., and postponed the flight to St. Louis and Wichita after the airport weather bureau advised there was danger of ice forming on the wings of her monoplane, "The New Cincinnati."

Junior Record Flier Is Down in Arizona

Tucson, Ariz., Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Gerald Nettleton, 20-year-old aviator seeking a transcontinental junior flight record, telephoned the airport here at 11:30 a. m. (M. S. T.) today he had been forced by motor trouble to land at Benson, Ariz., en route from El Paso, Tex., to the Pacific Coast.

After looking over his motor, Nettleton said continuance of his flight to San Diego would be delayed at least until tomorrow. He informed airport officials he would motor to Tucson to obtain two rocker arms ordered from Phoenix.

CLAIRVOYANTS

CLAIRVOYANT KNOWS THE MAN WHO

608 12th St. N.W.

Over Woolworth's

5c & 10c Store

This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been, just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry; whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to children, trust, lost or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds; whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful powers.

Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

COUNTY MAY BUILD LIBRARY BUILDING

PUPILS' HEALTH RATINGS

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With the approval of the county authorities to the plan as proposed by the sponsors of the Arlington District Library for a county-owned building, a modernly equipped library building in the vicinity of Clarendon, it was learned yesterday, appears assured.

The library, which was organized seven years ago through efforts of the Woman's Civic Club of Clarendon, has grown from one with 80 volumes to one today having more than 4,500 books. The library opened with quarters in the Clarendon Community Hall and after two years, having outgrown its home, moved to an office room located on Clarendon avenue, where it stayed until last April. With books in the cellar of the building and on the floor, it was necessary to seek larger quarters. Its present home is at the intersection of Virginia avenue and Wilson boulevard.

According to officials of the library, it is anticipated that before the lease on the present building expires in April of next year that a site will have been found upon which the county will erect a modern library building and give Arlington District a library building which will compare with that of Jefferson District.

The library, it was stated, has been financed through the cooperation of a number of religious and civic organizations, but the move for a county-owned building was determined upon by those that have made the library possible as it is felt that the county should help Arlington District bear the expense as the library located in Jefferson district is not required to pay any rent for the building.

It was pointed out that when the new building is provided the library will be divided into departments—the children's section, one for the adults and another where all reference books will be found.

A feature which has been added is the amendment to the constitution now effective which provides for sustaining membership which is not confined to any community but is county-wide.

Airplane Pilot Gives Alarm on Forest Fire

Seeing airplanes flying overhead is an everyday occurrence to residents of Fairfax County, but receiving messages from them is uncommon. Yesterday morning J. H. Wells, a telephone lineman working on a pole near Clifton Station, Va., noticed a plane keep circling over the village, the pilot finally dropping something over the side. The object fell near Wells, and on investigation he found it contained a note, which read:

Aircraft Squadron, East Coast Expedition, Marine Barracks, Quantico, Va., cooperating with the Virginia Forest Service, Forest Warden. 11-24-30. There is a fire four miles south of you (Clifton Station) in Prince William County. K. H. Hollys, pilot. Please report to the nearest Forest Warden."

Wells immediately obtained his portable telephone set and notified the Fairfax telephone operator who got in touch with the proper authorities and men were dispatched to the scene of the fire from Manassas.

MAYOR OF LAUREL FIGHTS AUTO CASE

He Claims State Roads Body Has No Jurisdiction in Town Limits.

JURY TRIAL IS ASKED

Contending that the State Road Commission has no authority over roads in Laurel, J. H. Fetty, mayor of that town, yesterday asked for a jury trial on the charge of illegal parking. Fetty was arrested about ten days ago on a warrant sworn out by an employe of the commission. It was alleged that the mayor had refused to move his car, which was parked on the new shoulder of the Baltimore boulevard, within the town limits of Laurel.

When he appeared before Police Court Judge J. Chew Sheriff yesterday, Fetty, through his counsel, George P. McCeney, moved that the warrant be quashed. Town authorities are supreme in the matter of parking regulations inside the town limits, McCeney claimed. Judge Sheriff overruled the motion. McCeney then asked a jury trial before the circuit court, which was granted. The case will come up at the April term.

Right-of-way for a sidewalk in front of its property has been deeded to the town of Hyattsville by the State Roads Commission, and the commission has also agreed to pay its share of the cost of construction. This means that work on the walkway will begin again in the near future.

Right of way had been procured from all landowners along Rhode Island avenue, between Jonson and Melrose avenues except from the commission and a barbecue stand. No sidewalk will be laid in front of the latter place at this time, due to the failure to get the land.

Work on the walk already has begun, but the contractor was stopped when difficulties were met in getting the agreement of the abutting property owners.

Preparing for the harmonica contest, which will be held next June by the pupils of the Prince Georges County schools, authorities yesterday ordered 75 more of the instruments. Thirty of these will go to the Takoma Park School and 45 to the Bladensburg Junior High School.

HEAVY SENTENCES ARE HANDED THREE

Despite Guilty Pleas, Judge Deals Severely With Montgomery Trio.

BOY GIVEN FOUR YEARS

Stiff sentences were meted out in three cases in Montgomery County Circuit Court, at Rockville, yesterday by Judge Robert B. Peter. The sentences were considered unusually severe inasmuch as all three defendants entered please of guilty, and it is usually the practice to take such pleas into consideration.

William Lake, 17 years old, of Takoma Park, Md., who pleaded guilty to highway robbery with a dangerous weapon, was sentenced to serve four years in the House of Correction, despite a determined effort by prominent citizens to secure a lightening of the sentence. He was arrested within 24 hours of the time he is alleged to have committed the robbery, by Sergt. Earl H. Burdine, of the Takoma Park substation, Montgomery County police.

Lake is alleged to have held up Isaccio M. Vasquez, a student of the Washington Missionary College, Takoma Park, at the point of a pistol and to have robbed him of $30 on the grounds of the Washington Sanitarium and Hospital.

Charles B. Murphy, alias James O'Hara, was sentenced to serve 18 months in the House of Correction when he pleaded guilty to three indictments charging embezzlement. He was arrested by Sergt. Burdine after a four-month hunt. He was employed as head bellboy at one of Washington's most exclusive apartment-hotels.

Murphy pleaded guilty to having obtained positions as salesman with several radio houses and to having taken radio sets out on consignment and then to have sold them and retained the money. The series of alleged embezzlements took place in February and he was arrested February 9.

Raymond Dorsey, colored, who pleaded guilty to assault with intent to kill on Sarah Davis, colored, was sentenced to serve seven years in the penitentiary. He is alleged to have shot the woman, seriously wounding her, at Rockville.

Rockville and its vicinity was in darkness last night for nearly half an hour shortly after 5 o'clock, when a transformer at Melrose avenue and Montgomery avenue burned out. Supper preparations in Rockville homes interrupted and the tasres of the town did business by candle light.

Reports of expenditures in the recent election campaign were filed yesterday in circuit court at Rockville by the treasurers of the Republican and Democratic parties. The law required that full reports be filed by yesterday with the clerk of the circuit court.

The report filed by Wilson L. Townsend, of Kensington, treasurer of the Republican State central committee, shows receipts of $5,066 and disbursements of $4,805.95, with unpaid bills of $388.10. Most of the receipts were $100 or less, with a few exceptions. The largest contribution was $900, given by C. I. T. Gould, treasurer of the Republican State central committee for Maryland, and the next largest was one of $400 by J. R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican national committee. The largest contribution by an individual was $200 by R. L. McKeever. The expenditures were for clerk hire, automobile hire and for workers at the polls, as well as advertising and printing.

A. L. Denhard, political agent, donated the sum of $500.

Democratic receipts were $12,259.81, and disbursements were $12,871.16, with 102 persons subscribing to the fund, according to the report of Z. M. Waters, treasurer.

Among the larger subscribers were Democratic State committee for Maryland, $2,000; Parsons Newman, $1,000; Thomas A. Jameson, $1,000; Maj. E. Brooe Lee, $800; Karl W. Corby, Fred J. Hughes and H. B. Rogers, each of whom contributed $500; George P. Sachs, $350; H. B. Leary and John S. Weaver, each $250; W. O. Dosh and Thomas W. Perry, each $200; Robert Peter, jr., Dr. Benjamin C. Perry and Floyd E. Davis, each $150; J. Bond Smith, James H. Cissel, M. J. Luchs, H. L. Shannon, Walter Bachrach, Berry E. Clark and Tom Bones, $100 each.

Inasmuch as there were 25,000 registered voters, the Democratic disbursement per capita was approximately 50 cents. The Republican per capita expenditure was about 26 cents.

Final decree of absolute divorce from Frederick Christian Ellskov was awarded Mrs. Emily Margaret Ellskov, of Takoma Park, a Government clerk, yesterday by Judge Robert B. Peter in circuit court at Rockville, Md. The court granted a request that she be allowed to resume her maiden name, Emily Margaret Hildreth.

In her bill of complaint, filed July 19, 1930, the wife alleged that the husband had deserted her and that the separation is final and deliberate. The husband is a Washington automobile salesman. The couple was married February 21, 1922, in Washington.

Judge Robert B. Peter, in circuit court at Rockville yesterday sanctioned the adoption of Margaret Loretta Holmberg, 3 years old, by Mr. and Mrs. Claude B. Norton, of Conduit road, Montgomery County, Holding that the best interests of the child would be promoted by the adoption, the judge directed that the child's name be changed to Margaret Loretta Norton.

The mother of the child is dead, according to the petition, and the father is willing for the Nortons to adopt her. The Nortons were represented by Stedman Prescott, Rockville attorney.

Montgomery County's new criminal identification bureau yesterday received its first call for active service. County Policeman Theodore Vollten, in charge of identification work, was called to the store of J. W. Mullinix at Mullinix, Md., to copy fingerprints believed to have been left by a robber who tnered the store in the night.

The prints will be compared with those of Windsor Butler, colored, who escaped jail in Rockville Thursday night after he had been sentenced to serve four years in the penitentiary. Th method of entering the store is similar to that used by Butler in previous robberies and police were inclined to believe that he is rsponsible for the Mullinix robbery.

An automobile owned by a Mr. Childs near Laytonsville was taken from the garage in the rear of the house sometime during the night and it is believed that the cra was stolen by the afore thief ot make his escape.

When Policeman W. H. Merson reported to Vhief of Police Alvie A. Moxley yesterday that the work appeared similar to the known methods of Butler, the chief ordered an investigation by the new bureau to determine if possible if this was true.

The new bureau is expected to be of immeasureable aid to the county police. Officer Vollten is a photographer of much experience, having at one time operated a professional studio of his own. His experience in fingerprinting is more limited, but he is expected to achieve accredited standing within a short time. He is now undergoing an intensive course of instruction in this work. The new bureau has its headquarters in the basement of the Bethesda County Building but will be moved to larger and better equipped quarters in Rockville when the new courthouse and jail is completed.

ALEXANDRIAN GIVEN 4-YEAR PRISON TERM

Robert G. Brofford Found Guilty of Wounding Policeman.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Robert G. Brafford, charged with feloniously shooting Policeman John L. Stuart, September 14 last, was sentenced yesterday in the corporation court, Judge William P. Woolls presiding, to four years in the penitentiary. He was represented by former Judge Robinson Moncure, while the State was represented by Commonwealth's Attorney Albert V. Bryan.

Policeman Stuart testified that he saw Brafford sitting in a parked automobile near the Duke street dock; that he saw liquor in the car and attempted to place Brafford under arrest. A fight followed, in the course of which Brafford shot the policeman and then threw him into the river. Stuart, however, regained the dock and fired at Brafford, severely wounding him. E. E. Lawler, jr., who conveyed Stuart to the hospital, and C. R. Costello, who watched Brafford until the arrival of the police, also testified.

Brafford took the stand and told his side of the story, and was followed on the stand by several character witnesses. The jury, however, after brief consideration, found him guilty of felonious shooting.

The jury was composed of William J. Goods, G. Raymond Gaines, George M. Reynolds, J. Frank Myers, Gardner L. Boothe 2d, E. E. Simpson, Frank B. Howard, John C. Page, R. L. Dawkins, Charles I. Adams and John R. Runaldue.

William L. Leitch, Boy Scout executive, will deliver an illustrated lecture on Boy Scout work before the meeting of Fitzgerald Council, Knights of Columbus, tomorrow night in the K. of C. Home, Cameron and St. Asaph streets. The meeting will be open to the public.

The Rotary Club will hold a Thanksgiving party at the regular luncheon hour, 12:30 o'clock today, at the George Mason Hotel, with Henry Moncure as chairman of the committee on arrangements. Heretofore the Rotary Club has been holding one entertainment each year designated as Ladies' night, but this year, under the administration of Judge William S. Snow, the plan has been to hold a series of informal entertainments, and the one today is expected to be the largest yet staged.

Three boys, giving the names of Walter Procter, 18 years old; John Massey, 17, and Russell Mitchell, 17, were in police court yesterday morning on a charge of stealing automobile tires valued at $30 from the Aero Auto Co. Procter was given six months in jail, Massey was fined $35 and costs and given a suspended sentence of six months, and Mitchell a suspended sentence of six months.

Forty hours' devotion service started in St. Mary's Catholic Church Sunday with a procession participated in by many little girls gowned in white and carrying flowers. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Mgr. Albert E. Smith, editor of the Baltimore Catholic Review. The sermon last night was by the Rev. M. J. Cannon, of Manassas, and tonight will be by Mgr. P. L. Ireton, director of the Holy Name Society of the Archdiocese of Baltimore.

Nic Lincoln, also known as Nick the Iceman, was fined $15 and $3 costs in police court yesterday on a charge of reckless driving. His truck had collided with a parked truck belonging to E. T. Gaede, of 418 North Columbus street, injuring Seville Harris, of 729 South Fairfax street.

Harris was at first thought to have sustained fractures of both legs, but Dr. Samuel B. Moore, who treated him at the Alexandria Hospital, found only bruises and abrasions.

The Golden Links Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, will hold a bazaar today at 715 King street, when a number of useful and attractive articles donated by the members of the society will be on sale. The proceeds will be used to help those appealing to the society for help this winter.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

FROM JAIL TO JOURNALISM.
Baltimore, Nov. 16.—A class in journalism has been opened in the Maryland State Penitentiary. Eleven convicts, including one murderer, are studying to be newspaper men.—Newspaper item.

WELL, the experiment, if successful, should at least assure managing editors a more interesting reply when they ask applicants, "What have you done?"

* * * *

But it's a pretty depressing item. The penitentiary part is bad, but, according to reports, the school of journalism output is quite disturbing.

* * * *

What could move a prison inmate to want to become a newspaper man is something of a mystery. Possibly it's the discovery that so many writers are getting away with murder.

* * * *

IF the Baltimore convicts matriculate we may see some exciting moments around the managing ed's desk. For instance:

Convict—Stick 'em up!

Managing Editor—What's the matter?

Convict—Don't make a move till I get on the staff.

Managing Editor—But what's the idea?

Convict—I want a newspaper job.

Managing Editor—Do you want inside work?

Convict—No thanks! I've had plenty.

Managing Editor—I mean, have you ever done much with the pen?

Managing Editor—Is it your desire to make the newspaper business your life work?

Convict (shuddering)—Don't use that word "life," please!

Managing Editor—Have you ever done any imaginative writing?

Convict—No, but I'm sure I could.

Managing Editor—What makes you think so?

Convict—All the judges I've ever faced have said my stories were unbelievable.

Managing Editor—Perhaps we could use you as a make-up man.

* * * *

THE possibilities are intriguing. However, one thing is fairly certain: after a prison graduate lands on a metropolitan newspaper and finds that the telephone booths in which a reporter spends most of his life are even smaller than a cell, he will volunteer to go back to jail.

THE REPORT.
Alas! the glass inside was gone;
It could not hold a single dram—
In fact it was a wicker sham.

The right guard on the St. Mary's football team is named Steponvitch.

And Fordham has a sub named Shinshock.

"The surest sign that prosperity is on the way back will come when you see the feller with an automobile getting a little sensitive because the spare tire is a little shabby," says Elmer Twitchell.

The smallest man in the world is the fellow who would sell a street corner apple salesman artificial fruit.

2,000 GO TO WORK IN DANVILLE MILLS

GREEN APPEALS FOR AID

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Nov. 24.—For the first time since the Danville textile strike was declared on September 29, the deep-throated whistle of the Dan River Mills sounded today and workers poured into the plants. It was estimated that about 2,000 workers entered the mills, union pickets admitting that it was the greatest number since the labor dispute began.

Many of the workers went on foot fearlessly passing the pickets and the groups of union workers, who undertook neither verbal nor physical protestation. Three extra street cars took workers who live in Danville to Schoolfield.

The mill management offered no comment on the changed situation, and no word came from the union forces. The increased force enabled the starting up of one of the larger mills, which has been idle since the strike began. It is believed that overseers and superintendents for the past two weeks have been canvassing workers eager to resume operations and that this morning was set for the time for them to report.

(Associated Press.)

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, yesterday appealed for aid for the striking textile workers at Danville, Va.

"There is hunger and suffering existing among the textile workers and their families at Danville, Va.," he said. "Men, women and children are without food, adequate clothing and shelter. This is the sacrifice they are making for the cause of trade unionism, for decent wages, the exercise of an American right to join a union and bargain collectively.

"Shall they be starved into submission? Shall children suffer and perhaps die from hunger and lack of clothing?"

Damage Hearings Ordered Removed

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 24.—Three damages suits which originated in this court have been ordered removed to other circuits. That of Dr. F. Alan G. Murray, of Cumberland, against the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, for $101,000 for alleged personal injuries received in a collision between his automobile and a truck of the defendant, in February, near Frostburg, has been removed to Washington County at Hagerstown for trial.

The affidavit for removal alleges the bus company is engaged in interstate traffic as a passenger carrier. Wolfe asks $25,000 damages for alleged personal injuries and property damage in a collision between his truck and a bus of the defendant on the National highway, at the Six Mile House stone bridge west of Cumberland.

Another committee, headed by A. H. Siedenstinner was named to make a survey of factory sites near Hyattsville with a view to attracting industries there.

The matter of extending Maryland avenue from Fifteenth and H streets to the Defense Highway was brought up and referred to the committee on roads with instructions to confer with the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Washington Suburban Park and Planning Commission regarding its feasability. The date of the December meeting was moved forward to December 15.
